Serving The Central and Southeastern Pennsylvania Areas

VOL. 24 No. 21 ~~32~~ 23 | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, April 7, 1979 | $6.00 Per Year

Despite an unusual amount of testing, the dairy industry reports conditions as normal. At left, above, is Richard Alwine whose farm is within a mile of the nuclear generating plant on Three Mile Island. He is still smiling, confident that things are allright. At right is Jed Beshore, York County, whose farm is just five miles away from the power plant. He too hasn't seen a need for a change in management. Samples of milk coming into the Department of Environmental Resouces laboratory in Harrisburg show no evidence of contamination. Charles High, radiation protection specialist, accepts the samples, above, center.

Dairy business, shook but going steady

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRISBURG — The milk in southeastern Pennsylvania continues to flow in normal fashion, despite the consequences of an accident on Three Mile Island involving an atomic reactor. With few exceptions, dairymen are taking the situation pretty much in stride and they're happy to know that no radiation has been found in milk samples. Federal, state and local testing laboratories are monitoring the situation daily.

There is some concern however, about consumers being influenced by negative reporting and thus refusing to buy milk and other products which are produced in the counties surrounding Harrisburg. While consumers in southeastern and southcentral Pennsylvania are generally confident of the safety of Pennsylvania products, consumers in neighboring states have expressed their doubts. A spokesman at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, as well as information from some dairy cooperatives, indicate that such negative attitudes are very much in existence.

In Maryland, for example, some stores put up signs indicating that their milk didn't come from Pennsylvania. Also, a cartoon appeared in Philadelphia, showing a boy at a breakfast table with a bowl of cereal and a mushroom cloud coming out of the milk carton.

Such negative, unwarranted publicity irritate farmers and their marketing representatives, as well as officials within responsible agencies such as the

Precautionary measures hurt meat plants

By KENDACE BORRY

ELIZABETHTOWN — "The most damage was done by rumors and fear" one meat processor located near Middletown summed up the results of the Three Mile Island incident as it reflected on his business. "While there were no real problems and no product hurt by radiation, people just panicked. The results were that my sales have gone way down–I just hope it's temporary."

The man was talking about his business which is located within the ten mile radius of the Three Mile Island plant.

"The uncertainty of what we'll need is terrible," he noted. "I don't know what to order, and what meats to make. Either I'll run out of meats this weekend or I'll have too much."

His business was one of six meat slaughtering plants which were told to temporarily cease their slaughtering of animals from Friday noon until 1 p.m. on Monday, strictly as a precautionary measure. Also, the plants were to move no meat in or out of their plants, although they could sell what they had available. According to the Area consumers confident of food products

By KENDACE BORRY

ELZABETHTOWN — As of Thursday night of this week, those consumers back in the area affected by the Three Mile Island incident were back to buying groceries and food stuffs as normal, according to the comments made at area supermarkets.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garber, Elizabethtwon, told that they had never stopped buying such things as milk, meat, and fresh vegetables.

"We have faith in what's being reported," they commented. "We would have been told if there was something wrong with the food."

Mrs. Brenda Herr echoed their thoughts. The lady, who told that she lives in a development 3½ miles from Three Mile Island, thought that the public would be warned if the milk might be bad. She added that she and her family had evacuated their home last Friday and were planning to ret;urn home as of yesterday.

"I heard a report that there was no identifiable problem," Jim Chafin said as he put milk cartons into his shopping cart. He added

If you questioned that wind-driven tractor that appeared on page 1 last week, you can get the real scoop in the form of a full explanation by Dieter Krieg. And this time you can believe every word. It appears on page 120.

One of the oldest cows in the country is still going strong on a Perry County farm. She's 26 years young and gave birth to her 23rd calf in February. Page 148 has all the details.

The Lancaster County Farmers Association went to Washington recently to meet with legislators. You may read about some of their discussions and concerns in an article beginning on page 140

At Pennfield, we formulate feeds and feeding programs with your profit in mind.

"All feed companies are alike."

If you believe that statement, you could be missing an opportunity to increase your output of eggs, pork or milk—without increasing your costs.

At Pennfield, our basic goal is to help our customers make more money. We believe we can accomplish this for you, too. For these reasons

• Customized feeding programs. We specifically tailor a program to your operation, not to an "operation like yours."

• Nutritionally-superior feeds. We go a step beyond many conventional feeds. Our feeds have Optimum Nutrient Density (most profitable nutrient level per pound of feed) and contain high-quality protein for balanced amino acid nutrition.

• Quality in, quality out. We chemically analyze all incoming feed grains for pesticide residues and toxins... and all finished feeds for overall quality and nutrient content.

• Technical service. We're responsive to your needs—by phone or on your farm.

• A local company. We buy our feed grains locally; shipping savings are passed on to customers. Our feeding programs are developed based on local conditions. We do test work and field trials based on local conditions.

These and other Pennfield advantages are helping hundreds of new customers increase their profits. We can do the same for you. But you must take the first step by phoning or writing us. Do it today.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

APRIL 9-15, 1979

Rain's now mainly a pain.

Income taxes not due until April 16 this year (the 15th is Easter Sunday) . Molly Pitcher died April 9, 1913 Full moon April 12 . Average length of days for the week, 13 hours, 16 minutes Walrus are mating now Pony Express started April 9, 1860 Maine sardine season opens Good soup may be made in an old pot

Ask the Old Farmer: Where did the term "polka dots" come from? P C, Buffalo, N Y

The polka is a dance imported from Bohemia back in the early 1800s Somewhere about 1840 a company turned out a dotted pattern in dress goods Somebody, likely a musician, observing the regularity of the pattern, compared it to the notes of the polka Hunt up a scrap of polka music and you'll understand exactly how come

Home Hints: If you've run out of clean pajamas for your child, use an adult t-shirt as a bed shirt

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Week starts cold, with rain east and south, snow north, then rainy and seasonal Greater New York-New Jersey. Sunny and very cold first of week, then rainy and mild Middle Atlantic Coastal: Rain all week.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Cold and rainy all week, some flooding

EDITORIAL COMMENTS By DIETER KRIEG, EDITOR

Reactor is cool ... now the people

Because newsmen from around the world have made such a big case out of the accident that occurred ten days ago on Three Mile Island, agriculture in southeastern Pennsylvania may end up being the biggest loser of all.

While the nuclear mishap might well be considered dangerous, much of the country ended up being poisoned not by radiation, but rather by the heavy coverage given by news reporters and broadcasters. And because of that, many consumers will be shying away from farm products which were produced in the Keystone State.

That would be unfortunate, although not surprising.

There is no denying that the Three Mile Island incident was and is newsworthy, and it will undoubtedly be rated as the top story of the year, but if journalists were ever guilty of overdoing it, this had to be it. Day after day the big headlines appeared. And along with it came the unwarranted reports - even rumors - and downright ridiculous statements.

Suddenly everybody became an expert on nuclear energy and the facts became twisted and confusing. The rumors flew and alarm grew steadily.

As a matter of fact, more than 10 times as much radiation dropped on our Garden Spot in October of 1976 when fallout from a Chinese bomb blast circled the globe. But back then, news reporters and politicians hardly even noticed. Life went on as normal, and few people - if anybody - were really concerned.

In contrast, radiation from Three Mile Island was oftentimes barely detectable, if present at all But panic struck a lot of people and decisions are still being made which won't do Pennsylvania's farmers a bit of good.

True, the Three Mile Island situation could have been more serious than it was Maybe the anticipation of a disaster is what caused the stories to be so heavily laden with negative thinking.

As the stories and rumors spread, people got the idea into their heads that our soils and farm products are contaminated. Some orders for sales have already been cancelled and a few merchants are known to be telling their customers that their milk or vegetables didn't come from Pennsylvania.

Ironically, the problem isn't in the immediate area, it's in neighboring states.

In the minds of at least some of the public, our farm products are unfit for human consumption. In truth, they're as good as they ever were. There has been no scientific evidence to indicate that anything was contaminated -lest it be the tarnishing as a result of too much negative and alarming publicity

I know of at least one picture that appeared in newspapers which was totally ridiculous, and yet somewhat indicative of the type of reporting that was going on A couple of Holstein steers were feeding on a lot somewhere, and the caption asked whether or not the milk from those cows might be contaminated with radiation. I'm sure that was just one of many mistakes the reporters and photographers made

After all, how much do city reporters know about farming?

And yes, how much do they know of nuclear physics?

Judging by the number of reports that were being written, our journalists know more about farming and nuclear energy than you and I combined. They may have meant well, but I'd say they overreacted And they were responsible for a segment of our population overreacting as well

Some of our politicians didn't help matters either. Seeing the opportunity to bale tons of political hay, they acted as though they were the all-knowing and all-guarding fathers of our country. Through their actions and words, some folks have inadvertently magnified a matter of concern into a story bordering on hopelessness. This made our situation here at home even more vulnerable

I certainly share the concern that many farmers have for their families and property. And I can understand why thousands of families wanted to leave the area for a few days. And I can see the reason for apprehension and fear among those who live and work close to the nuclear electric plant There is no denying that the entire situation shouldn't have been taken lightly

But there was no reason for the national news media and politicians to stretch the situation so far out of proportion that it left an indelible mark on Pennsylvania agriculture

Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell has been saying ever since he took office that he wants to promote Pennsylvania's farm products.

Well, I'm afraid he and you and I are going to have a real job to do in that regard. After all the alarming publicity that's come out of the Three Mile Island thing, we had better not neglect our public relations duties to help bring things back to normal. People in our own area don't appear to be too worried about our farm products, but evidence is already showing up in other states that our products won't be as easily sold as before.

NOT THE LORD'S SUPPER

Lesson for April 8, 1979

Background Scripture:
1 Corinthians 11.
Devotional Reading:
Mark 14:17-26.

"When you meet together, it is not the Lord's supper that you eat"! How those words must have jarred the church at Corinth! They were not any more welcome in Corinth than they would be in your church today.

None of us would likely take kindly the judgement that, whatever we are doing, it is not the Lord's Supper.

Paul was shocked with what went on in Corinth when the church came together for the Lord's Supper. In Corinth, as probably in other places in the early church, it was observed as part of a common meal, known as the Agape or love feast. It started out as a good idea, for eating together in the ancient world always had a special spiritual significance. The Last Supper of Jesus had also been a common sharing of the Passover Supper.

No Commendation

But something had happened to this good idea. In time, the common meal became really more important than the Lord's Supper. It became an occasion for eating and drinking in excess. It gave rise to selfish displays, some people using it as an opportunity to flaunt their material well-being: "... do you despise the church of God and humiliate those who have nothing? What shall I say to you? Shall I commend you in this? No, I will not."

Today the service of Holy Communion is seldom performed in conjunction with a common meal. Therefore, you may be tempted to conclude that what Paul has to say on this subject in 1 Corinthians 11 has no relevance for us today. Certainly our services of Holy Communion are not conducted like that!

Profaning The Lord

But there is more involved here than the practices of the Corinthian Christians at the Lord's Supper. First, Paul reminds us of the essence of the Lord's Supper: "This is my body which is for you. Do this in remembrance of me" (11:24). In the Lord's Supper we must never forget that Christ himself is somehow present. If there is any action or attitude in us that is inharmonious with the Spirit of Christ, it is not the Lord's Supper we are celebrating. "Whoever, therefore, eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner will be guilty of profaning the body and blood of the Lord. Let a man examine himself and so eat of the bread and drink of the cup" (11:27,28).

How often do we eat the bread and drink the cup without seriously "examining" ourselves – without looking deeply within ourselves, without evaluating our relationships with those about us? Are not Paul's words just as much a warning to us? "For any one who eats and drinks without discerning the body eats and drinks judgement upon himself" (11:29)?

A service of Holy Communion is not necessarily the Lord's Supper!

TO PRODUCE MAXIMUM ALFALFA YIELDS

With nearly every species of livestock the feeding of top quality alfalfa hay or silage is strongly recommended. At dairy meetings we hear how good alfalfa is in the rations and at a recent sheep meeting we learned that good alfalfa hay was the backbone of the ewe feeding program. Alfalfa meal is often used as a source of protein in other rations. It all sums up the fact that alfalfa is one of our most important forage crops. Every farmer should make a special effort to produce maximum amounts per acre This takes management along with proper lime, fertilizer, insect, and disease control. Since we are now at the beginning of another cropping season, more attention to alfalfa might benefit many farmers. Don't be satisfied with half a stand, or with doing alfalfa practices in a hap-hazard manner. The crop is worthy of the best of attention.

TO PROTECT PERMANENT PASTURES

Some permanent pastures have livestock running on them twelve months of the year. When animals are allowed to tramp these pastures early in the spring, they dig up the grass roots and do considerable damage. Some fields look more like a plowed field. This should not be allowed. I'd suggest that animals be kept from these pastures until the grass is tall enough to graze. Also, an application of complete fertilizer, such as 10-10-10, would bring the grass along faster and increase grazing capacity. Give the grass a chance to get started before the flock or herd is admitted to the area.

TO GRAZE CAUTIOUSLY

The winter rye will soon be ready for grazing in this part of the country. Also, if warm Spring rains continue, many stands of well-fertilized pastures will be ready to graze. Most animals are anxious to get on this lush growth and may over-eat the first few days. We suggest that animals be allowed on this fresh grass only after they have been fed other roughages such as hay, straw, or silage. In addition, they should be permitted to graze only for short periods, for the first few days; starting with 30 minutes and allowing longer each day. If the forage is dry at the time of grazing, it will be less likely to cause scouring or

Livestock market and auction news

Omaha Cattle

April 5, 1979

Closing prices on slaughter steers and heifers were 2.00-2.50 higher. Cows were .50-1.00 lower, and bulls weak to 1.00 lower. Fleshy two-way feeder steers were 2.00-2.50 higher.

Fed cattle prices advanced sharply the fore part of the week in somewhat of a forced trade as yet another weekend storm curtailed livestock movement. Most slaughterers came into the period in need of cattle to meet immediate minimum slaughter requirements; however, most interests were rather selective and were not aggressive for numbers beyond immediate needs in view of the unfavorable cut-out ratio. Slaughter under federal inspection was still of moderate proportions, but demand was still reported light to moderate. Slaughter steers made up approximately 39 pct. and heifers 35 percent. Cows comprised 11 percent and feeders 14 percent.

STEERS: Three loads Choice with end Prime predominately 3 1250-1262 lbs. 74.50, load 3-4 1267 lbs. 73.50 early. Choice 2-4 1000-1275 lbs. ranged 72.00-73.50, many sales 72.50-73.00, two loads 1075-1200 lbs. with few Prime 73.75. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 1000-1250 lbs. 71.00-72.25. Good 2-3 67.00-70.00. Load Good and Choice 2-3 1197 lbs. 68.00, load Good 66.00.

Average of LS-214, detailed quotations on Choice 900-1100 lbs. steers this week 72.65; Choice 1100-1300 lbs. 72.92. Average weight steers this week 1142 lbs. as compared 1127 lbs. the previous week. Average weight heifers this week 980 lbs. as compared 989 lbs. the previous week.

HEIFERS: Few loads Choice and Prime 3-4 969-1069 lbs. 72.25-73.00 during week. Choice 2-4 900-1075 lbs. 70.00-72.00, some at outside price 3-4 with end Prime. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 875-1050 lbs. 69.00-70.50. Good 2-3 64.00-68.50.

COWS: Utility and Commercial 2-4 late 53.50-55.75. Cutter 51.50-54.00. Canner and Low-Cutter 48.50-51.50. Shelly low-dressing 43.00-45.00.

BULLS: 1-2 1400-2100 lbs. 62.00-68.00, individual 1 69.00-70.00.

FEEDERS: Fleshy two-way steers 966-1075 lbs. 71.50-72.50.

You keep milk production up and feed costs down with our dairy pre-mixes.

Wouldn't you like to put some of that money you spend on commercial protein supplements in your own pocket?

That's the goal behind an alfalfa, grain and Vigortone Dairy Pre-Mix feeding program. It helps you take maximum advantage of the protein and energy already in your home-grown feedstuffs.

And legume roughage is a good source of protein; but it's low in phosphorus and other nutrients so important to the needs of all dairy cows.

That's where Vigortone Dairy Pre-Mixes help. These potent pre-mixes are specially formulated for the feeds grown on your farm and contain the proper amount of phosphorus to balance the calcium content of your legume roughages.

Vigortone Dairy Pre-Mixes also furnish the minerals, vitamins and other nutrients so important to good nutrition and better milk production. Special ingredients promote proper digestion and assimilation of rations, so your cows benefit more from less feed.

Your Vigortone Dealer can help you figure the energy and protein supplied by your own grain and roughage. You'll know from the start how much, if any, additional protein you'll need.

Now is the time to compare.
See your Vigortone Dealer soon. He's ready to compare the performance of Vigortone's cost-saving dairy feeding programs with any other you name.

Angus women offer scholarships

WOODBINE, MD. --- Graduating high school seniors with Angus beef projects are eligible to compete for two $300 scholarships offered by the Maryland Angus Women's Club. The Seidenspinner Memorial Scholarship Grant was established in memory of Mr. A.H. Seidenspinner who was an outstanding Angus breeder. It is offered annually to encourage young people to pursue higher education in Animal Science and other fields of study.

Any 4-H or FFA member graduating from high school and planning on attending a school of higher learning, who has an Angus steer or heifer project, may compete by obtaining entry forms from Mrs. Augie Velisek, 1868 Rt. 94, Woodbine, Md. 21797, phone: 301/489-4519, or your extension agent or FFA leader. Closing date for entries is May 15. Judging is based on experience with Angus cattle, 4-H or FFA records, school records, and extra curricular activities.

Stay with the reliables.

Bargain basement sucker control is no bargain.

When you're raising a crop that's worth so much an acre, you don't take chances on anything as basic as sucker control.

That's why most tobacco growers stay with the industry's two leading systemics. MH-30® or Royal MH-30® from Uniroyal Chemical.

Good tobacco growers know that you never sacrifice dependability for price. So go for all the reliability you can buy. Insist on original MH-30 or fast acting Royal MH-30 with Sorbatran.* It's just good business. Uniroyal Chemical, Division of Uniroyal, Inc., Naugatuck, CT 06770.

Vegetable gardens not damaged by TMI

MIDDLETOWN — If someone called me up at this time I'm going to tell them to go ahead and plant a garden. At the moment, what have we got to lose" said John Harris, Dauphin County Extension agent. "I don't think the experts at Three Mill Island are trying to fool us. The area surrounding the plant will constantly be monitored." So if home gardeners do plant and "in a month or so nothing shows up, we are that much further ahead in our planting.

Home gardeners don't seem too be to worried about Spring garden planting after the incident at Three Mile Island (TMI). As one vegetable producer from the area said "I don't feel it has any effect at all, except in the minds of people".

Mrs. Elsie Weaver of Middletown R1, has a home garden. Elsie said she was "going to wait until they say more" about the situation before she plants. Elsie said she was most concerned with her pregnant daughter and grandchildren. She also mentioned that her parents used to farm on TMI.

Allen Dehney said "he had faith in the people in charge because that was their job. Dehney who grows vegetables and has a produce stand said he has already planted some of his vegetables. The radiation levels have been reported minimal around his area. Dehney doesn't feel the TMI incident will hurt his business in the Summer. Just about "every year something is different" he said. Certain sprays or chemicals would come out one year and be banned the next he cited. "Once the fresh things come out people will forget the past. You gain some business and lose some every year.

"Some people are apprehensive and a little concerned about the radiation levels" Harris said. "The indication of radiation levels out on the farm and home has been very, very light and people shouldn't be alarmed." Harris maintained that the biggest problem would be the "state of mind, and fear of the unknown". "Lets go ahead and plant the gardens" Harris exclaimed.

Joyce Yinger, owner of Yinger's Greenhouses, Middletown, said that over the past week "sales have dropped at least 75 per cent" Since Joyce's business is directly across from the TMI "levels were checked in the immediate area and there is nothing to worry about" she said.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor:

Greetings from Centre County. Just a few lines to let you know your picture (Energy crisis) doesn't correspond with the shadow. Your shadow shows a muffler and no shadow of an oil can. I also wonder how you cut the bottom of your oil can out. Do you think we could run our jigsaw with wind by April 1, 1980?

Sincerely,
Timmy Stoltzfus

Editor:

In your article on the World Plowing Championships held in Germany, you fell a little short of a fully comprehensive review. You failed to include in the article the champions' names and the countries they represented.

It is nice to know that the peace of the world was more important than winning, but I would bet my last dollar that had America pulled off the championship, all the nice talk about peace and its importance would have taken a back seat in Joyce Bupp's resume.

I was born and raised in Ireland, a little country that has continually participated in the World Plowing Championships, and on a few occasions has been champion with both horse and tractor, so it would have been nice to know who last year's champions were. Hoping you will pay more detail in the future to the important parts, and not only when America is at stake.

30 years of service

Struble honored by Chester Co. Conservation District

WEST CHESTER — Over thirty years ago, Robert G. Struble, Sr. left his vocational-agricultural classroom teaching in Unionville and moved out into the world of watersheds and conservation. Before most of us knew much about conservation, Bob Struble had put together an illustrated slide talk, showing just what it was all about, and convince people to become involved. And, he helped create the Chester County Conservation District.

In recognition of these contributions and his thirty years of dedicated service as Secretary/Treasurer for the District, over 60 friends, associates and family gathered at the West Chester Treadway Inn to honor Struble at a dinner given by the Conservation District Directors; Robert Hodge, Chairman, of Highland Orchards, West Chester; G. Pownall Jones, Vice-Chairman from Toughkenamon; Frank Mcberty, Oxford; Gertrude Yarnall, Cochranville; Clement Sheppeck, Malvern; Harold Kulp, Pottstown and Commissioner/Director Earl Baker of Malvern.

Following dinner, long time friend and conservationist, Clayton Hoff and Struble's son, Bob, Jr., showed a very light and clever slide program they had put together of scenes from Struble's impressive career.

The Directors presented him with an engraved pewter bowl and a book containing congratulatory letters and messages and pictures of the evening. Amos Funk, of Lancaster County represented the State Association of Conservation District Directors in awarding Struble a pewter plate for his years of service to them.

Struble not only worked as Secretary/Treasurer to the District, a post he still holds, but served as consultant to the State Conservation Commission where he helped establish other districts across the state. He has served as the Executive Director of the Brandywine Valley Association and the Red Clay Valley Association and is presently a Commissioner of Chester County.

All of Struble's family were present including his wife, Alma, daughter Peggy, son John and wife Kathleen, son Thomas and wife Ellen and son Bob, Jr., who is presently Executive Director of the Brandywine Valley and Red Clay Valley Watershed Associations.

Grassland environmental FFA honors members

By JOAN LIESAU

BLUE BALL -- The Grassland Environmental FFA Chapter honored members and parents at their annual banquet held at the Blue Ball Fire Hall on March 29. Over 250 people attended.

Proficiency awards were given to 14 of the members. Receiving the beef production award was Patti Brubaker. Patti is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Brubaker, East Earl R1.

Tammy Horning, daughter of mr. and Mrs. John Horning, Bowmansville, was named the Fish and Wildlife Management winner. Since Tammy lives in town, she used the resources which were available to her. Tammy made many displays for the Garden Spot agriculture classroom, one of which was a display of different bird's nests. She did well with her record book in the Water Conservation contest. Ted Fox, district game protector, awarded Tammy the Wildlife conservation award, including a check for $35, a plaque and shoulder patch, Tammy placed second in the wildlife division.

For maintaining a home garden with outstanding yields, Cindy Good was the recipient of the vegetable production award. Cindy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Good, East Earl R1, also kept good records.

Called an enthusiastic and hardworking individual by her ag instructor, Dana Armbrust, was named the horse proficiency winner. Dana has had a great deal of success showing her horse at breed association shows. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Armbrust.

Veal calves were the major enterprise of Calvin Weaver. Calvin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Weaver, New Holland R1, was the recipient of the livestock production award.

On the basis of working at Chuchar Hill Animal Farm, Gerry Weaver received the outdoor recreation award. Gerry, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira S. Weaver, works with and takes care of exotic animals.

Placement in agriculture production went to Keith Horning, Keith , the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Horning, Denver R1, worked at Stauffer's Orchard, Denver R1, for his experiece. H also received an

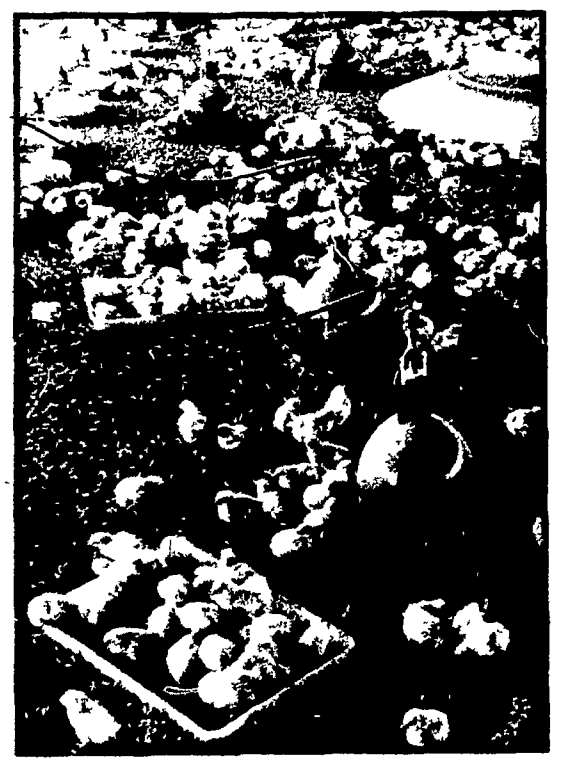
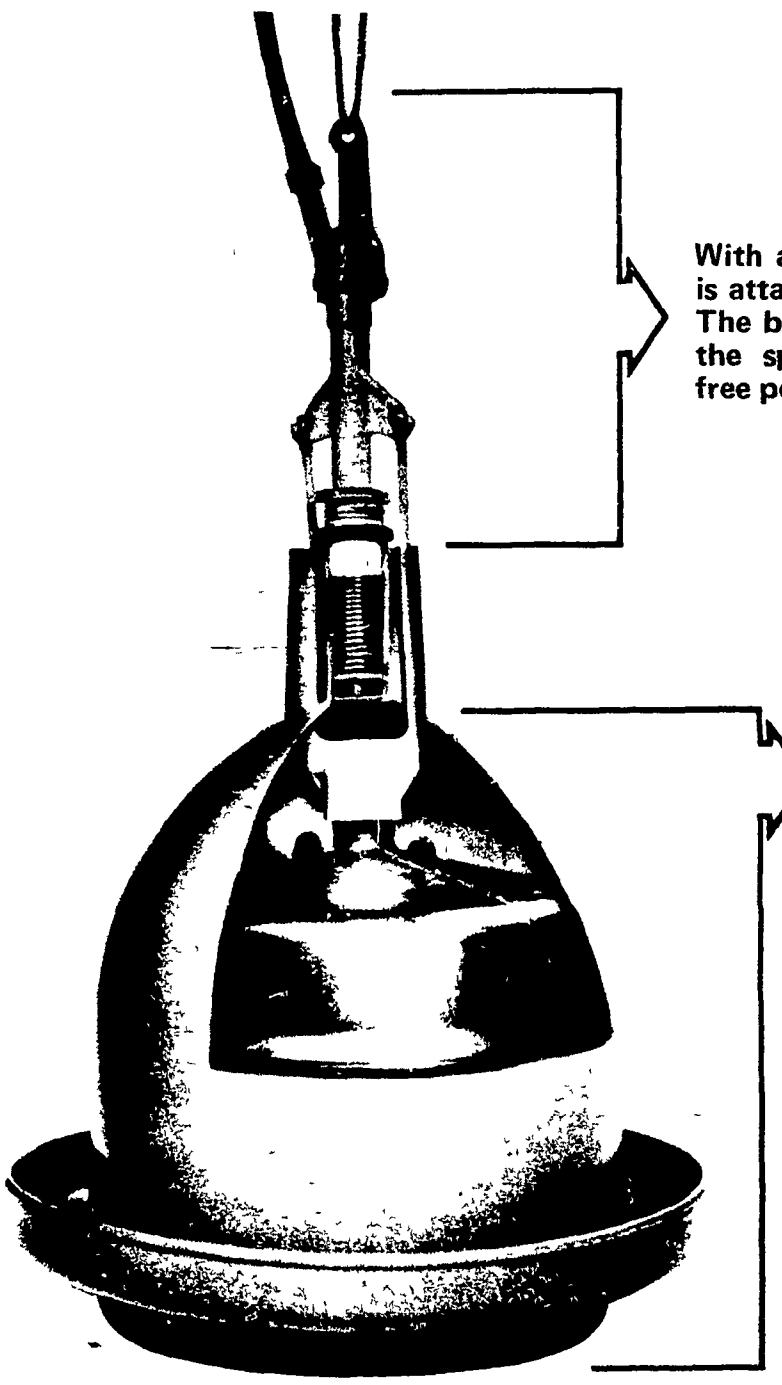
PLASSON® DRINKER

...NOW! The Standard of the Industry...

The Complete Watering System for Commercial Broilers, Breeders, and Turkeys from Day Old to Market Age.





The Inside Story of the Plasson Drinker:

With all other plastic hanging waterers the ballast weight is attached to the bell. Not so with the Plasson Drinker! The ballast hangs independently and eliminates wear on the spring and valve mechanism to provide trouble-free performance.

The independent ballast feature allows the Plasson Drinker to function while sitting on the ground, thus permitting chicks to drink from day old. Whether hanging or sitting on the ground, a regular single-action valve is all that is needed to keep the drinker at the proper water level.

As your birds drink, there is a slight movement between the bell and the independent ballast. This action allows the water to rock in the trough of the bell . . . cleaning both sides and bottom . . . suspending the feed in the water . . . thus enabling birds to consume all the feed that comes off their beaks.

By keeping the water level at the correct height, ¼" to ½" maximum (just enough for birds to immerse beak), your birds will clean the trough as they drink.

Md. Farm Bureau women attend workshop

NEW WINDSOR, Md. – Maryland Farm Bureau women turned out 150 strong for the annual workshop, held here on March 28 at the World Service Center.

Opening speaker for the training session was Y.D. Hance, the state's former and first secretary of agriculture, now retired from that office.

Hance pointed a finger of blame at radicals, bureaucrats and the news media who operate with an abundance of emotionalism and a shortage of both facts and "common sense."

He also had harsh words for "too many people with too much leisure time trying to change the way we've fed this nation cheaper than anywhere else."

"If all these food additives are slowly killing us, how come we've had an increase in the average life span of eight years?" questioned the grain and tobacco farmer.

Blaming, for example, the ban on DDT for the scourge of gypsy moth moving south into Maryland forests, Hance noted that representatives of regulatory agencies had refused to allow use of a new effective chemical on the destructive pest.

Gypsy moths severely infest hardwood forests, stripping the trees of all foilage. After a few years of the infestation, the trees die. Thousands of acres of valuable woodlands in the Northeast have been devastated by the voracious larvae, formerly controlled with the now outlawed DDT pesticide.

An impartial Academy of Science, or even Congress, suggests Hance, should determine a way to fairly report scientific details.

Another recent chemical decision that Hance questioned was the barring of the herbicide 245, T from pastureland application, while allowing its use to continue on rangeland.

"Now what is the difference?" asked an incredulous Hance. "The only difference is in the kind of grass growing there."

The morning program also included a presentation from Mrs. LeRoy Bupp, Seven Valleys, Pennsylvania, on farm women's involvement. She encouraged the women attending to become spokesmen for agriculture and to educate themselves to the background of problems of farming to be better public relations representatives. Special guests at the states meeting were the Maryland Farm Queen and six county queens.

One Northeast milk order advocated

By GARY MAYK

STOUCHSBURG – Dairymen in the northeast United States should be shipping under one milk order to even out prices producers receive, NEDCO District Director Leon Musser told a meeting of area farmers recently.

The meeting was one of 25 meetings across the Order No. 2 milkshed at which NEDCO representatives sized up the industry. The Cleona Milk Producers Cooperative co-sponsored the meeting held near this Berks County community.

Musser thinks the combination of the New York-New Jersey Order with either the Middle Atlantic Order (No. 4) or several smaller orders in western New York and Pennsylvania may be a step up for dairymen.

A federal task force is studying the possibility of a single northeast milk order, Musser said. The report has not yet been issued. Musser reminded producers that it's a complex subject.

Musser thinks a single order might solve some problems. "Order 2 has been pretty much of a dumping ground for excess milk from other orders," he said, adding that the problem has recently tapered off. "It would mean a higher price for the producer.

"There is very little justification for milk producers in the Northeast to receive different prices just because milk can't move from one order to another."

NEDCO and Dairylea, also represented at the meeting, are investigating possible order changes. Musser suggested that one possibility is to combine some unregulated areas into a new Northeast order. "We would get a more uniform marketing situation throughout the Northeast," he contended.

But he admitted that a new order would not please eveyone. "It's going to benefit some and be detrimental to others," Musser said. "It's important that every facet be explored. But it certainly looks like it would make for a much more uniform and orderly distribution of milk in the Northeast."

NEDCO expects prices during the next year to rise by about a dollar per hundredweight. That depends on what support price level is accepted by the federal government.

Leon Musser

Ralph Smith

Ralph Smith, director of education for NEDCO, told the producers they can reasonably expect 80 cents more than the current $10.44 support price.

"The support price changes Oct. 1 again," Smith said. "If there's no new law Oct. 1, the support price could drop back again to 75 per cent of parity."

The dairy experts were critical of efforts to restrict the bargaining power of cooperatives. Smith noted that the Justice Department wonders if more people would drink lower-priced milk that might result from less regulation.

And the President's Commission on Anti-Trust has suggested that cooperative mergers should be allowed only if no lessening of competition results, Smith said.

"We think that's far fetched ... we think they're trying to put more restraints on cooperatives than other businesses," Smith asserted

Cooperatives in Order 2 are struggling to maintain membership. Membership is down to less than 50 per cent in the milkshed. "We hope it's because the price is so good," Smith said. "Of that, we're not so sure." He remains convinced that cooperatives are important in maintaining an orderly market for milk.

"A lot of younger farmers don't realize the necessity of a co-op," he explained. When some farmers recently were turned away by a regular customer, they became co-op members "simply because they had no other choice." "Since conditions have improved, they've already left," he said.

Musser noted some adjustments the milk industry has had to make in meeting consumer preferences. While whole milk consumption is down 22 per cent since 1970, low-fat milk consumption is up by 74 per cent.

"Butter consumption is down," he continued, "but cheese demand is up, so they offset each other." The drop in butter use since pre-World II days in staggering. Per capita butter consumption before the war was at 16-18 pounds. Consumption now is a mere 4.4 pounds per person. The bright spot in cheese. "Cheese growth is expected to grow on into the next couple of years," Musser forecast.

Production levels nationally have been holding up despite decreasing cow population. Larger herds are on the increase, a New York state survey shows.

Musser was somewhat critical of the base-excess plan used by farmers in Order 4. "The farmer does all he can to produce more milk in the Fall base period," he said. "I think we have enough milk now and more milk will keep the price down."

Whatever the price to the producer, the price paid by consumers for milk is a real food bargain, figures shown by the speakers revealed.

They cited a U.S. News & World Report survey in which only two food items, tomatoes and eggs, went up less than milk since 1967. The average American goods jumped 100 per cent from 1967 to 1978. Milk increased 76 per cent. Two other beverages increased by much more. Coffee headed the list at a 271 per cent increase. Cola by the carton jumped 123 per cent.

Teamster trucker strike to have little effect on dairy industry

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – The National Teamster's strike is not expected to have a serious effect on the dairy industry, according to Robert C. Forsythe, General manager of Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation, Inc. (NEDCO), one of New York and Pennsylvania's largest dairy marketing federations.

Forsythe feels that milk and other perishable food products will be allowed to move to market. He did say, however, that a long "over-the-road" haulers strike could effect the availability of the inputs of production in agriculture as most of these products do move on wheels.

The Teamster Plant and Deliveryman's strike in New York City should not be confused with the nationwide haulers' strike, Forsythe said. There is no sign of a settlement in this strike at this time, even though approximately 70 per cent of the former supply is moving into New York in the form of packaged milk.

The New York strike is costing its farmers shipping to that market approximately 25 cents/cwt., according to the Co-op manager.

Adams Co. beef producers to meet

FAIRFIELD – The Adams County Beef Producers Association will hold their next meeting on Tuesday, April 10, 1979 at the Adams County Extension Office at 7:30 p.m.

Following the meeting, Phil Roth from Fairfield, will give a slide presentation of New Zealand (high tensile strength fence). Roth is the area distributor for Gallagher Fencers. This type of fencing is useful for sheep production as well as beef production.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Action taken in 2, 4, 5-T case

MIDLAND, Mich. -- A federal court judge granted The Dow Chemical Company's request for an expedited deposition schedule and discovery in its suit against EPA in Flint, Michigan, March 19. This latest action, in response to Dow's defense against EPA's "emergency suspension" of the products 2,4,5-T and silvex, allows Dow access to suspension-related documents from the files of EPA administrative personnel, EPA personnel involved in the 2,4,5-T scientific review process, and scientists involved in the Alsea II study, the report upon which the emergency suspension is based. In addition, sworn depositions may be taken from certain non-administrative EPA personnel and the Alsea II scientists.

As a result of the deposition and document review, Dow expects to establish that the emergency suspension of silvex and 2,4,5-T, a product with over 30 years of use and 40,000 scientific reports attesting to its safety, was based on an improperly conceived and executed study which provided no justification for the Agency's extreme and damaging action.

According to John Donalds, general manager of the company's Agricultural Products Department, "Dow has been, and still is, in total compliance with EPA's scientific review process, and is willing to accept the scientific decision of that process. The recent court decision is seen as a step in the right direction for the vindication of a safe and necessary agricultural management tool that was arbitrarily forced from the market for non-scientific, emotional reasons.

Leaders honored for service

Receiving 4-H leader certificates and year pins from County Agent, Nancy Kadwill (right) of Norristown are leaders (left to right) George Shenkle, Collegeville; Betsy Irvin, Ambler; and Delores Shenkle, Collegeville. Mr. & Mrs. Shenkle have been leaders with the Central Horse Club for 15 years while Mrs. Irvin has served as a leader for the Merry Riders 4-H Club for five years. These awards were presented at the annual Montgomery County 4-H Horse Achievement Awards Program.

Md. women

Reports on state women's activities were presented by chairmen of several committees. Maxine Price, head of the Farm Queen competition, reviewed successful county pageants and encouraged local pageant chairmen to be looking for ways to use their county farm queens' in public relations efforts.

Martha Clark detailed plans for the Farm Bureau's upcoming Farm-City Festival activities and Carolyn Downey spoke briefly on Washington County's rural health program, which included CPR lifesaving training.

Mary Street, 17-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. Spencer Streett, won the state crown during ceremonies at the Maryland State Fair, held last September at Timonium Fairgrounds. She's a senior at John Carroll senior high and will study animal science next Fall at Penn State. The family raises beef cattle on their one hundred acres.

Worchester County queen is Sandy Bounds, age 16, the daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Bounds, Newark R1. Also 16, is Tammy Downin, Washington County winner. She's the daughter of beef farmers Mr. and Mrs. William Downin, Keedysville R1.

Representing Frederick County was Mary Jane Ramsburg, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mehrle Ramsburg operate a 250-head dairy herd near Thurmont. Caroline County's Tammy Walbert is from near Ridgely, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Walbert raise 88,000 broilers annually.

Robin Morris, 16, is from Sudlersville and wears the crown of Queen Anne County. She's the daughter of Mrs. Elmer Morris and lives on a 300 acre grain farm. Howard County's representative is 17-year-old Alcinda Pfefferkorn of West Friendship. Her family raises market lambs and horses on their fifty acres.

AGWAY

Worms Are Stealing Your Milk

Break the worm cycle with
BAYMIX FROM AGWAY

More than ninety percent of all dairy cows are worm-infested It's true Researchers have found worms in nine out of ten dairy cows inspected With these odds, chances are your herd has worms (internal parasites)

Worms can cost you money by reducing...
- milk production potential
- feed efficiency
- growth of replacement animals

BAYMIX is the "Dollars and Sense" wormer. Here's why:

• There is no milk withdrawal with Baymix so you can worm the whole herd at one time milking cows, dry cows, calves and replacements • Only by worming the whole herd at one time can you effectively break the worm cycle and reduce internal parasitisms on the whole farm • Easy and convenient to feed No handling or restraints to stress animals Just topdress on feed for six days

Let Agway check your herd for worms...

• using a fecal test kit, Agway can tell if worms are present in your herd If worms are present, a Baymix worming program can be started now. The recommended Baymix program to reduce parasite levels on the whole farm is a worming in the Spring and again in the Fall

Start using Baymix and stop worms from stealing your milk

STABILIZED NITROGEN

It's 8 bushels better.

You can get four dollars back for every dollar you invest in N-Serve* nitrogen stabilizer.

Because N-Serve stabilizes nitrogen. And stabilized nitrogen increases corn yields an average of 8 bushels per acre over regular nitrogen.

How do we know? Because stabilized nitrogen has been used on farms like yours throughout the U.S. And over several years, under varying weather, soil and moisture conditions, the yields prove it.

Stabilized nitrogen is, on the average, 8 bushels better than regular nitrogen.

So this spring, ask your dealer to add N-Serve to your anhydrous, liquid or dry nitrogen. Your nitrogen will be stabilized, and your yield improved.

Eastern Lebanon FFA banquet held

By DIETER KRIEG

MYERSTOWN — Members of the Eastern Lebanon County FFA Chapter, their parents, friends, and guests, received the royal treatment here last week at the occasion of the Chapter's 17th annual banquet and awards program. It was held in the red-carpeted, and spacious ELCO Middle School cafeteria.

With some 220 people in attendance, the Chapter celebrated the achievements of the past year and recognized outstanding members, as well as supporters of the organization.

Introduced as the most distinguished member of the Chapter was Vincent C. Arnold, the 1978 State Star Agribusinessman. The recognition is one of the highest awards bestowed by the Pennsylvania Association of Future Farmers of America. Vincent, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Arnold of Schaefferstown. He is the third ELCO FFA member to win the distinctive award since FFA Advisor Gerald Strickler began teaching at the school seven years ago. Vincent's brother, Patrick, won the honor the year before. Vincent is also one of three FFA'ers from ELCO to have won the Keystone Degree last year.

Vincent is a former treasurer of both the ELCO and County FFA chapters.

Also noted as the pride of the ELCO FFA Chapter were Stacy Woods and David Wenger, both of them recipients of the Keystone Farmer Degree.

Miss Woods is the daughter of Mr.and Mrs. Wallace Woods, Newmanstown R2. She has served the ELCO FFA as reporter and president and was active in all FFA program phases.

Dave Wenger is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wenger, Myerstown, to win the Keystone Degree. His older brothers, Lloyd, and Larry won the prestigious award in 1969 and 1970, respectively. Mr. and Mrs. Wenger were given a special plaque in honor of their parenting three distinguished FFA sons.

Dave Wenger served the ELCO FFA Chapter as secretary and president, and was reporter for the Lebanon County FFA.

Also honored were Brett Eberly, Star Chapter Farmer; Ken Arnold, Star Chapter Agri-businessmen; and Patti Heilinger, Chapter Star Greenhand.

Special plaques were presented to several persons during the banquet. Winning special recognition were Sue Heilinger for dairy production, William Hoffman for home and farmstead improvement and crop production, Ed Kegerreis for swine production, Ken Arnold for

Dairy

Department of Agriculture and Department of Environmental Resources.

The milk produced on even those farms which are closest to the nuclear plant has alway been and continues to be safe, industry spokesmen emphasize.

Boyd Gartley, director of member and public relations for Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative puts it this way:

"All milk is safe in stores, as well as on the farm - and has been throughout the entire ordeal."

A highly respected man in his field, Gartley is quick to give credit to the men and agencies who have worked hard to maintain stability and safety. "I just think it's great that despite mechanical failure and human error, nothinbg happened to affect anyone other than what is in their minds," Gartley said in a telephone interview yesterday morning. "We have to learn to respect nuclear energy," he added, indicating that he believed it was a realistic means of producing power.

Inter-State's public relations man left no doubt that he was thankful to nuclear experts for keeping the situation under control. What' more he is also full of praise to dairymen and their animals. Dairy farmers, he said, cooperated very well with inspectors and did not become alarmed. And we have to thank the cow, Gartley continued, for producing milk on a daily basis which permitted us to test it for radiation levels.

Acording to Gartley, a lot of positive developments came out of the Three Mile Island incident but they generally went by unnoticed as people were too concerned with the fear of a nuclear catastrophe. He concludes that Pennsylvania dairymen can be proud of the part they had in this chapter of nuclear history.

Gartley's calm and positive attitude is shared by dairymen themselves. In York County, for example, E. Wayne Beshore and his son, Jed, are producing milk the same as ever. They said they were concerned, but not to the point of wanting to leave. They lost 1680 pounds of milk because of the aftermath of the accident. That was due to the fact that their bulk tank was overflowing and milk wasn't to be shipped from the farm unless it was tested first. The Beshores' milk hadn't been tested at the time, but has been ever since.

Dairy herd management goes on as usual at the Beshore dairy farm, located about five miles due west of the nuclear generating plant.

Jed, 24, a graduate of Delaware Valley College, said he remained confident throughout the time that the situation on Three Mile Island was considered critical. "They (radiation technicians) arrived here to test radiation in the air, and they came up with a reading of 10 outside and five in the barn here," he said. Readings are taken in milliroentgens. Nothing indicated abnormal conditions.

Across the Susquehanna River, in Dauphin County, dairyman Richard Alwine was equally calm, despite the fact that he has the distinction of being closer to the nuclear plant than any other dairy farmer. Like most anyone else, he didn't find it necessary to change any of his management. His cows were inside anyway, and feed was covered. He felt no great need to be concerned. He produces around 2500 pounds of milk per day and has won quality awards from his dairy cooperative for the last several years. No radiation was found in his milk. It continues to be tested daily by the Department of Environmental Resources, the Food and Drug Administration, and The Metropolitan Edison Company, owners of the Three Mile Island nuclear power station.

Readings taken at the Alwine farm indicated that there was no abnormal amount of radiation in the air. "I never said that there was a big amount of radiation that escaped," Alwine said. His confidence was based in part on the presence of so many reporters and even the President of the United States, Jimmy Carter. According to Alwine, if it had actually been as bad as what some of the news reports indicated, the reporters and the President wouldn't have been allowed to come in.

But as confident as Alwine and Beshore are, not every dairy farmer in the area shares their view. One dairy farmer near Goldsboro, York County, pulled up his roots, and moved to Franklin County, some 50 miles west of here. Another shows up only for the most essential work.

But the word from the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Environmental Resources, and the Food and Drug Administration is that the milk has not been adversely affected by whatever amounts of radiation might have leaked from the reactor on Three Mile Island.

The dairy industry is safe and so is the milk.

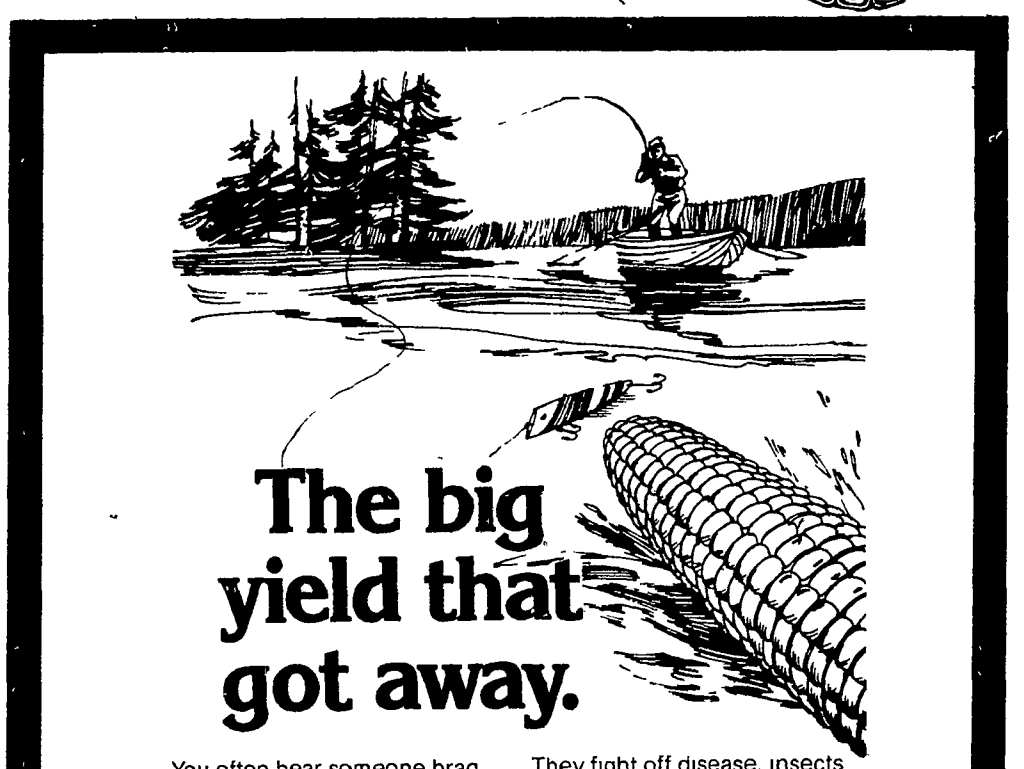
Wheat research and education comments due April 24

NEW YORK, N.Y. – Written arguments or briefs on hearing testimony about a proposed order for a wheat and wheat foods research and nutrition education program will be received by the U.S. Department of Agriculture until April 24.

The industry-proposed order would set up a 20-member Wheat Industry Council, composed of producers, processors, end-product manufacturers and consumers, to run the program. The council would collect assessments on the purchases of processed wheat by end-product manufacturers – primarily wholesale bakers – and use the funds for wheat and wheat foods research and nutrition education activities.

Five copies of comments and briefs should be submitted by April 24 to the hearing clerk, rm. 1077-S, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250.

Comments and briefs may only deal with material received at the hearings and should cite page numbers from transcripts when possible.



You often hear someone brag about the huge yield his corn is going to make then at harvest time, he conveniently avoids the subject That big yield probably got away due to insects, disease or drouth Maybe it didn't dry down like it should have Well, these are the kinds of problems Funk s G-Hybrids are bred to handle They pop out of the ground early and grow into hardy plants loaded with quality grain They fight off disease, insects and drouth and come through with big-bushel yields So go ahead and brag if you want Just be sure you have Funk s in the field

The recommended (by Reams) soft rock phosphate is only $80 per ton dumped in spreader trucks. Free delivery in dump trucks locally. Livestock farmers generally have enough potash for this program The nitrogen you get out of the air with our BX soil bacteria. The nitrogen levels stay up without adding any Very economical! The bacteria together with rock phosphate is a real bargain The rock phosphate is long lasting, doesn't leach.

BX IS VERY VERY GOOD FOR REVIVING SICK FRUIT AND ASPARAGUS.

We also have SOIL CONDITIONER for breaking hard pans fast and mellowing the soil. Well proven locally Costs less than chiseling and is worth more

Also FERTRELL fertilizer if you need a blend with potash Only $117 per ton. From our years of observation we think it is the best If we wouldn't, we would change. We believe in progress. Getting away from poisons is progress. People agree with that but some thought you can't get the yields organically We can now with BX and the Reams program BX alone out produces fertilizer by 10% to 20% in many cases The bacteria in it produce fertilizer as the creator intended. Why don't you prove it too?

Power plant accident has farmers concerned

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRIBURG — Farmers in the area are concerned about the possible consequences of the nuclear accident that occurred on Three Mile Island in late March and has ever since kept the nation in a state of suspense. Aside from thinking about the safety of their families, they're also wondering what, if any effect it will have on crops this year.

"We've never felt very good about nuclear power as an alternate source of energy," commented one Lancaster County farmer who feeds 600 steers on a farm south of Maytown. His farm is within the 10-mile radius of the nuclear plant.

"If we could have had a couple of days' notice, I would like to have sold all my livestock, but there is no feasible way many could have done that," said Jim Hershey.

A partner of Hershey's, Jim Landis, East Petersburg, remarked: "One rumor, that's all you need to cripple the market." He said he evidenced and heard about "sheer panic" in some agricultural marketing circles. "You've got to have a little bit of faith," he added.

Joe Wivell, another Lancaster Countian, said: "I'd just as well that they shut it (Three Mile Island) down because of the impact that it could ruin our farmland here. I think that there are other means of producing energy." Wivell, a dairyman, had made plans to move his herd to his brother-in-law's farm near Strasburg, had evacuation become necessary.

Wivell's concern for the land and livestock was shared by many, despite reports from officials in Harrisburg that only low levels of radiation were escaping from the nuclear plant on Three Mile Island. Wivell is concerned about long-range effects, and the possibility of a real disaster wasn't out of his mind either.

In York County, Mrs. Karl Strong, wife of a grain farmer, said they had left the area for a couple of days. "It's been a big nervous hassle, we don't know what to do. There are too many conflicting reports," she said. The Strong farm is about six miles south of Three Mile Island.

Ervin Blessing, who lives on a farm on the outskirts of Mount Wolf, simply said he didn't do anything on account of the events just a few miles north of his home. He did leave Sunday and didn't return until Tuesday, however. "What did anybody do – what can you do?" he asked. A grain farmer, he wonders whether or not his soil might have been contaminated. "Nobody knows," he commented dryly.

Ernest Retherford, whose farm in Dauphin County adjoins the atomic plant, was calm about the incident and only left the property for a day. He sells hay, straw, and corn and commented with a smile on his face: "I don't know if we'll have a buyer for it now." He has lived on his 100-acre farm for 26 years.

"I don't feel too badly

Bumper soybean crops don't just happen

It's about time to take another look at that grower who combined last year's bumper soybean crop. Lucky? Sure, a little. But most of the things he did were fairly safe bets - things anyone can do to maximize efficiency and output. Here's a rundown on a few basic elements growers anywhere can employ to reach bragging-size soybean yields.

Rotation with such crops as corn, cotton, sorghum and small grains will assure soybeans of a better chance against both weeds and diseases. Herbicides normally will be required, however, to keep weeds from getting out of control. Growers should tailor their herbicide selection and application to prevailing weed, weather and soil conditions.

Preplant incorporated combinations like a tank mix of Vernam and Treflan can give growers an early jump on unwanted crop competition and provide better control on both grasses and broadleaves than either herbicide used alone. Such a mixture is especially effective on the annual grasses, johnsongrass, nutsedge and pigweed.

General broadleaf weed control usually can be effected with a preemergence application of Lasso plus Premerge or a similar mix. Depending on herbicide and region, application often can be by broadcast or band method behind the planter.

For any weeds that survive earlier control attempts, growers can turn to directed or overtop applications of a postemergence herbicide. Basagran, Dyanap and 2, 4-DB are favored for Healthy soybeans and top yields require good crop management. This grower shows one of the major factors --- good weed control.

(Turn to Page 32)

Miller Heavy-Duty Rigid Offset Disc

Designed as rugged companions for today's high performance tractors, Miller Heavy Duty discs are greatly strengthened in all critical areas — able to withstand the exceptional stress generated by heavy loading, difficult discing conditions and high ratios of horsepower to foot-width of usage.

Although heavy and super-tough, the Miller Disc is always well behaved, offering excellent plowing and discing capability under all conditions from extreme to moderate or light.

★ HYDRAULICS: Patented hydraulic leveling control allows on-the-move adjustments, provides sideways control for extra stability on hillsides. Special 5" x 12" stroke hydraulic axle control cylinder provides positive, adjustable depth control (pat pend), also locks wheels in transport position

★ BEARINGS: Series bearing and spacing spools feature patented internal locking device — eliminates slippage between blades, prevents excessive wear and loosening of spools. New, heavier, slimmer bearing brackets for extra strength, better trash clearance Guards on bottom of brackets for increased wear protection ★ FRAME: Series frames built up with 6" x 4" x ¼" wall tubing, doubled in axle loading areas with 8" x 4" reinforcing on inside portions of forward frame.

★ HITCH: Hitch and front frame cross tubes are 6" x 6" x 3/8" for exceptional strength Hitch attachment to frame is heavily braced to sides and rear.

★ AXLES: Series axles use 6" x 6" x 3/8" wall arms, strapped to 6" main axle tube for extreme strength. Axle wheel arms positioned under frame, so spindles are shorter and stronger Spindles tube-braced to stand extra stress All spindles same size, may be interchanged Standard tires are 11 00 x 15, 8-ply rated ★ SECTIONS: Built with double 3½" square x ¼" wall tubing through 14 ft widths, with third tube optional Three tubes per section standard on 16 ft through 22 ft, internal reinforcing is available if required for extra strength or weight New section angle-locking system uses single heavy bolt with positive angle holding pin Large box-end wrench furnished for angle-locking adjustment, also for tightening sections.

★ SHAFTS: Shafts are 1¾" diameter, high strength cold-drawn steel. Ball bearings on gangs are triple-lip sealed, relubricatable and mounted in heavy flange cast housings for best bearing support and alignment Scrapers are Series with 1¼" shanks and adjustable, replaceable blades

National rural policy to be forming

CHERRY HILL, N.J. – A rural policy will be elaborated within the next four to five months, Dr. Lynn Daft, associate director of the White House Domestic Policy Staff, announced at the opening session of the Northeast Agricultural Leadership Assembly.

"Rural policy has not really enjoyed the benefit of a strong, well organized constituency – now one is beginning to develop," Daft told the more than 300 government officials, farmers, agricultural economists, scientists and rural life specialists in attendance.

To improve rural life, Daft said, "we need to make existing programs operate the way they're supposed to.

"The way to make the Department of Agriculture effective is to broaden its base, not narrow it."

Proposition 13 has in effect said the government must be more responsible, Daft noted, but it also means that there are "new paths for people to make their views known to government."

Daft called inflation, energy needs and international relations the "three major issues which will affect agriculture in the next few years."

"Inflation is a serious, serious problem. The public has come to accept inflation as a fact of life, which has taken a drastic toll.

"No other segment of our economy stands to gain more than our farmers when inflation is under control," said Daft.

"The federal government should especially take a good long look at the economic consequences of actions in the regulatory arena," he said.

Tremendous amounts of energy go into food production and distribution. Daft noted that agriculture has "fared rather well in attention and allocation," but added that care must be taken to insure energy needs continue to be met.

Daft told the delegates, "Don't anticipate changes in the basic farm policies of the administration over the next year or two. American agriculture is not perfect, but it is on the right path."

He acknowledged that there are deficiencies in the approach being taken to farm policy, citing the use of a national average for support prices and loan rates as unfair to Northeastern farmers.

Daft said that the structure of federal farm policy, while paying lip service to the idea of a strong family farm, has actually accelerated the consolidation of farms nationwide.

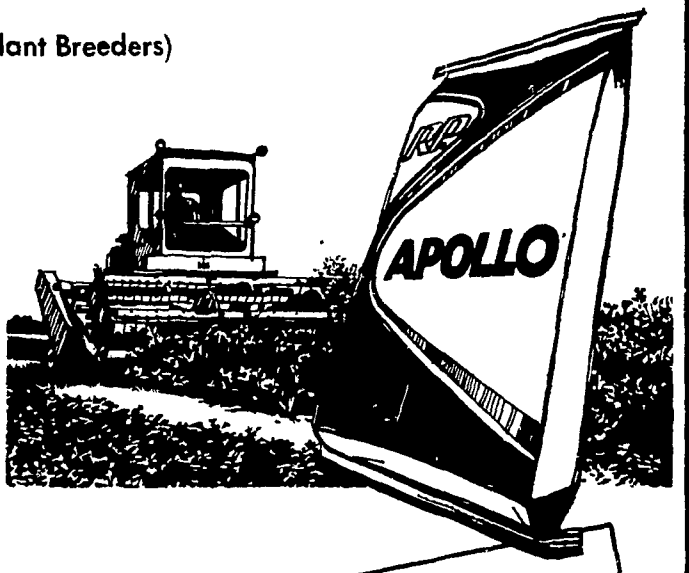
The difference between luck and science.



APOLLO variety alfalfa resists Phytophthora root rot (wet foot disease); greater yield potential, less damage from wilt, pea aphids and leafhoppers than other major varieties.

VANGARD variety alfalfa resists both wilt and anthracnose for top production wherever warm, humid growing conditions threaten summer decline. Leafhopper yellowing tolerance.

NEW!
DAWN variety birdsfoot trefoil produces good yields of high-protein legume forage on difficult soils, without threat of bloat to grazing cattle or sheep. Resists crown and root rots. Excellent reseeder.

REDLAND variety red clover has greater disease resistance and persistence, for unparalleled extra-season yield potential — up to 40% more than competing varieties. Ideal for grass pasture renovation.

Bumper soybean cocklebur and morningglory.

Regardless of herbicide used, it's important to follow label directions. Aside from being potentially hazardous from a safety standpoint, incorrect herbicide application rates and methods are sometimes responsible for serious crop damage and ineffective weed control. One can contact his dealer or Extension specialist if questions arise regarding mixture compatibilities and registered uses.

A few minutes each week should be all it takes to scout the fields. One should look for the beginnings of insect or weed buildup, and treat if crop plants are threatened. Early symptoms of herbicide damage on soybeans should not be cause for alarm, since most plants will outgrow this problem with no economic loss. If plant damage persists, one can get in touch with an appropriate specialist to determine cause and possible remedy.

Soybean losses at harvesttime can mount up and put a damper on what would otherwise be an excellent crop season. Field shattering, wherein pods are allowed to dry down and split before the combine reaches them, may become a problem if a large area is planted to an extremely early maturing variety.

The combine itself should be thoroughly serviced and adjusted, then checked frequently during operation to make sure it's working properly. The farmer should keep an eye on the header height. Calculations show that four to six beans per square foot on the ground total about a bushel an acre loss.

Throughout the entire cropping operation, it's essential to keep track of all the inputs, costs, dates, weather conditions and results. It may not seem too valuable over a season or two, but looking back at facts and figures spanning several years can give growers a solid foundation upon which to build future crop programs.

Md. Angus breeders plan sale

FREDERICK, Md. -- Maryland Angus Breeders will hold their annual Spring Quality Sale Friday evening, April 13, at 7 p.m. in the sale arena at the fairgrounds in Frederick, Md. Forty head of top Angus breeding stock from seventeen consignors will sell at auction. Seven breeding age bulls and thirty-three females have been consigned from herds in Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Virginia.

Some of the cows will have calves at side and some are young show heifers eligible to show at regional and national Junior Heifer Shows this Summer. A heifer purchased in the 1977 Spring Quality Sale at the side of her dam was shown extensively last year and won her class at a very strong Eastern Regional Angus Heifer Show in Jacksons Mill, W. Virginia last Summer showing against 242 heifers from the east, south, and mid-west. This heifer was also champion at several shows throughout Maryland and when sold last Fall, netted her young owner a price in four figures for his college fund.

The Maryland Angus Women's Club will serve a beef sandwich plate prior to the sale at 5 p.m. Proceeds from the meal will go to the Club's scholarship fund. The public is welcome. For catalogs and information call 301/489-4519.

Go with the big performers in your beef or dairy operation VAN DALE Liquid Manure Spreaders Choose a big capacity tank that can handle your year-in, year-out manure disposal problem Liquid Manure is the non-messy, profitable way to go You're putting manure right onto the ground where it goes to work faster and does the most good And liquid manure contains more nutrient value than dry, making its use even more beneficial

Considerable savings in commercial fertilizer purchases can often be realized You can now manage your assets to your advantage. The VAN DALE Slinger is built rugged so you can spread when time and weather are right

The low, straight-back spread pattern does not blow manure all over the operator and equipment, still covers up to a 40' wide swath. And you don't have to drive over ground already spread

A large fill hole provides easy access Heavy, reinforced oval tank with full length beam supports and a new, extra tough walking beam undercarriage gives maximum stability and easy maneuvering

Combine the Slinger with a VAN DALE Agitator/Filler Pump and a VAN DALE Above Ground Storage Tank. You'll have a rugged manure system that will return dividends in labor and time saved for many, many years.

Inside, VAN DALE Slingers have a full length powerful 7" Auger that turns at 540 RPM to charge the impeller for more throw power Especially important when using an injector to assure constant flow from start to finish Keeps slurry constantly agitated You spread an even, consistent blanket of liquid manure It's an exclusive, standard feature on all three VAN DALE Slinger models

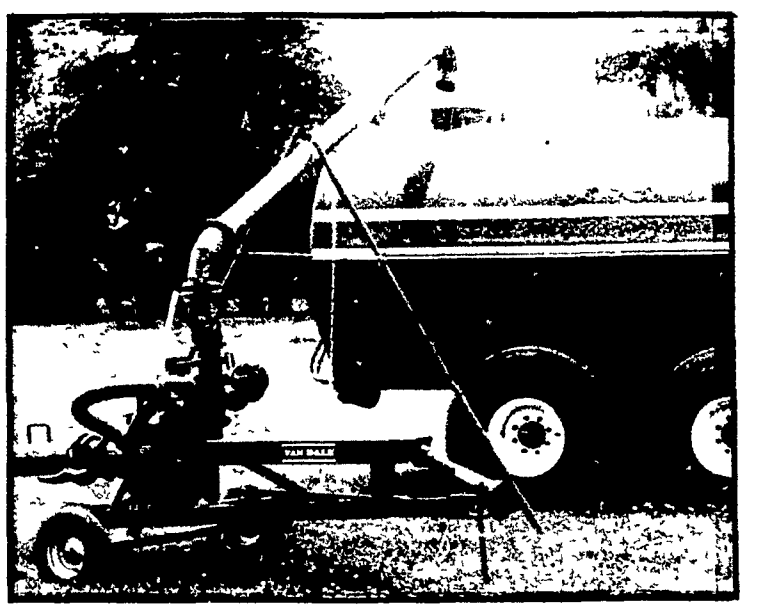
THE ALL NEW VAN DALE®

HIGH PRESSURE CENTRIFUGAL PUMP



Meet the latest addition to the VAN DALE line of liquid manure handling products. It's the new VAN DALE high pressure centrifugal pump.

This pump is specifically designed to get at those really hard to reach spots in livestock manure systems. You know ... those narrow, lowdown pit openings that make it a real problem to agitate manure.

The VAN DALE centrifugal pump will reach most of 'em ... and deliver plenty of rugged power to get the job done right.

Manure is brought into the impeller housing through a 6" suction hose, discharges back into the pit through a 4" flexible hose. The pump will develop up to 70 p.s.i. pressure to help break solid deposits for easier loading. The pump will agitate, transfer or load manure at a rate of up to 2,500 gallons per minute.

Look into the benefits of the VAN DALE high pressure centrifugal pump today. It could be just the problem solver you are looking for.

placemment in agricultural production, and Brett Eberly in poultry production. All of these winners received classroom trophies.

Other classroom trophies were awarded to William Hoffman, corn production; and Ronald Lehman, beef production.

William Hoffman and Sue Heilinger, home and farmstead improvement; Ed Kegerreis and Irene Brown, swine production; Donna Rabold, Irene Brown, Ken Erb and Dorothy Tice, floriculture; Ken Arnold and Leo Johnson, placement in agricultural production; Greg Beamesderfer, Wilson Berger, and Leo Johnson, agricultural mechanics; Brett Eberly, poultry production; William Hoffman, Sue Heilinger, and Brett Eberly, crop production; Ronald Lehman, beef production; Sue Heilinger, William Hoffman and John Kline, dairy production.

ELCO FFA Advisor Gerald Strickler noted that the Chapter had 24 project books entered in the county contest this year, and all came away with ribbons. Winning blue ribbons were entries by Sue Heilinger, William Hoffman, Brett Eberly, Ken Arnold, and Ed Kegerreis.

Members with red ribbon entries were Ken Erb, Ronald Lehman, Leo Johnson, John Kline, William Hoffman, Troy Matthew, Irene Brown, and Troy Ulrich. White ribbon winners were Sue Ritchie, Dorothy Tice, Wilson Berger, Greg Beamesderfer, Leo Johnson, Donald Arnold, Glenn Wenger and Jonathan Arnold. Some students had more than one entry.

In the state project book contest, ELCO had 16 entrants and 14 were awarded medals. Winning gold emblems were John Kline, Brett Eberly, Ken Arnold and Ed Kegerreis. Silver medals were presented to Sue Heilinger, Brett Eberly, Leo Johnson, and Ronald Lehman. Winning bronze awards were Ken Erb, William Hoffman, Troy Matthew, Donald Arnold, William Hoffman and Irene Brown.

The Production Credit Award was given to Sue Heilinger. She won the honor on the basis of her excellence

These three ELCO FFA'ers were recognized as the Chapter's three Keystone Farmers for 1978. Left to right are David Wenger, Stacy Woods, and Vince Arnold.

There's no documentary evidence that Louis XIV actually said "L'etat c'est moi" (The state, it is I). Tradition has it that Voltaire attributed it to Louis, but actually made it up himself. Napoleon, however, did say it to the French Senate in 1814.

Land, wood resources seen in danger

CHERRY HILL, N.J. — Protection of the nation's farmland and wise management of wood for energy are critical to the economy of the U.S. in the face of increasing energy problems, Rep. James Jeffords of Vermont told more than 300 persons attending the Northeast Agricultural Leadership Assembly recently.

The Republican congressman recently introduced legislation which proposes a three-pronged approach to reduce conversion of prime farmland to non-agricultural uses.

The Agricultural Land Protection Act, co-sponsored by 41 of Jefford's colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives, would:

Provide $60.5 million over a four-year period for State-operated farmland preservation demonstrations;

Establish a Presidentially-appointed commission to study farmland preservation issues; and Require all federal agencies to adopt procedures to minimize any adverse impact upon farmland programs.

"It (the bill) will not create a huge federal bureacracy," Jeffords said in a prepared speech. "And it will not infringe upon State and local prerogatives concerning the use of land."

Jeffords declared that the northeastern states and local governments, more than any other region of the nation, have attempted to find ways to divert new development away from prime farmland.

"I believe that it is essential for such efforts to be encouraged not only for their own sake, but also so that other States and communities will benefit from models that such efforts may provide," he explained.

Jeffords said that farmland preservation is indeed of national importance, because agricultural exports are needed to offset the trade deficit incurred by the nation's oil imports.

Regarding wood for energy, Jeffords said that in New England many homeowners are installing wood burning stoves to meet part or all of their home heating needs. The residential oil savings as a result of the conversion are estimated at 20 per cent in Maine, 18 per cent in New Hampshire and 27 per cent in Vermont, he said.

Utilities are also installing wood-burning plants, which will draw on wood chips harvested nearby.

Jeffords said he believes there is great potential for development of wood as an alternate energy source, but warned that wise management is necessary to insure that wood energy projects will not be threatened with shortages.

Legislation may be necessary at the federal level to get an in-depth study of forest resources rolling so that problems can be avoided at an early date, he said.

Lannate usage range increased

WILMINGTON, Del. — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has expanded the registration of "Lannate" insecticides on alfalfa to include control of the pea aphid, according to Du Pont entomologist, Dr. D. C. Drake.

The treatment calls for applying ½ to one pound "Lannate" per acre (or two to four pints "Lannate" L). According to Drake, "the label also informs users that treatment often results in a favorable ratio of predators (beneficial insects) to prey."

Dr. Drake reminds alfalfa growers that "Lannate" is also registered on alfalfa to control Fall armyworm, one of the most troublesome and devastating insects attacking the crop; also beet armyworm, lygus bugs and the alfalfa weevil larvae.

Drake also advises that "Lannate" and "Lannate" L (previously labeled for use on sweet corn) claims for control of the destructive earworm have been expanded to include ovicidal activity — through kill of eggs (ovicide) as well as larvae (larvicide).

Another new development for "Lannate" L is the EPA registration for its use on forest woodlots, plantations, nurseries to control forest tent caterpillar and western tent caterpillar.

The crop anise (fennel) has been added to the long list of crops on which "Lannate" is registered. The EPA registration includes recommendations for control of beet armyworm and cabbage looper.

Inflation will boost poultry use

By GARY MAYK

LANCASTER – Poultrymen can look to inflation to increase consumer demand for chicken, turkey and eggs as cheap sources of protein.

With red meat stocks down and bound to drop further before herds are restocked, Victor F. Weaver Poultry's Allen Lefever told Lancaster County poultrymen recently, poultry will be an inexpensive alternative to beef and pork.

Egg producers can count on stepped-up advertising and a passing of the cholesterol scare that hurt egg consumption the past two years, Christine Bushway, of the Northeast Egg Marketing Association, said.

They delivered their messages recently at the third poultry education meeting held by the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Service.

While inflation appears to brighten the prospects for preference of poultry products over red meats, it is a problem that is far more dangerous than most of us care to admit, Lefever said.

"I think the consumer will have to find a way of economizing," he said. One way he will do that is by moving to poultry from beef.

It's a matter of economics, he said. Worldwide demand for raw materials – including American grain – will push prices up. Consumers will find it necessary to go With the most efficient converters of grain, and that means higher poultry sales.

"I think broiler consumption will continue to increase," he said. "Beef may have seen its golden era. With the world now buying grain, we can no longer afford meat that is not an efficient converter."

Lefever noted a survey in which 84 per cent of consumers felt poultry was the most economical meat.

Aside from the basic facts of conversion – a bird requires only two pounds of feed to produce a pound of meat, while a hog requires 3.5 pounds of feed and a steer six pounds – poultry also dresses out more economically.

While poultry production is increasing, beef production is off from 1974 record levels of 134 million head. Hamburger, which Lefever calls "the modern staff of life," has rocketed in price. Even fast food prices have climbed steadily at a time of peak popularity.

Before cattle stocks can increase, cattlemen will have to hold stock for breeding, Lefever reminded poultrymen. That would put further upward pressure on beef prices.

Hog stocks also must be replenished after two severe Winters, he said. "There are 59.8 million head of hogs right now. That's not what I would call excessive supplies."

Poultry consumption per capita since 1950 has more than doubled, according to Lefever's figures. He doesn't see anything to discourage continued growth.

Eggs will continue to share a basic economic advantage with poultry meat, Miss Bushway pointed out: The egg is a relatively cheap source of protein competing for the consumer dollar.

To help get that message across – and to extoll the versatility of eggs – the American Egg Board has planned a $4 million television advertising campaign. Most of the advertisements are on daytime television with some hitting nighttime programs.

To reach the 55 per cent of American women who work and may not see daytime television, major women's magazines are carrying the ads as well.

Miss Bushway is optimistic. "I have very good news for you," she said. "Egg consumption is up 6 eggs per capita (in the past year)."

She sees two reasons - better marketing and the passing of the cholesterol scare.

Studies linking cholesterol to heart problems cut egg consumption in 1976 and 1977. "Eggs have historically suffered from bad publicity," she said. But some more recent studies have indicated that some cholesterol is necessary for proper health.

Things have changed for the better in 1978, with the six-egg increase in per capita consumption. "I would like to think that promotions could take all the credit," she said "But I have to think high beef prices had something to do with it, too."

Pennsylvania is the nation's fourth-leading poultry producer, Miss Bushway noted. Despite that, it has no fulltime publicist to promote eggs The Northeast Egg Marketing Association does work in Pennsylvania, however. She thinks the fulltime promoter is necessary and encourages egg producers to use $8,000 available for the position.

"You have to do some promotions yourself," she told the producers. She suggested in-store displays and demonstrations at local fairs.

The egg board is promoting egg use with a cookbook. One area producer said his use of egg board promotional materials at his farm was successful with customers.

And to prove its sincerity and confidence in the egg, the Egg Marketing Board has established $500,000 for medical research projects on cholesterol. The grants are administered by a former head of the American Medical Association.

One increasing aspect of egg and poultry consumption – their use in fast food stores – was to be explained by a McDonald's Restaurants representative. Lancaster County Agent Jay W. Irwin said the firm cancelled the night before the meeting, fearing trade secrets might be disclosed.

Lancaster cow donor

First certified embryo exported

LANCASTER -- The Holstein Association has issued what is likely to be the first of many certificates identifying an embryo for export. The certificate documents the identity of a fertilized ovum taken from Mid-Hill-Acres Famous D Jo, the donor dam, who was inseminated with semen from Northcroft Admiral Citation. The donor dam is owned by M. Robert Young of Lancaster.

This export certificate, along with the blood types of the donor dam and the service sire, was provided by the Association so that the purchaser of the embryo, an Italian dairyman, could apply for registry of the resulting offspring in his own country.

What might motivate a foreign dairyman to purchase an embryo rather than an already-born animal? According to Richard E. Nelson, special assistant to the executive secretary of the Holstein Association, one advantage offered by embryo export is lower cost. Both the initial purchase cost and transportation expense are lower for an embryo than for an actual animal.

On the other hand, as Nelson points out, the embryo purchaser runs some risk, in that the recipient female may not become pregnant as a result of the embryo transfer.

Nelson describes the export of an unfrozen embryo as a "carefully coordinated effort." Perhaps the greatest challenge is to time the transfer so that the recipient is in the stage of ovulation in which she would normally conceive. This, in turn, determines when the embryo should be taken from the donor dam, and, since the embryo must be about seven days old upon removal, determines the time of insemination of the donor dam as well. When transported, the embryo is kept at body temperature through one of several possible means.

"The cost of maintaining recipient herds, with cows at the proper stages of ovulation, has been the greatest deterrent to the common use of embryo transfer," Richard Nelson explains. "If there is a breakthrough that improves the conception rate for frozen embryos, a market will develop for frozen embryos both domestically and overseas. Successful use of frozen embryos would eliminate the need for special recipient herds, and make embryo transfer easier and less costly," Nelson adds. The current pregnancy rate from frozen embryo transfers is only about 20 per cent.

Nelson predicts that "if a 60 per cent rate of conception could be achieved, frozen embryo transfer would become almost as common as artificial insemination. Embryos from the better caliber cows would be available to more people, and those better cows would also go up in value."

Nelson expects the Holstein Association to be called upon to issue many more certificates that identify embryos for export.

Kutztown FFA wins contest

KUTZTOWN – The Berks County FFA Parliamentary Procedure Contest was held on April 3, at the Kutztown Area High School Vo-Ag Department. Three teams competed, with Kutztown placing first, Twin Valley second, and Conrad Weiser third.

The eight member teams must conduct an orderly meeting within twenty-five minutes, demonstrating a minimum of six parlimentary abilities. Such abilities are amendments, referring matters to committees, laying matters on the table, etc. Two new items of business are given to the teams by the three judges and must be handled properly. Every team has a few members as quizzers, who must be recognized a minimum of three times by the team on the floor. The quizzers are to catch mistakes made by the team and point them out to score points for their team.

The two top teams will be competing in the Berks, Lebanon, Schuylkill contest on April 23, at the Berks County Agricultural Center at Leesport.

bloating. Herds of milking cows should be grazed only after the milking period; should be off the area at least four hours before the next milking time.

TO PERMIT MACHINERY TO OPERATE

Many farmers get in too big a hurry when good weather arrives. As a result, they operate their tractors and other machinery at too high a speed. This presents safety hazards and is the cause of too many accidents. Grain drills and corn planters are designed for rather accurate planting, if operated at a normal rate of speed. Many times they are moved too rapidly and then the planting job is disappointing. We urge farmers to take the time to properly prepare and adjust their machinery and then drive at a speed that will get proper performance. With many pieces of farm machinery this speed is given on the manufacturer's directions. Take time to be safe and to be satisfied.

Precautionary measures

American Association of Meat Processors, Elizabethtown, when the notice first came out it affected all the area within a ten mile radius. Later that afternoon, the order was amended to a five mile radius. The ban was lifted on Monday and the plants went back to business as usual.

As a final precaution, the plants were asked to keep the thyroids of all the animals they butchered so that these could be tested for traces of radiation.

Speaking for Groff's Meats, Inc., Elizasbethtown, Joseph Groff, told that his plant complied with the rule, but added that the bann was strictly a precaution.

"And it seems that people aren't afraid to buy meat," he added. "There are less people in town to buy, but we're doing business as normal."

Clair Baum, representing Baum's Bologna, Inc., outside of Elizabethtown, told that the government inspection people told his plant to "close down their slaughtering" operation, and "rightfully so," he added. "While there has been no problem with radiation, we didn't know then what would happen last Friday, and it was strictly a precautionary measure."

The results of that temporary closedown threw his company back in placing orders, he noted, but he added that orders are down, some up to 50 per cent.

"The stores just don't have the customers, it seems," he noted. "The people who evacuated have cost the plant. Some of our own employees here were not back as of Wednesday."

Speaking for grocery stores abd supermarkets in the area, Robert Welcomer, talking of the IGA store in Elizabethtown, told that the Three Mile Island incident cost him $19,000 in sales last Friday and Saturday alone. This week, he continued, sales are coming back, but they were not as strong as they should be as of Wednesday afternoon.

"People just aren't here to buy," he noted, "and those few that do come in don't seem to touch the milk. They won't pick it up even though there's nothing wrong with it," he reported on Wednesday. "They are buying meat, though," he added.

Reporting from the marketing end of the cattle business, William McCoy, president of the Lancaster Stockyards, told that he thought the stockyards received several bunches of cattle this week due to the accident.

"People were afraid not to sell due to what might have happened," he commented. "We also had a lot of inquiries about placing cattle out of the area." He added that he thought very few cattle were moved, just that people wanted a place in case it was necessary.

Speaking of the feeder cattle business, he noted that "not anyone was too anxious to buy feeder cattle until it was determined what exactly would happen."

He told that the higher number of cattle received was not a price deterrent, as far as he was concerned, due to the fact that this past week, the one before the Orthodox Easter week, is traditionally a good week to market cattle, and the market expected a higher run of cattle than usual.

"If we learned one thing through this incident," he spoke up, "It was that we should know with whom we should get into contact for answers to questions about such matters. People wanted to know if it was safe to buy hogs, whether there would be a moratorium, for instance. Now I know to get in contact with the meat inspection people in Washington, D.C. But I still have questions that I need to get answers to."

that he had evacuated for a couple of days but he thinks the scare is over now. "The scare is over, but not the problem," he noted. "The problems are still very much so." Still, he added, he wasn't going to change his diet.

Ed Bright, from the same town, told that while his wife evacuated to be safe, one thing he wasn't worried about was radiation residues in his food.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Hilcher, Elizabethtown R1, reported that they didn't evacuate. The couple, who raise chickens for a local hatchery, stated that they stayed with the farm and trusted the reports that they heard. And although they knew that some people might be afraid to, they bought their food all along, not fearing any problems.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Strickler, Elizabethtown, told that the accident didn't affect their eating habits either. Although they had left the area from Sunday until Tuesday, they added that if they had stayed they wouldn't have been afraid of the food. They left the area because they thoght it made more sense to go on their own before they were told to go.

Mike Thomas, Mount Joy R2, with hiis 3½ year old son Nathan, were busy picking out groceries. Thomas scoffed at the idea of food picking up radiation.

"There just hasn't been enough radiation to contaminate the food," he explained. "The news media has been part of the problem. Everywhere you look you see conflicting reports. Actually there was left contamination in the air than when China blows up a bomb."

He added that he had left the area temporarily but only because "in case the problem got worse." He added that he and his wife also had a seven month old baby.

"The reports that we heard said there ws nothing to worry about," he stated. "We raise our own chickens and eggs, and we still will eat them."

about it," the Middletown area farmer began, "but my greatest concern is that they (the electric company) didn't inform us better. "If it straightens out, we can be thankful. I will plant," he concluded.

Mrs. Retherford wasn't quite as easy-going about the situation, and she admitted she was ready to move away on account of the atomic accident. "I'll rent my half of the farm to him," she said kiddingly, pointing to her husband, "and then I'll leave."

One of Retherford's neighbors, Richard Alwine, lives closer to the atomic station than any other dairy farmer. Despite his close proximity to the accident scene, he stayed very calm and never felt the need to change any of his management. A yearly recipient of a quality milk production award from his dairy cooperative, Alwine did have evacuation plans made, however. He wanted to get at least his best cows out of the area if worst came to worst, he explained.

As was true with every other dairyman in the vicinity, Alwine had his milk tested daily. No traces of radiation were ever found.

Alwine didn't believe the situation was anywhere near as serious as reports indicated because if it had been, he reasons, there wouldn't have been so many reporters around. Also, President Carter's visit reassured him. "I was concerned, but I didn't panic," he said.

Unlike many residents of the area, Alwine isn't upset with the operating company of the power plant, Metropolitan Edison. "It was an accident - just a human accident, I guess - and that can't be avoided. It's too bad it had to happen. It'll be hard on nuclear plants. I can't say that I'm for or against them, but we do need and want electricity, so I guess we need some nuclear energy," he reasoned.

Alwine never left his farm during the ordeal, explaining "it's a little hard to pick up and leave when you have a herd of cows."

"I had the feeling all the time that it wouldn't result in a meltdown," he said.

Things weren't nearly that calm for several farmers in the vicinity of Goldsboro, York County. One dairy farmer, Joseph Conley, loaded up his cattle and headed for Franklin County. According to his uncle, Charles S. Conley, he won't be returning. Another of his nephews, Sam Conley, is also deeply concerned, says Charles, who admits to being considerably concerned himself. The lower end of his farm is about a mile from the atomic plant. Conley has lived on his property since 1914. He claims some of his livestock has suffered on account of stack residues from the atomic plant passing across his farm.

YORK — A crowd of several hundred cattle enthusiasts turned out last Thursday evening at the Avalong Farms Horse Arena for the first York-Adams Calfarama Sale.

When the final bid was in and auctioneer Doty Remsburg's gavel hit the box for the last time, the fifty head had averaged an impressive $1009.

Top seller was a stylish black yearling daughter of Penstate Ivanhoe Star, consigned by Leo Lunger of East Berlin.

She was purchased by O. Clayton Smith, Jefferson, Maryland, for $2500. Dam of the top-selling heifer was a three-year-old daughter of Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation.

The second high selling animal also went to Smith, who paid $2300 for an October calf sired by Hilltop Apollo Ivanhoe and consigned by Robert E. Gitt, Littlestown. The calf's dam is scored VG-86 and produced a 28,000 pound lactation record as a six-year-old.

Co-sponsored jointly by the Registered Holstein Associations of York and Adams counties, the Calfarama was the first such event ever held by the two clubs. Co-chairmen of the sale were Robert Gitt, representing Adams County, and Phil Laughman, for York County.

A spokesman for the committee said they were quite pleased with the success of the first sale and that some consigners have already requested that the Calfarama continue as an annual event.

COBB OFFERS NEW BROILER BREEDER MANAGEMENT GUIDE

Cobb, Incorporated and Cobb International are offering a new 28-page "Cobb Breeder Management Guide," designed for use by flock managers to assist them in obtaining optimum performance from broiler breeders. This management guide covers all phases of broiler breeder production – chick brooding, growing and rearing, feeding and nutrient levels, lighting, vaccination and disease monitoring.

Body weight and feeding guide charts provide specific recommendations for obtaining proper growth rate and maximum egg production. Sample report forms are also included for flock managers to record egg production, hatchability and overall flock performance.

Persons interested in obtaining copies of this comprehensive poultry husbandry booklet should contact their Cobb representative or write "Cobb Breeder Management Guide," Cobb, Incorporated, P.O. Box 280, Concord, Massachusetts, 01742, USA.

FREY FREE STALL

LIFETIME FREE STALL HOUSING

Cut bedding costs 75 per cent, reduce labor for barn cleaning and cow washing; reduce teat and udder injury to the minimum — house your milking herd in free stall housing. Each cow provided a stall for loafing. She won't be stepped on, the rear curb forces manure out into alley for mechanical cleaning or washing. A few minutes twice a day cleans the stalls and curbs, bedding lasts almost forever if your stalls fit the cows. Popular sizes are 6'6", 7' and 7'6". Size 'em by breed.

Our free stall partition may be mounted on wooden head boards or we make a steel divider. Set the legs in 8 to 10' concrete curbs to hold and retain bedding. Stall floor can be soil, sand or gravel. Bedding — straw, sawdust, peanut hulls, ground corn cobs, etc. Should be installed with paved alley surface 8 feet wide for mechanical cleaning or washing.

Pa. corn grower recognized

LEWISBURG — Edwin Miller, of Lewisburg, has been recognized as the Pennsylvania state winner of Project 200, a corn yield program sponsored by The Producers of Funk's G-Hybrids.

He had a 1978 corn yield of 200 bushels per acre using Funk's G-4520 on a 2.1-acre plot. Miller's crop was planted on May 5 in 38-inch rows at a population of 24,000 plants per acre. His crop was harvested on November 10 at 24.5 per cent moisture, but the yield was adjusted to 15.5 per cent.

He used 106 pounds nitrogen, 84 pounds phosphorus and 52 pounds potash as his fertility program. He used AAtrex for weed control.

Houseplants grown from seed

FLEMINGTON, N.J. - For those who have ever thought about growing house plants from seed, spider plants, Draceana, Schefflera and many other favorite house plants can be started at home from seeds just as one would vegetable plants

Plants grown from seeds have the advantage of being accustomed to the home environment, and this eliminates the stress period that often follows the transfer from the greenhouse or plant shop.

Many houseplants go into shock when introduced to different climatic conditions. Leaf drop, chlorosis or browning of leaf margins are typical symptoms. Another advantage is that rare exotic plants are frequently available in seed which normally can not be found in the plant trade. They not only add interest, but provide a cultural challenge for the home horticulturist.

Seeds can be started in the same manner as vegetable plants, but one should be sure that the medium is loose and well drained. There are a number of commercial mixes available specifically designed for seed beds. A general rule of thumb is for one to sow the seed to a depth of twice their width. The medium should be kept moist, too much water will cause rotting.

Unlike vegetable plants, house plants may take up to two months for germination. One should be patient and a pleasant reward will follow. If a person need any information about seedling production of house plants, they can call the Hunterdon Extension Service, 201-788-1338.

Blyholder honored by Guernsey breeders

SPRING GROVE — Colonial Valley's rustic dining room was the setting for the annual York-Adams Guernsey Breeders banquet, held last Friday evening at the historic restored York County farm.

About one hundred people gathered at the dinner and honored John Blyholder, retiring head of the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders Association. Blyholder had served in the position for 37 years and was presented a wine and cheese serving set.

Entertainment was presented by the Hosanna Gospel singers. Masaya Matsukawa, Japanese exchange student and yearlong guest of the Lorne Detter family, Dover, spoke and presented slides on life in her native country. Centerpiece door prizes were awarded courtesy of Spangler and Sprenkle, Inc., York.

Special guests of the dinner were York County Dairy Princess, Patty Greek of Delta, and 4-H members of both counties carrying 4-H Guernsey dairy projects.

James Miller, of New Oxford, will head the two-county dairy organization as president, assisted by vice-president Larry Arnspacher of York R7. Leona Hobaugh, York, was elected secretary and Leo Rutter, York, is treasurer.

Other directors are Wayne Blessing, Wrightsville R2, Mervin Myers, Littlestown, George Rohrbaugh, New Freedom, Donald Lanius, Red Lion, and Steve Staner, Windsor R2.

The association is planning a summer picnic chicken bar-b-que, with place and date to be announced later.

The striped bass may be on its way to extinction, the April Reader's Digest reports. The young striper population has declined drastically since 1970, and its main spawning grounds - the Hudson River and Chesapeake Bay - have failed to support enough young ones to ensure the fish's survival.

Pfizer Genetics' Trojan Hybrid Seed Corn is tested by the most superior method of on-the-farm testing known to the seed industry. This special test, designated as TST, is designed to make the most statistically valid comparisons among hybrids on a field scale.

TXS 94

Yield, Superior Emergence, and a strong root system are three outstanding features of this 94 day variety.

T 1008

A superior new release for the 100 day maturity areas. Stalk strength and leaf disease tolerance are excellent. Drought tolerance and emergence are well above average.

TXS 113

One of the most consistent hybrids in the entire cornbelt for 113 day maturity. Has excellent leaf disease tolerance, stalk quality and seedling vigor.

TXS 115A

One of the highest yielding hybrids in the seed corn industry. TXS 115A, a 115 day variety, is a tall, dark green attractive plant with very erect leaves.

TX 119A

An excellent deep penetrating root system, coupled with strong stalks and outstanding drought tolerance, makes this hardy 119 day hybrid a first class choice for shallow, low water holding soils where stress may be a primary factor in limiting yields.

Chester Co. seedling sale set for April 20-21

WEST CHESTER — The Chester County Conservation District will sponsor its fifth annual tree seedling sale on Friday, April 20 and Saturday, April 21 at locations throughout the county.

According to Robert Hodge, district chairman, the groups selling and their locations are: Great Valley Ecology Club at the Acme Market in the Exton Mall and at the Shop 'n Bag at the 401 Shopping center; National Secretary's Association at the Honeybrook IGA (Friday only) and the A & P in the Oxford Mall (Friday and Saturday); League of Women Voters of Central ChesCo. at the West Goshen Shopping Center and Marchwood Shopping Center on Rt. 100, Lionville. Also the Red Clay Valley Watershed Association will sell on Saturday only from their usual location in Kennett Square at Tunis Bros. and at the Greenbank Station of the Wilmington and Western Railroad on Rt. 41 north of Prices' Corners. The Craig Ridgeway Elementary PTA will have a sale at the Coatesville Dairy Queen, Rt. 30 in Coatesville; Boy Scout Troop #70 will locate at the Downing Center A & P, the Thrift Drug in Thorndale, Cropper's Market in Guthriesville and the C&C Landscaping in Marshallton. All Sales will begin at 6:30 p.m. Friday, April 20, and 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, April 21, unless otherwise indicated.

Those needing more information may watch for advertising in local newspapers the week preceeding the sales. Or, they may call Betty Dunkel at the Conservation District office in West Chester at 696-5126.

The District organizes the sales, purchases seedlings from a Pennsylvania nursery and sponsors various service and civic groups who actually do the selling as a fund raiser.

"This year we've ordered 44,000 evergreen seedlings to be sold by six groups at thirteen locations," explained Marshall Haws, executive conservationist of the District. Chester County has its erosion problems and land areas that are in need of reforestation just as most other counties Trees put roots into the soil that will help to hold it in place. That way it's not so likely to end up in the nearest stream, said Haws.

Of course there are many other reasons people plant trees. Recent studies have shown the great value of landscaping to conserve energy and cut fuel costs in both heating and cooling homes. A well placed wind screen of mature evergreen trees can cut up to 85 percent of the winter winds In summer a mature tree provides the equivalent cooling power of five 10,000 BTU air conditioners. Wind screens are generally planted on the north and west sides of a home, with deciduous trees for shading on the south where they will drop their leaves and allow the sun to warm in the winter. Tree roots absorb large amounts of water that can compensate somewhat for the roof top, driveway and roadway runoff during periods of heavy rain. In addition planting trees provides wildlife protection and habitat and adds greatly to the beauty of an area.

The variety of seedlings available will be white pine, blue spruce, Norway spruce and Douglas fir. All will be packaged in bundles of 10 of one kind to a bundle that will sell for $2.00. There is no limit to the quantity that may be purchased but may depend on how long supplies hold out.

The white pine, a native of Pennsylvania, is a beautiful and useful tree. It will do well in a variety of soil types and is a fast growing tree obtaining heights of 100 feet. It makes a good windbreak and is a lovely Christmas tree.

Blue spruce is also excellent for windbreaks and is a beautiful tree with blue green and silvery coloring. It will obtain heights of forty feet and is a fairly slow grower doing well in ordinary soil with average moisture and lots of sun.

Norway spruce is a very valuable tree used for ornamental plantings as well as for a wide variety of products including Christmas trees. It is a fast growing tree that obtains a maximum heighth of 125 feet with gracefully drooping branches of dense growth. Does well in average soil and prefers moisture to keep its dark green color.

Douglas fir is the most popular Christmas tree in America due to its fine shape and ability to hold its needles. It will grow to 200 feet and likes moist, well drained soil and full sun best.

When trying to determine quantity of trees needed for a site, one suggestion from nurserymen is to figure on approximately 2700 trees per acre using 4' x 4' spacing. For 5' x 5' spacing usually used for Christmas tree planting, it would take about 1700 trees per acre. For windbreaks a double row planted 6 to 8 feet apart with offset spacing is best. A hedge type planting 12 inches to 15 inches apart will close nicely after the third year shearing.

Marketing fraud bill sponsored

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Livestock Marketing Association (LMA) will sponsor legislation in this Congressional session providing for stiff criminal penalties for marketing fraud, it was announced, here.

The "Crime Prevention in Livestock Marketing Act of 1979" will be introduced "because of the mounting increase in embezzlements, thefts and fraudulent practices in livestock marketing in 1978," an LMA spokesman told House and Senate agricultural appropriations subcommittees.

This Act, LMA Executive Counsel Robert M. Cook testified, "will make it a crime, punishable by five years in prison or by a fine of $5000, or by both, for a livestock market, livestock dealer or livestock broker, or for any other person to knowingly and in connection with livestock marketing in commerce, to commit any act of fraud, or to embezzle, steal, purloin or convert livestock or money to his own use, or the use of another."

The Act would be administered by the Justice Department It would shift the enforcement of fraudulent marketing practices from the Packers and Stockyards division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

LMA will also sponsor the "Freedom in Livestock Marketing Act of 1979," which would greatly limit the criminal and investigative powers of USDA, powers that more appropriately belong to the Justice Department, LMA said.

This legislation will be the continuation of LMA's 1978 "Freedom" campaign, which resulted in the deregulation of marketing rates and tariffs

The statement cited both legislative proposals as reasons for Congress to deny proposed budget increases to USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) and its Office of the General Counsel.

Under the proposed bills, the Justice Department would handle many of the areas listed by AMS and the General Counsel as justification for the additional money. AMS had asked for an increase of $596,000 and the General Counsel requested an additional $621,000.

Concerning this latter amount, LMA said it saw no need for the Office to hire an additional 18 attorneys and four clerical personnel, especially since the Office has already been relieved "of unnecessary tasks" related to rate making by last year's tariff deregulation bill.

In addition, LMA will support legislation which would greatly lessen time spent by attorneys in the General Counsel's office on intra-agency appeals of matters involving marketing businesses.

The statement was delivered on behalf of LMA President Richard L. Nock, Transactions Risk Board Chairman Loran Casey and General Manager C. T. 'Tad' Sanders.

WHAT'S NEW

MULTI-PURPOSE, STEEL REINFORCED FILM

Key-Lite, a steel reinforced film manufactured by Keystone Group, is adaptable to a wide variety of uses around the farm. Use it year 'round to construct windbreaks; winterize animal confinement areas; or to cover stockpiled materials, says the manufacturer.

In the garden, Key-Lite can be used to build inexpensive cold frames to protect seedlings.

Rust resistant Key-Lite is made of 20-gauge multi-directional wire, fully laminated between 2 layers of ultra violet stabilized polyethylene film giving it a 5 mil thickness.

Available in convenient 25 and 100-foot rolls, the film cuts easily with ordinary utility scissors. And, it's reuseable.

Key-Lite is a registered trademark for Keystone Group's steel reinforced film

International trade conference set

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's annual statewide conference on international trade, the Pennsylvania International Trade Conference, is scheduled for April 29 through May 1 in Hershey. Stanhope S. Browne, PITC Chairman, stated that both the new-to-export company as well as the internationally-experienced company would profit by attending this fourth annual PITC.

A special session on the People's Republic of China will highlight expanded trade opportunities in that country.

The three-day program of workshops and panels is now designed to involve all levels of international business.

Land use, transportation, and milk parity

CHERRY HILL, N.J. – Legislation on land use, transportation and milk parity are priority issues which will be considered by the U.S. House and Senate Agriculture Committees in the next few months, according to staffers who spoke to more than 300 agricultural and government leaders from the ten Northeastern states here at the Northeast Agricultural Leadership Conference.

William Lesher of the Senate Agriculture Committee staff was more pessimistic than his counterpart on the House Agriculture · Committee about chances for federal funding for State programs to preserve farmland.

Lesher said he doesn't believe there is any way Congress will pass a bill with a large amount of money to be used by States for a purchase of development - easements program.

"I think the best you can expect is for the federal government to get its house in order," Lesher said. "All of the federal agencies are going to have to consider the impact of what they do on farmland There's not a government policy in the world that can create more land"

Lesher said the key to saving farmland rests in effective use of rural development programs, since the alternative – limiting the amount of land American citizens can own – is politically unacceptable.

Anita Brown of the House Agriculture Committee staff said that she believes her committee will look much more favorably on the proposed Agricultural Lands Retention Act recently introduced by Representative James Jeffords of Vermont than it did upon similar legislation introduced by Jeffords during the last session of Congress.

Funding proposed in the previous bill, which failed to get out of committee, was considerably more than the $20 million for each of three years now being recommended.

"I'm not as pessimistic as Mr. Lesher," Ms Brown said following a panel discussion · But he does have a point If it's very costly it'll be difficult, because Congress is getting very conservative about spending large amounts of money for new programs.

Peggy Wheeler, a former congressional staff member who now works with rural development programs in the Community Services Adminstration, sounded a note of optimism about the mood of Washington decision-makers regarding agricultural issues.

"There are changes going on," she emphasized. ' Not only is there a feeling that we can change things, but there is recognition that we can't wait a long time to do so. Some things have to happen soon."

Ms. Wheeler said that in Washington, as well as the rest of the country, there is a split of opinion about the federal role in resolving agricultural issues.

"There are those who are striving to maintain the status quo, and there are those who are worried about the present agricultural structure who know that big changes are needed," she said. More people in Washington are realizing that they don't have all the answers and are looking to the State and local level for help, she added.

When asked if the Administration will support such legislation, Lynn Daft of the White House Domestic Policy Staff, who was the principal speaker at a dinner for the NALA conference, said that the federal role in land use is yet to be determined, but that agriculture appears to be the place to start.

'No farmers, no food' was Nat. Ag Week theme

NORTH HARFORD — On March 22, 1979 the North Harford Future Farmers of America observed National Ag week. The motto was "No Farmers No Food." Ten tractors were brought in by the Ag students and participating dealers in the area. They were displayed in front of the school all day.

Participating in the event was Brian Galbreath, Julie Amos, Sue Griffith, Kim Beichler, Charles Riestley, Patty Preston, Jan Walter, Charles Davis, Allen LeMaster, Robert Rutledge, Chuck Mitzel, Doug Smith, Howard Richerdson, Keith Comer, Bryan Brown and all of the F.F.A. members.

Also at the event were five young calves on display. A yearling steer was also displayed for observation by the students and there was much curiosity shown by the students and the event was a big success

The North Harford chapter F.F.A consists of 138 members this year. This is about 80 percent of all the students in Ag classes, here.

The Ag Department also has a school farm, consisting of 93 acres. Beef cattle and swine are raised here for students to observe, feed and learn how to care for animals Crops such as corn, barley and alfalfa are also produced to feed the livestock and for a cash crop. All the profit is invested back into the operation for improvements

In minimum till corn...
"Banvel® Herbicide does a better job."

Wayne McGinnis, White Hall, MD

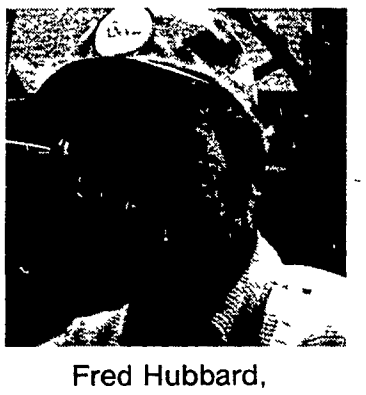
"Since we started using Banvel herbicide six or seven years ago, we hardly ever see morningglory anymore. We get very good control of thistle. Compared to 2,4-D, Banvel does a better job. It gives a broader range of control of some of the more resistant broadleaves."

Wayne McGinnis, White Hall, MD 600-700 acres in corn

Breck Debnam,
Chestertown, MD
2400 acres in corn

"We really started using Banvel herbicide heavy on our no-till weed problems four years ago. Canada thistle is our biggest problem . . . we went to Banvel herbicide because we got twisted corn with 2,4-D. You have more tolerance with the weather. Banvel is a lot safer than the old 2,4-D."

"It doesn't make corn brittle even though I use a regular sprayer. We spray Banvel herbicide right on top, when corn is six inches high. This is the right stage to hit morningglory. My major weed problem is cocklebur . . . and Banvel herbicide does a nice job on it. Control? Super!"



Fred Hubbard,
Federalsburg, MD

John 'Buddy' Burner,
Luray, VA
150-200 acres in corn

"The first time we used Banvel herbicide about four years ago, we got excellent results. Old 2,4-D has been a standby for years. But Banvel herbicide with 2,4-D gives much better control . . . with Banvel herbicide and 2,4-D we're getting weeds we did not get with 2,4-D alone . . . Banvel herbicide looks like the most economical way to control problem weeds."

For years, successful minimum-till corn producers have been depending on Banvel to stop tough, resistant, late emerging broadleaf weeds.

Banvel is very effective against hard-to-kill perennial broadleafs as well as such weeds as Canada thistle (seedlings), morningglory, pigweed, lambsquarter, ragweed, and annual clover. Tank-mixed with atrazine, Banvel knocks out horsenettle or combined with 2,4-D, it will even take care of the super-tough velvetleaf, Canada thistle and many more.

Late germinating broadleaf weeds need not lower your corn yields. Follow the lead of other successful Banvel users who have found Banvel herbicide is a much needed "success" ingredient for higher minimum-till corn yields.

Funds for ag research may be cut

WASHINGTON — Farmers and consumers both will be hurt if Congress follows Carter administration recommendations to cut federally funded agricultural research programs, an American Soybean Association (ASA) leader testified in Washington last month.

Nebraska soybean producer Eugene Glock told members of House and Senate committees that continuation and strengthening of soybean research in both production and utilization is essential to take full advantage of the potential of soybeans to provide a steady supply of high quality protein and versatile oil throughout the world.

Glock, who serves as ASA vice president, urged Congress to fully support "an aggressive funding of the Hatch Act and the Cooperative Extension Services as provided in the Smith Lever Act." Noting that land grant universities have a long history of communicating research findings to farmers through their extension and research activities, Glock said inadequate funding could weaken this proven and effective program.

Glock said soybean farmers were concerned over a proposed cut of over half a million dollars in special soy bean grants that had been part of the Cooperative Research SEA/USDA Budget.

"This funding is directed at research opportunities to improve the efficiency of soybean production," said Glock. "U.S. farmers produce 65 per cent of the world's soybeans and we export 53 per cent of the U.S. soybean crop. In order for soybeans to continue to meet export demands we must assure a steady supply and a profitable price for farmers.

Glock also urged Congress to restore $150,000 for cyst nematode research deleted in the administration budget.

"Nematodes cost soybean growers millions of dollars annually," said Glock. "Research is needed to find new and more efficient methods of developing resistant varieties and other control measures."

Soybean farmers don't like to see the proposed cutback for regional research centers Glock said, referring to a 20 percent reduction in funds for the Northern Regional Research Center in Peoria, Ill.

"Additional research is needed to develop industrial uses of soy oil as an alternative to petroleum based products for such uses as lubricants, coatings, and plastic products," he said. "This is particularly critical in view of today's petroleum shortages."

Glock said soybean production on a large scale in the U.S. is a relatively recent development. He said there is still a lot to be learned about efficient soybean production practices, resistant varieties, soybean pests and low energy cultural practices. He urged Congress to recognize research as an investment in the future of agriculture.

"Soybean farmers cannot wait until problems arise to develop the required expertise, new programs and facilities needed to solve the problem," Glock said. "Research needs continuing support and must be done in a continuous methodical manner to provide practical solutions to problems that continue to arise."

The administration's proposed budget for fiscal year 1980 was released late in January.

Soybean growers to exchange information with Red China

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — American soybean growers have agreed to exchange delegations and scientific personnel with the People's Republic of China in the areas of soybean research, production and utilization. Announcement of the exchange agreement was made by American Soybean Association (ASA) Chief Executive Officer, Dr. Kenneth L. Bader, at the conclusion of a week-long USDA Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) sponsored trade mission to the People's Republic of China.

According to Bader, the cooperative agreement on soybeans was part of an 11 point agreement put forth by six U.S. associations that cooperate with FAS in representing U.S. agricultural trade interests abroad. In addition to the American Soybean Association, participants included representatives of Western Wheat Associates, American Seed Trade Association, U.S. Feed Grains Council, National Renderers' Association, livestock cooperators and California fruit cooperators.

Bader explained that the intent of the USDA trade mission was to establish relationships with Peking officials in the ministry of agriculture, ministry of foreign affairs and other officials with regard to establishing cooperative arrangements for working together in the future.

"During our visits in the Peking and Canton areas of the PRC, the Chinese made it quite clear that agriculture is a top priority in the modernization program," he said, noting that the trip was tremendously successful.

FmHA guaranteed loan programs broadened

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An agreement was signed today designed to make more effective use of the Federal loan funds for agriculture and to smooth the transition of those farmers moving from the government's Farmers Home Administration credit programs to those of the farmer-owned Farm Credit System.

The agreement authorizes FmHA, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, to significantly expand its guaranteed loan programs to farmers through the Farm Credit System's Federal Land Banks and Production Credit Associations. FLBs and PCAs are member-owned credit cooperatives.

Previous joint lending authorities between FmHA and System lenders had been limited to guarantees on farm-related business loans and participation loans for farm ownership. The new agreement broadens the authorities to permit FmHA to guarantee FLB and PCA loans in the general categories – as established by FmHA – of Farm Ownership, Operating Loans, Economic Emergency, Disaster, Soil and Water, and Emergency Livestock.

Signing the agreement were Gordon Cavanaugh, administrator of the Farmers Home Administration, and Donald E. Wilkinson, governor of the Farm Credit Administration. FCA is an independent Federal agency which supervises the Farm Credit System.

In a joint statement, Cavanaugh and Wilkinson said that broadening of FmHA's guaranteed loan programs will "free up more Federal funds for use during periods of economic emergency and provide a mechanism to help farmers moving from federally backed credit to the use of private credit through the Farm Credit System."

Last year FLBs and PCAs provided nearly $30 billion in credit to farmers. FmHA made $4.9 billion in loans directly to farmers and guaranteed another $79 million in such loans. Of the total, $278 million was in participation loans of the FLBs and FmHA.

The agreement does not alter the basic structure of the lending programs of either organization. FmHA will still require applicants to seek credit from commercial sources on all but its Economic Emergency loans and FLBs and PCAs will continue to work toward meeting the entire credit needs of their borrowers. Provisions of the new agreement will be applied only when the economic condition of a borrower requires Federal assistance.

YOU NEED MORE THAN FERTILIZER..... YOU NEED A PLANNED PROGRAM

Soil "fertility balance" is becoming more important to local farmers every day. Your fertilizer must be tailored to meet the needs of your soil and cropping program in order to return maximum profits per acre. Improper fertilization can actually lower your yields and profits.

• ORGANIC PLANT FOOD CO. has the Agronomic Service you need to complete your program. We have one full time staff agronomist, one consulting agronomist - PhD, and well trained field men. We also have the plant flexibility to give you what you need.

International® Series 86 Tractors

...offering power and comfort far beyond anything you've ever experienced

This is the year to go International. Because new Series 86 tractors offer operating sophistication that exceeds that of any tractors ever built. Plus maintenance and service ease not previously achieved in farm tractors. Add in many other design advancements that sweep away preconceived ideas about tractors, and you're left with only one decision: What size International to settle on!

- NEW! Mid-mount Control Center. Puts you far forward, so your ride is better, handling is easier, visibility is unexcelled.
- NEW! Clear-view Design. You look out through large expanses of tinted safety glass. Lighting patterns, front and rear, are unequaled.
- NEW! Control System. Armchair consoles.. extra-convenient throttle . . power-assisted brakes and clutch . modular instrument cluster.
- NEW! World of Quiet. Interior sound levels are reduced dramatically.. as low as 80 dB(A) on some models

GOT TORQUE AMPLIFIER, CLUTCH AND PRESSURE PLATE PROBLEMS WITH YOUR IH TRACTORS?

There is a company in the West that has been rebuilding T.A. units for several years now and having excellent results. The basic reason for their success is the sprag clutch they use. In the areas where they have been selling, they even have IH dealers that use this unit almost entirely.

(1) They feel this sprag clutch is giving less problems than even IH's new beefed up unit because of the design of the sprags.
(2) This unit can be bought as individual parts which is many times all you need or as a complete renewed unit ready to set in your tractor.
(3) They have a warranty up to 2000 hrs., or 3 years . . . and . . .
(4) They don't cost any more and to most buyers they are costing less than from the big company. They offer same day shipment by UPS or Greyhound bus. They also have a program on rebuilt Dynalife clutches and pressure plates.

If you want more information write me and I will get the literature to you. Raymond B. Leaman, RD #1, Willow Street, Penna. 17584.

International® 110 Forage Box

This big box holds up to 6 tons of silage to keep you on the move in the field; then unload fast at the front end once you get to the silo.

- Choice of box sizes: 7 x 14 or 7 x 16 ft., with 4 or 6-ft. high sides.
- Extra-strong quality wood and steel construction, including thick, tight-fitting flooring.
- Big 16-in. cross conveyor auger dumps material fast, is not susceptible to breakage as with chain conveyors.
- For safety, boxes have sensitive trip bars that shut off mechanism should anyone climb on the side of the box.
- Boxes mount on standard wagon gears of 8-ton capacity and up.
- Many options, attachments available, including adjustable metal roof.

'Crafty' people to aid Pa. cooperative

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Writer

To be successful, a craftsman must be talented not only in his craft but also in finding a market for his product. This can be time-consuming and difficult.

The Pennsylvania Craft Cooperative offers an alternative to craftsmen by providing an outlet for their products. In the organizing stage for nearly two years, the Cooperative had its first sales for the Christmas trade last year.

Averill B. Shepps, Boiling Springs R2, was in on the ground floor of planning the crafts cooperative and is enthusiastic abouts its potential as a market for craftsmen.

She said, "There are many reasons why the Co-op makes sense. It's a struggle to market your product. You must act as a salesperson and you have to have the right kind of personality. I don't like to do it because it is very time-consuming."

Averill has been working in enamels for nearly 20 years, so she has had a lot of experience in marketing her wares, and organizing a successful business. "Making a living from crafts involves a lot more than just making something. You must be your own accountant. A lot of people fail because they are just not good at one part of the business."

She explains that attending craft fairs and shows is a good way to meet prospective customers, both wholesale and retail, but it is obvious that these fairs take precious time which could be used in actually producing crafts.

A lot of help in organizing the cooperative came from the Department of Agriculture's Economics, Statistics and Cooperative Services, with organizational skills being provided by the Cooperative Extension Service at Penn State. Averill said the impetus came when the owners of Old Bedford Village wanted crafts and couldn't find them easily. The question was raised about why there wasn't an organization which could help. At that point, Averill notes. "The timing was right for craftsmen."

Extension Specialist Mary Saylor became involved in the project, she says, "Because we have the communications system to do it. It was in the works for years and years." To get the co-op off the ground she said, "A handful of people did a great deal of work." She called the craftsmen "the best of the best, due to the strict jurying involved."

Quality control is built into the cooperative because a craftsman must send three pieces of his work for "jurying" before being accepted as a member. Averill explained that there is a point system involved, and judges are qualified people from other states. In their jurying of prospective members Averill said the judges made a lot of comments so craftsmen would try again.

Dr. Frank Ross, professor of art at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, is chairman of the Board of Directors and was instrumental in organizing the Cooperative. Ross noted that within the next several months a "jurying" will be held in southeastern Pennsylvania for interested craftsmen from this area. He said the Cooperative presently has most of its members in western Pennsylvania, but they hope to expand to other regions.

Asked why he felt an interest in the Co-op, Dr. Ross said, "I'm convinced it is worth doing or I wouldn't be doing it. I am a potter and teach that craft here and I feel some sense of responsibility to help find a market because I have been putting craftsmen out for the last 27 years. Now I feel its time I help them market their products." He noted that the goods found in the Co-op "represent a very high professional level."

Ross is proud of the fact that the Co-op has been organized to be self-supporting. "It is strictly professional."

Mrs. Saylor agreed, "There was never a statewide cooperative put together in such a thorough, businesslike manner. It is a well thought-out organization. It was a big undertaking and was patterned on farmer cooperatives." She noted that federal economists helped with the planning. It has been granted a bank loan which is guaranteed by the Farmers Home Administration, but there was no federal subsidy to get it started.

After months of study and organization, the Craft Co-op decided to get a store in business for the Christmas season last year. Their present location is one block from the Carnegie Museum of Art in Pittsburgh, an area which Averill describes as "undergoing change."

"We opened strictly for the Christmas business which is one of the highest sales time for crafts," Averill noted. The shop was opened with $100 worth of merchandise from each of the initial 75 members. A director has now been hired and both the retail and wholesale market will be investigated.

The craft cooperative's members embrace almost every kind of craft, from needle crafts to pottery to silver jewelry to wood and many others.

Averill explains her feelings about the growth in crafts in the last ten years. "For a while it was very attractive to young people in college because they felt free and were doing their own thing. Then they discovered that it involves a lot of work. The whole crafts movement is a reaction to industrialization. You can make or buy something truly unique and of better quality."

Being a craftsmen has many advantages, she said, "The independent part of it is very appealing. You are your own boss and can do what you want. But you must deal with the realities."

She added, "All craftsmen must be in love with their work." She said she has always been in a situation where she has to work eight hours a day, but says, "Motivation comes from within. You just get in and do it." In fact, she said it is sometimes difficult for her to do other things because she enjoys working at her craft.

Averill poses with a wall sculpture which she created from enamel and copper.

For eight months last year Averill lived in England and spent time studying crafts. "I learned the real revolution in crafts is happening right here. It is happening there too, but not in the same degree. It was marvelous to come back. I had a wealth of ideas." She was fascinated by the metal work there, calling it "tremendous. They have historically been distinct leaders in that field."

Averill's workshop, off the kitchen of her Cumberland County farm home, is filled with the tools of her trade, all categorized and neatly stacked on shelves and in drawers.

Enamels, she said, are known to people mostly from being on the outside of washing machines. Her enamels are made especially for art work. She pointed out that enamel will fuse to any kind of metal, and explained that if there are impurities in the metal it will discolor. Brass and zinc discolor easily, but the best metals to work with are silver, gold and copper, which she uses extensively.

She makes the process all sound simple as she demonstrates her technique in making trays and jewelry, and it is clear that she has a deep understanding of her craft. She is as handy with a welding torch as with her kiln, and explained that it helps to have a science background. "The scientific method is extremely valuable as a discipline. She has a degree in geology and art from Smith College and did one year of graduate work in geology at the University of Illinois.

When she first became interested, she said there were not many people doing enameling and it was hard to find a teacher. She took a class at a program sponsored by the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen (because the class she wanted wasn't available) and said, "I fell in love with it."

Now, she said, "I like to make work available to people and educate them to what it is." She has taught workshops through the Harrisburg Craftsmen, which is a chapter of the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen. She also belongs to the American Crafts Council, adding, "It is to every craftsmen's benefit to join a craftsmen's guild to meet and work with other craftsmen."

She is a willing worker in craft shows and fairs and has been active in the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts and the Harrisburg Arts Festival.

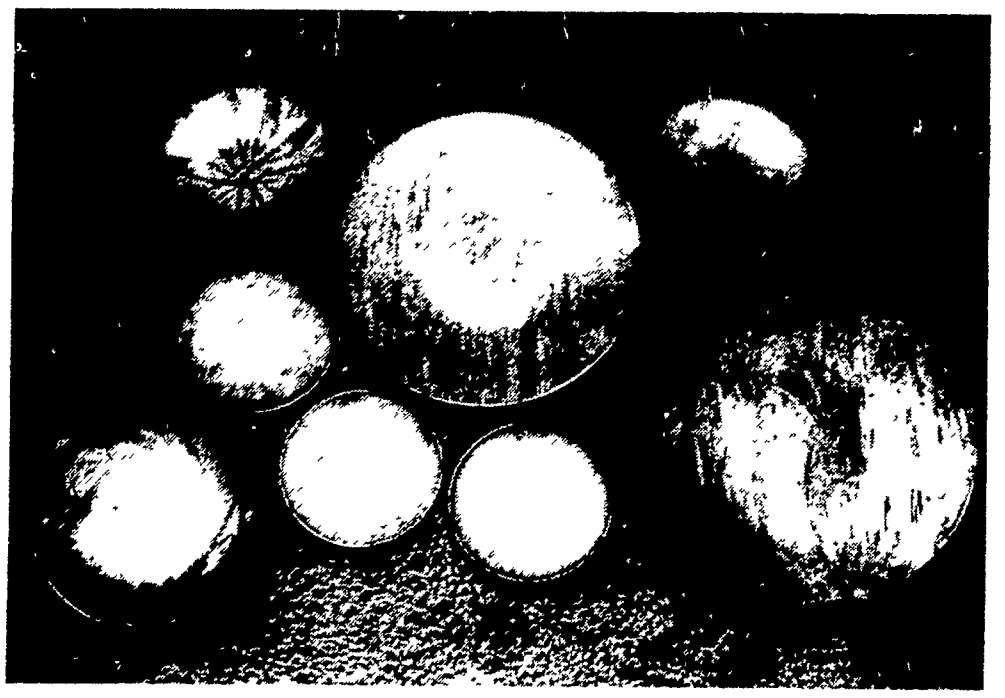
Averill creates a lot of jewelry, saying, "Jewelry sells best and is the most appealing over all."

She also creates trays and bowls, up to 12 inches is the largest her kiln will accommodate. She says these items have been "selling better."

Many of her plates are one of a kind, and she said she never sketches the design first. "I have an impression in my mind that I'm trying to capture." The finished product may require six to seven firings. "You gradually build up design and colors. Everything you do shows."

She also makes wall sculptures in which she puts to work her welding techniques.

While Averill is looking forward to having the Co-op take over some of her marketing, she says she will never give up completely her marketing her own products. "It's important to get people's reactions, and I like meeting the public."



Wall sculpture can take many forms and appearances. Here are a few samples of Averill's work.

Coming home from a two week long honeymoon to find that your farm home lies very close to the ten mile radius line of the Three Mile Island nuclear electric plant was a different experience indeed. While memories of Florida still floated in my head, the crisis at hand was enough to quickly sober me up and bring my feet down to earth.

Listening to the news, I was given the impression that there might be a chance that the land, animals, and 50 acres that I had learned to love while growing up might all be sacrificed and I was powerless to do anything about it. While others worried about getting family members out to a safe place, we were fortunate in the fact that we were able to devote our main energies into plans to remove some of the more valuable livestock if the situation would worsen Friends came to our aid by opening their barns and offering to share their shelter, while we determined possible plans to get the most animals to safety in the shortest amount of time

The love of friends and relatives was again demonstrated as many of those who had gathered only two weeks ago to share in our joyous event, now anxiously tried to call on snarled and overloaded phone lines to determine that the family was okay

But the worse experience by far was the mind-numbing fear that grips you in the pit of your stomach and refuses to let you go You tell yourself over and over again that everything will be fine, there is nothing to worry about, and then, with a fresh shock, the vision of what everyone was saying that could happen would jump into your mind, only to leave you quaking inside. And yet to all who see you, you must appear cool and calm.

Our family was not among those that left the homestead, nor even packed suitcases, although I think each of us knew that if it came down to the line, what would would be grabbed to take along, and where we would head. But the concept of leaving behind all the treasured momentoes and possessions of a lifetime would and could not be absorbed So while each wondered their own private thoughts, and even occasionally voiced a question or opinion, life on the surface continued as near to normal as possible

As I write this, it is Tuesday, and for the first time in about a week, the news seems optimistic from Three Mile Island I'm smiling more today, and I don't feel as tense deep inside

But there is a part of me that knows life may never really be the same.

HOW TO TEMPER CHOCOLATE FOR COATING CANDY

Easter and chocolate coated eggs go hand in hand for many people. If you have trouble when it comes to coating candy, or if you have never tried to coat your own favorite fillings, here are some tips that will help you turn out beautiful and delicious chocolate coated candy.

Melt chocolate and vegetable shortening, not butter or margarine, in a straight-sided bowl (small mixer bowl) set in a pan of very warm water. Heat the chocolate to 108 degrees F. Do not allow the chocolate to go over 110 degrees. Remove the chocolate from the pan and stir with a rubber spatula to clean the sides to the bowl frequently so that all the chocolate is tempered.

Remove the bowl from the pan and continue to stir frequently until the chocolate cools to 80 degrees F. Keep the chocolate at 80 degrees F. for five minutes, stirring constantly to develop crystals for gloss.

Rewarm chocolate in a pan of warm water to 86 degrees F. and hold at that temperature for five minutes before dipping. It is very important to keep the chocolate at 86 degrees F. during the entire dipping process.

Dip room temperature confections or centers with a fork or fondue fork completely in melted chocolate, one at a time. Gently tap fork on the side of the bowl to remove excess chocolate.

[illegible] pan covered tray and chill 10 minutes in your refrigerator to allow chocolate to harden. Candies can then be handled as commercial chocolate-coated candies.

HAM FOR EASTER

Easter is coming and it is time to think about the festive Easter ham. Choosing a ham to fit your taste and your budget is not always easy. Once you have made your decision and the ham is in your grocery cart, maintaining its wholesomeness is up to you.

Ham, like all meat, naturally contains certain bacteria. Keeping it safe to eat means: storing it properly; cooking it thoroughly; and handling leftovers with care.

With the exception of small canned hams (not labeled "Perishable, keep under refrigeration"), and [illegible]dry cured ham such as country-style and Smithfield, all ham must be refrigerated before cooking.

For best quality, a cured Whole ham should be kept in the refrigerator no longer than seven days. Any cured ham cut smaller than a whole ham will keep in the refrigerator safely for three to five days. Unopened canned hams labeled "Perishable, keep under refrigeration" can be stored in the refrigerator up to six months without loss of quality.

Before you cook your Easter ham, read the label. Labels can be likened unto the table of contents because they tell us what is inside. Package labels should clearly identify the hams as "fully cooked" or "cook-before-eating."

Ham labeled "fully cooked" may be served just as it comes from the package without further heating because it has been fully cooked in the meat processor's oven. Should you desire to heat this ham before serving, the recommended internal temperature is 140 degrees F.

If there is no label, you must assume the ham should be cooked before serving. The cook-before-eating hams have been partially cooked by heating to a specified internal temperature in the meat processor's oven. For optimum flavor and tenderness, cook these hams to an internal temperature in the meat processor's oven. For optimum flavor and tenderness, cook these hams to an internal temperature of 160 degrees F. before serving.

Country-style ham or Smithfield, Virginia or Tennessee style hams, with their special cure and firm texture, need presoaking and boiling. Unwrap ham and soak 24 to 30 hours in cold water to cover; drain. Then place the ham in a large pan and cover with water. Bring the water to a boil and simmer, covered until tender (allow about 25 to 30 minutes per lb.), or until large bone in heavy end of ham becomes loose and protrudes. Remove ham; remove skin. If desired, score fat and top with your favorite glaze for ham and bake at 450 degrees F. for 15 minutes.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Generally funerals are a rather morbid subject. Yet, they are a reality and must be faced. Many people avoid them like the plague and that may be the reason that some are so poorly attended.

I'm speaking mainly of services for quite elderly persons who have outlived their relatives and friends. Even though the deceased may belong to a church with hundreds or thousands of members only a handful will attend the funeral.

I'm wondering if this is true because so many people are not free during the day or if possibly they're simply trying to avoid an unpleasant confrontation. Those who are bereaved usually appreciate the sympathy and concern of friends. Are we simply too busy with our own lives to bolster our relationship with grieving friends in their time of need?

I grant you that there are folks who look on a funeral as a great social event. In other words, an opportunity to visit with those who they haven't seen for ages. A friend told me that, as a child, her parents went to a funeral every Sunday even if they didn't know the deceased – they felt that they would surely know other people who also attended the service.

And, I too remember going to many services which lasted for hours. As a youngster, I probably squirmed through several preachers' sermons, and looked forward to the huge meal which was served in the basement of the church afterwards. There were long tables stretching from one side of the room to the other and all covered with an abundance of food. The name "funeral pie" is given to both raisin and prune pie, possibly because of their dark color which suggest mourning.

But today we don't always know who our relatives are and even less do we need to "visit" at funerals as we are a very mobile society.

Microwave courses given

WEST CHESTER – The Chester County Cooperative Extension Service of The Pennsylvania State University in cooperation with R.S. Green and Son, West Market Street, West Chester, will hold two Microwave courses. The series of three meetings will be held at two different times, one on Monday evenings April 23, 30 and May 7 from 7-9 p.m. And on Thursdays May 3, 10, 24 from 9:30-11:30 a.m. The courses will be held at the Extension office, 235 W. Market St., West Chester.

Included in the instruction will be basic cooking principles, actual meal preparation, discussion and demonstrations on how every member of the family can prepare food in this convenient appliance.

The workshops will be of interest to both microwave owners as well as those considering the purchase of one.

There is a small fee for the course and the instructor is Mrs. Jacquelyn Clark. Register by Monday, April 16; for further information contact Trudy Dougherty, Extension Home Economist at Extension office or call 215-696-3500 at 235 W. Market Street, West Chester.

Easter recipes brighten spring's outlook

Easter is coming and today's Home on the Range features such delightful additions to your menu as Easter Ham Deight as well as Easter Bunny Cookies. Readers can take their pick of the recipes to try for this holiday season.

Next week we will see cakes and frostings, with a wide host of different recipes to be included. On April 21, Early Salad Specialities will be featured, with reicpes to fill those hunger pains for the early crisp garden greens as well as some tempting alternatives for salads.

And the month of April will finish with soups and sauces, recipes to tempt your family for a lunch or part of dinner.

Varieties of muffins and biscuits will start off the month of May, and we're looking for many recipes for that theme. Recipes utilizing onions will follow on May 12, and the week of May 19 will be devoted to strawberry recipes as we anticipate that luscious crop growing towards its harvest time. And handy, easy picnic foods, for the week of May 26 will finish out that month.

Of course, June is Dairy Month, and that entire period will again be devoted to milk and milk product recipes. And it's really not too early top start thinking about which recipes you would like to send in for that theme either.

For a fresh as Spring approach to an Easter dinner, one can serve a festive center-cut ham slice and a frosty, creamy molded salad. Other ideas for Easter dinners and treats can be found in today's Home on the Range.

EASTER HAM DELIGHT

1 center-cut smoked ham slice, 1 inch thick whole cloves
1 cup herb seasoned bread stuffing
1 cup, 4 ounces, shredded Swiss cheese
½ cup crushed pineapple in unsweetened juice, drained
2 teaspoons dry mustard
¼ cup butter, melted

Diagonally slash fat edges of ham at one inch intervals to prevent curling; stud with cloves. Place ham on rack in shallow roasting pan. Bake in preheated 325 Degrees F. oven for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, toss together stuffing, cheese, pineapple and mustard. Add butter and toss lightly. Spoon mixture on ham and bake an additional 30 minutes. Makes six to eight servings.

BROWN SUGAR CRUMB CAKE

2 cups flour
2 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups brown sugar
6 tablespoons shortening
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt. Add the brown sugar, work in the shortening. Reserve one cup of mixture for crumbs. To the rest of the mixture, add the egg, milk, and vanilla. Place in loaf pan. Sprinkle with crumbs. Bake in 350 Degree F. oven for 45 minutes.

FROZEN ORANGE PUDDING

2 eggs
⅓ cup cold water
⅓ cup nonfat dry milk
little salt
¼ cup granulated sugar
6 ounce can frozen orange juice or tangerine juice, thawed

In small bowl, combine eggs, water, nonfat dry milk and salt. Beat with electric or rotary beater until light and fluffy; gradually add sugar and concentrate, beating until thick and lemon colored. Freeze. Makes eight servings.

BERRY PINK CLOUD

2 ounce package of dessert topping mix few drops red food coloring
2½ cups sliced, unsweetened strawberries
1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) diebetic packed pineapple chunks drained

Prepare the dessert topping mix according to package directions. Tint pale pink with a few drops of red food coloring. Fold in a little of the strawberries and pineapples; chill. Stir before serving. Add a little milk if the mixture is too thick. Trim with strawberries. Makes eight servings.

EASTER HOLIDAY PUNCH

1 can frozen orange juice (2 cans of water)
1 can frozen lemonade (2 cans of water)
1 can limeade (2 cans of water)
1½ cups confectioner's sugar
1 cup water
1 quart ginger ale

Mix the above ingredients together. Pour over ice cubes filled with cherries and add a few orange slices. When ready to serve, add one quart of ginger ale. Serve.

BAKED HAM DELIGHT

3 tablespoons melted butter
3 cups diced cooked ham
¼ cup finely chopped ham
¼ cup finely chopped onion
3 cups drained cooked sweet potatoes
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup pineapple, cut in half
⅓ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons butter

Combine all ingredients up to pineapple. Mix lightly. Bake in a greased eight inch square baking dish at 350 Degrees F. for 30 minutes. Remove from oven. Top with halved pineapple slices, sprinkle with sugar. Dot with two tablespoons butter. Broil until pineapple is slightly brown, about seven minutes.

SNOWY CHEESE SALAD

1¼ cups boiling water
1 package, 3 ounces lemon flavor gelatin
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
6 drops yellow food color
½ cup finely sliced green onion
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1¼ cups cottage cheese
½ cup whipping cream, whipped
¼ cup dairy sour cream sliced green onions
cherry tomatoes

Pour boiling water over gelatin, stir until dissolved. Stir in mustard, paprika, seasoned salt and food color. Chill until partially set. Fold in celery, onion and green pepper. Combine cottage cheese, whipped cream and sour cream. Fold into gelatin mixture. Turn into 4 ½ cup mold. Chill until firm. Unmold onto greens; garnish with sliced green onions and cherry tomatoes.

BUNNY'S COOKIES

1½ cup shortening
2 cups brown sugar
3 eggs
5 cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking soda
little salt
1 cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening and sugar, stir in the eggs. Sift in the flour, cinnamon, baking soda, and salt, and beat the mixture well. Dredge the nuts in a little flour and fold in. Shape into four rolls, wrap in waxed paper and chill in the refrigerator overnight. The next day, slice rather thin and bake at 325 Degrees F. for eight to 10 minutes or until brown.

HAM LOAF

1 pound fresh pork, ground
1 pound ham, ground
1 cup bread crumbs
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
¾ cup milk

Mix all the ingredients together. Shape the mixture into a loaf and bake at 350 Degrees F. for 1½ to two hours. After the first hour, pour one cup of tomato juice over the top of the loaf, if desired.

EASTER SUGAR BALLS

6 ounce package semi-sweet chocolate pieces
3 tablespoons light corn syrup
1½ cups orange juice
2½ cups crushed vanilla wafers
½ cup confectioner's sugar
1 cup nut meats, finely chopped

Melt chocolate pieces over hot, not boiling water, remove from heat, add corn syrup and orange juice. Combine the vanilla wafers, confectioner's sugar, and finely chopped nut meats, then add to the chocolate mixture and mix well. Let stand for about 30 minutes to an hour, then form into one inch balls and roll in granulated sugar or colored sugars. Let the balls ripen in a covered container at least several days. Will keep in a cool place for two to three weeks.

LUDWIG'S CORNER – According to Trudy Dougherty, Extension home economist with the Pennsylvania State Extension Service, plans are under way for Spring Homemakers' Day on Thursday, April 19, from 10 a.m. until 2:15 p.m. The day's events will take place at the Ludwig's Corner Fire Hall, Glen Moore, on Route 100 about 6 miles north of Route 30 and one-fourth mile north of the intersection of Routes 100 and 401.

Mr. and Mrs. William Buffington will share their experiences and impressions of "China: Its Customs and Culture" in a slide-talk presentation. They recently returned from a visit to this country.

Mrs. John Chatley, Jr. will discuss "My Hobbies"-Antiques and Anecdotes. She will tell of the fun and rewards of being a collector.

Homemakers throughout the county are invited to display their own treasures. There is still some space available if you would like to show your collection. Call the Extension office at 215-696-3500 as soon as possible.

Musical selections by students from West Chester State College Music Department will be part of the day's presentations.

The luncheon will include soup, sandwich, choice of two meats, relish tray, dessert and beverage.

Deadling for registration will be April 10. There is a small fee for the day's events including lunch. For further information contact the Extension office, 235 W. Market St., West Chester or call 215-696-3500.

Chester Co. Homemakers Day planned

PEANUT BUTTER EGGS

1½ pound confectioner's sugar
¾ pound butter
½ peanut butter
1 small can evaporated milk
½ box chocolate

Mix the sugar, butter, peanut butter, and evaporated milk. Form eggs, place in cookie sheet and cover with waxed paper. Chill in refrigerator. Melt the chocolate and a small amount of paraffin. Put egg on a fork and dip in chocolate. Keep chocolate pan in hot water. Chill eggs.

Junior Cooking Edition

Mouth watering Easter candy, cakes and cookies, recipes are featured by our junior readers in this week's Junior Cooking Edition.

Just a hint for when you decorate your Easter eggs. Did you know that if you draw a design on your eggs in white crayon, or clear wax, the dye won't stick there and you'll have a pretty design. There are a lot of ways you can decorate your eggs, be creative and have lots of fun.

Next week, April 14, our junior readers will have their custard recipes published. The following weeks will include puckery lemon treats, after school snacks, and breakfast cereals.

Send your complete recipes to Lancaster Farming, Junior Cooking Edition, Box 366, Lititz, Pa. 17543. Include your name, age and address, Recipes should be in our office one week in advance.

A small gift will be sent to you when we publish your recipes. Our way of saying thanks at Lancaster Farming.

The recipes appearing in Junior Cooking Edition have not been tested by Lancaster Farming.

EASTER EGGS

1 cup graham crumbs
1 cup peanut butter
confectioners' sugar
semi-sweet chocolate

Mix crumbs, peanut butter and enough confectioners' sugar to handle and form eggs. Shape into eggs and coat with melted chocolate. Put on waxed paper until chocolate hardens.

SILVER WHITE CAKE

2 1/4 cups flour
1 1/3 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup shortening
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk
3 egg yolks

Sift dry ingredients into a bowl. Add shortening, vanilla, 2/3 cup of the milk. Beat for two minutes, or 300 strokes. Add remaining milk and egg whites which have been beaten to form soft peaks. Bake at 350 degrees F for 30 minutes.

EASTER CANDY

2 1/2 cups granulated sugar
1/2 cup white syrup
1/2 cup cold water
2 egg whites
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup maraschino cherries, cut up
semi-sweet chocolate
confectioners' sugar

Boil granulated sugar, syrup, and water until it forms a hard ball in cold water. Beat the egg whites and add to the above. Beat this mixture until light. Then add to one half of the mixture 1 cup shredded coconut. To the other half add 1 cup of chopped nuts and maraschino cherries. Mix as soon as cool enough. Mold into egg shapes, using confectioners' sugar to mold them. Cover with melted semi-sweet chocolate. Place on wax paper until cooled.

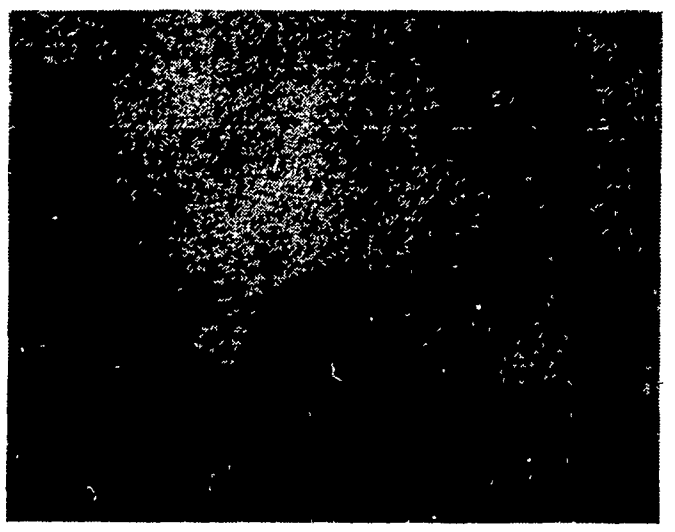
MASTITIS



SOMATO-STAPH®
The vaccine preferred by dairymen for its outstanding protection against Staphylococcus aureus.

The estimated annual loss from mastitis exceeds $1.2 billion. Almost 70% of this loss is attributed to reduced milk production. Other losses include premature culling, discarded milk and veterinary expenses.

Although there are several mastitis causing organisms, staphylococci organisms are found to be the most common cause of mastitis problems. And of these, Staphylococcus aureus is the most serious.

That's why thousands of dairymen have made SOMATO-STAPH® a vital part of their mastitis prevention program. All over the country, nearly 14 million doses of SOMATO-STAPH have been administered to reduce and prevent Staph aureus infections.

Stop Staph. aureus before it starts. The SOMATO-STAPH program begins with your heifers.

Replacement heifers represent your income for the future That's why they should be vaccinated with SOMATO-STAPH beginning at six months of age This allows time for them to build and maintain a high level of immunity against Staph aureus infections — before those heifers become part of your milking herd.

Continue SOMATO-STAPH protection during lactation.

As heifers move into your milking herd, SOMATO-STAPH remains an essential part of your mastitis control program SOMATO-STAPH keeps the herd more productive, helping prevent mastitis damaged quarters and giving added protection during the dry period And you can administer SOMATO-STAPH even during lactation, without discarding milk

Lab tests and herd studies prove it's the vaccine dairymen count on.

In recent tests, cows were given a direct infusion of Staphylococcus aureus organisms As the graph shows, cows vaccinated with SOMATO-STAPH experienced an insignificant incidence of Staph. aureus caused mastitis. Meanwhile, non-vaccinated cows developed chronic staphylococcal mastitis

Compare the effectiveness of SOMATO-STAPH.

On day 1 all cows were infected with Staphylococcus aureus organisms

Remember that good hygiene and management is essential to any successful mastitis prevention program. That includes regular teat dipping with Anchor CHAPLESS TEAT DIP (chlorhexidine 0.5%). And the use of UDDERMATE, the product of choice in treating mastitis caused by penicillin-resistant strains of Staphylococcus aureus.

HERE'S PROOF SOMATO-STAPH® WORKS.

For years SOMATO-STAPH® has been a leader in the prevention and control of mastitis. But the best proof we can offer comes from a growing number of satisfied dairymen. Here's what their letters are saying.

CALIFORNIA - "We have been using SOMATO-STAPH for three years. Since your representative started us on the program we are experiencing a lot less mastitis problems. We seem to be controlling our sudden outbreaks a lot sooner now."
Leyendekker Dairy - Visalia, Calif.

PENNSYLVANIA - "We found the Staph. aureus vaccine very effective in helping to control our mastitis problem."
Mr. & Mrs. Thomas Zacherl - Sligo, Pa.

WISCONSIN - "I was extremely pleased with the results of your product. I found it to be most effective."
George Gorka - Boyd, Wis.

"We have had very good results with this product. I was the first one in our county to vaccinate for mastitis many years ago."
Bernard Walter - Watertown, Wis.

TENNESSEE - "I believe SOMATO-STAPH is helping staph flareups ... and my high leukocyte count dropped. This is a good program and thanks for the protection I am receiving."
William C. Bryant - Murfreesboro, Tenn.

IOWA - "We do see results using SOMATO-STAPH and plan to stay with the program."
Mr. & Mrs. Merrill Gruber - Monona, Iowa

KENTUCKY - "We just want you to know, the SOMATO-staph program lowered our abnormal milk count from 3,800,000 to 550,000 in two weeks. Thanks again for your products."
Mr. & Mrs. Robert J. Wilson -Milltown, Ky.

SOUTH DAKOTA - "We have used this vaccine for several years and find it very effective."
Bernard Leichtenberg - Iroquois, S.D.

Here's a gardening tip

NEWARK, Del. – All gardening begins with the soil. And good soil is an absolute must if you want to have a successful garden.

This is especially true for a vegetable garden, says University of Delaware Extension garden specialist Dave Tatnall. The soil should be fertile, deep, crumbly and well-drained. It should also be reasonably free of stones and other debris.

You can improve the soil and make it more productive by working in organic matter, lime and fertilizer. Organic matter improves soil structure and drainage. It may also add valuable plant nutrients.

Sources of organic matter include animal manures – especially horse and cow manures –, mushroom soil, peat moss and garden compost. Do not, however, use sewage sludge from treatment plants on your vegetable plot. This material can contain large amounts of heavy metals and soil scientists are still not certain whether such toxic materials can be taken up by plants, rendering them harmful to eat.

Lime helps to maintain proper soil acidity, improves soil structure and supplies calcium and magnesium needed by plants. Ground or granulated limestone is the form recommended for garden purposes.

Fertilizer is needed to supply the nutrients required by plants for proper growth. A complete chemical fertilizer is usually recommended. Such a fertilizer contains nitrogen (N), phosphorus (P), and potash (K), listed as percentages in that order. A 5-10-10 or a 5-10-5 fertilizer is best for vegetables, says Tatnall. You can also use an organic fertilizer, but this will usually be lower in nutrient content than a commercially prepared fertilizer.

To determine how much lime and fertilizer your soil actually needs, you should have it tested. Penn State University and the University of Delaware offer a soil testing service for a small fee. You'll need one bag for each sample of soil you wish tested. These are available from county Extension offices.

SUGAR COATED POP-CORN

4 quarts popped corn
1 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon butter
3 tablespoons water
food coloring

Boil sugar, butter, and water for five minutes. Pour on corn. Stir. To make different colors add food coloring to take place of some water.

EASTER EGGS

1 package (3 ounces) any flavor gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1/2 cup cold water
8 egg shells*

*To remove yolks and whites from egg shells, make a small hole in one end of each egg. Drop the yolks and whites out of the egg. Save insides. Rinse the inside of the shell with cold water. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water. Place egg shells in egg carton with the hole up. Pour the gelatin into the shells, using a pitcher. Chill over night. Crack the shells slightly, dip into warm water and peel off. Serve in "nests" of green tinted coconut or lettuce. The left over egg yolks and whites can be used in scrambled eggs for Easter breakfast.

CARMELIZED POPPED CORN

8 quarts popped corn
1 cup roasted peanuts
1½ cups brown sugar
1/4 cup granulated sugar
3/4 cups molasses
1 stick margarine
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon baking soda

Put brown sugar, margarine, salt and pepper into a saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil for five minutes. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla and baking soda. Pour over freshly popped corn and peanuts which have been mixed in a very large container. Mix well and turn out into two large pans or baking sheets. Place in a 250 degrees F oven for one hour. Stir corn occasionally while in oven. When cool, kernals can be easily separated. Store in light container.

People have weird ideas about pressure cookers, but...

By LYNNE HERSHEY
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — More and more modern cooks-in-a-hurry are depending on microwaves to get dinner on the table in a flash. According to market research, there'll be a microwave oven in one out of every four homes by 1980.

Maybe so, and maybe my home will eventually be among them – but not quite yet, thank you.

I have absolutely nothing against microwave ovens. Anything that will get you out of the kitchen faster is O.K. in my book. But ever since I was a tender bride who didn't know a biscuit from a brisket, I've been cooking good things in a hurry with an appliance you don't hear much about these days – a pressure cooker. You may not have one, but I'll bet your mother or grandmother did – not the big pressurized monster used to process home-canned fruits and vegetables, but the smaller pressure saucepan that can get fresh snap beans tender in less than three minutes, and cook a beef stew in twenty.

My sturdy, reliable four-quart Wear-Ever is like Mae West – it may be an oldie but it's still a goodie. It was one of the first gifts my husband ever gave me. His mother depended on hers, so naturally our kitchen had to have one too.

The vent that spouted steam like a geyser, and the jiggling, sputtering metal weight made me nervous at first, but after a few trials I fell in love with the pan and have used it almost daily ever since. It has required no maintenance except for an occasional new rubber gasket. Oh yes, the heavy handle finally split after about 18 years. However, my husband replaced it with a short length of copper pipe he happened to have lying around, so my pressure saucepan is just as serviceable as ever, although it does look rather peculiar.

People have some weird notions about pressure cookers – mainly that they are going to explode any minute. Nonsense! Used correctly, a pressure saucepan from a reputable manufacturer is as safe as a steam iron. In fact it was designed with safety in mind. It's not going to blow up, and you can only burn yourself if you're really careless.

I'm certainly no Julia Child in the kitchen. She's an artist and I'm a klutz. The only food-related activity I'm an expert at is eating. Nevertheless, I have never had an accident or a near-miss with my pressure saucepan. I've never burned myself or the food. And the walls and ceiling of my kitchen do not look like a chemistry lab. That should be proof enough for anybody.

A pressure cooker has lots of advantages. It's wonderfully fast. You can cook a beef pot roast in about 45 minutes that would require three hours in the oven or on top of the range. A large roast chicken will be done in half an hour, baked apples in about four minutes. Less expensive cuts of meat become tender and moist in a short time.

Because pressure cooking is quick, it saves fuel. Extension home economists also point out that it conserves nutrients and flavor because only a small amount of liquid is used.

There's one more big plus -- cost. You can get a pressure saucepan for 15 to 20 dollars. That amounts to less than a dollar a year in my case, and my saucepan has a lot of good years left. You can't beat an investment like that!

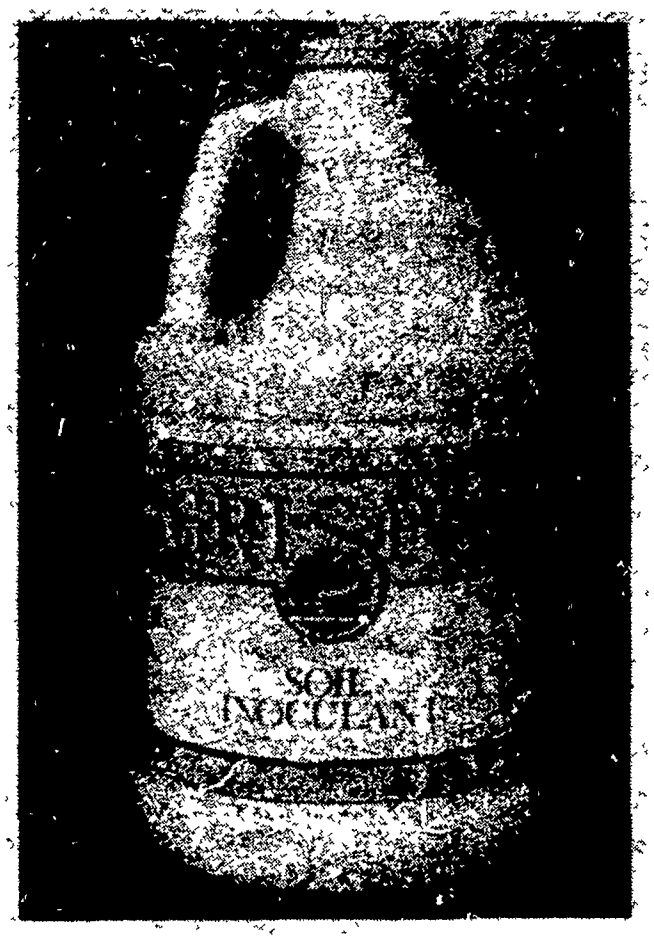
NOW IS THE TIME TO APPLY YOUR SOIL CONDITIONER AND AGRI-SPON



Agri-Spon is a biological soil inoculant that stimulates the natural processes in the soil. It helps increase organic matter, build humus and accelerate the nitrogen cycle vital to plant growth. Agrispon is not derived from petroleum products. It is totally natural, totally safe, and is designed to help protect and conserve our natural resources.

This Soil Conditioner is an organic material which improves soil texture so that water, fertilizer and air can reach the root system. In this way, it assists the growth of healthier, more vigorous plants with stronger and deeper root systems. (Due to merger of Arobic Research and Marketing, new label will read as follows: Agri II Soil Conditioner).

'Health food' craze is really a fad

SOUTHAMPTON — Food fads come and go just as in fashion and, says Dairy Council Inc., Southampton, one of the biggest fads currently in vogue is the "health food" craze.

But these so-called "health foods" are no more or less healthful than conventional foods which may often cost less.

Many people eat "health foods" with the impression these foods contain more nutrients than conventional foods. In most cases, this just isn't true.

If you are a "health food" enthusiast, here are some facts you should know about "natural" foods: foods packaged without chemical additives or preservatives are no more healthful than others. Food additives are thoroughly tested for toxicity, more so than many "natural" substances in foods. Antioxidants prevent rancidity; preservatives prevent foods from becoming toxic from spoilage. Processing and refining make certain foods more digestible. When refining removes some nutrients, they can be restored with nutrient additives.

When discussing "organic" foods – long-term research shows no differences in nutrient composition between foods grown with animal or synthetic fertilizers – plants can't tell them apart.

When it comes to "natural" vitamins – manmade vitamins are utilized by the body exactly the same as natural vitamins. The chemical formulas are the same.

When you talk about massive vitamin doses – excessive and prolonged self-dosing of vitamins, such as vitamins A and D, can be dangerously toxic. Vitamin preparations and other reliable nutritional supplements are prescribed by physicians for specific health problems. Most people, however, can count on food to provide the nutrients necessary for health, as long as they eat a balanced diet.

Scientific findings on vitamin E, so far, disclose no special curative or age-retarding properties or specific sexual powers for vitamin E.

What about vegetable oils and calories: Each gram of fat yields nine calories. Vegetable-fat frozen desserts and table fats are equal in calories to those made from animal fat. They are equally digestible.

Although excess fat and flabby muscles have been called cellulite, it is nothing new or different, just body fat. Wherever stored, body fat is all the same thing.

On being a farm wife

—And other hazards

By JOYCE BUPP

One of the great rewards of April is to hang clean, wet laundry on the wash line to flap and dance dry in the sunny breeze.

While hanging out the wash keeps fingers busy, it takes little mental concentration, allowing the senses to soak up more enjoyable sights and sounds.

A robin sits high in the maples, singing shrill notes from his rust colored breast. Up along the edge of the house roof, squabbling sparrows fuss over some domestic dispute.

Three cats arrive to sit on the soft grass, washing their whiskers and casting an occasional thoughtful glance toward the noisy birds. Socks, half-grown but still a kitten at heart, tries to crawl in the basket and bats at my hand as I sort soggy clothes.

Shep and Fritz stretch themselves out in the sun, propping their heads on front paws while they nap and dream whatever it is that dogs dream about.

A pair of mallards splashes into the pond and begin turning bottoms up as they scour the murky mud bottom for tender breakfast tidbits.

Heifers return to the far pasture, filing down the walkway in a neat, single-file line. One bossy individual tries to shove ahead, reminiscent of youngsters headed into the school lunch line.

George, the mailman, waves as he passes and leaves a stack of bills and junk mail in the box. Another George pilots the lumbering milk tanker down the roac and backs it to the milkhouse to collect our two-day gathering from the dairy cows.

By the time I carry out the second load, some of the first-hung items have dried. As I take down and fold that clean, fresh laundry, I can't resist yielding to the compulsion to hug a soft bath towel to my face and breathe in that indescribably and wholly satisfying smell.

Don't believe any of those laundry-aid advertisements that promise to make your laundry smell April fresh.

Only April itself can perform that miracle.

Adams Co. dairy princess contest set

NEW OXFORD – Plans for the 1979 Dairy princess pageant were advanced when the committee met Saturday, March 24, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Klinger, New Oxford R2. Chairperson Elaine Klinger presided. The purpose of the Dairy Princess program is to promote milk and dairy products.

The pageant will be held Saturday, June 16, in the auditorium of the Upper Adams High School in Biglerville.

Contestants are to be Pennsylvania residents who have completed the Junior year of high school and will not reach her 22nd birthday by December 31. They must be a daughter of a dairy farmer, a dairy farm manager, herdsman, or dairy farm owner during the current year, or be owner of more than one dairy animal prior to May 1, 1979. She must be single, never married and cannot marry during her reign. Interested contestants may obtain an application from Elaine Klinger.(624-8550). These should be returned by May 16, 1979.

The local winner will attend the Dairy Princess Training Seminar in July. She will have her expenses paid by Atlantic Dairy Association and the Keystone Milk Marketing Council, Inc. while at the State Pageant in Harrisburg, September 24 and 25. As Adams County Dairy Princess, she will have the opportunity to make appearances throughout the county, serving the dairy industry for the year of her reign.

Members of the committee will contact dairy farmers and supporting agricultural services for financial support of the county dairy princess pageant.

Mrs. Jean Gitt, Littlestown R2, will head the refreshments committee. Mrs. Audrey Ridinger, Biglerville R2 will chair the decorations committee which is to follow the national milk promotion theme "Milk Is The One". Yvonne Mummert, East Berlin R2, will prepare the program. Mrs. Cindy Zepp, New Oxford R2, will obtain gifts for the contestants. Dawn Bodenberg will be responsible for publicity. Elaine Klinger and Carol Zepp will secure the entertainment and set up the tea.

Pesticide warnings are real

NEWARK, Del. — Every user of pesticides must read, understand and follow all directions and precautions given on pesticide labels, says Delaware extension agricultural chemicals specialist John McDaniel. Each of these products is intended to have some sort of harmful effect on living creatures. Mankind is part of life, so good sense warns that pesticides may harm people, too. This is true even with commonly used pesticides, the kinds almost every grower uses each year.

Lasso is the tradename for a very popular and effective weed killer. The label warns users that it may cause eye burns and skin irritation. Further, it states that Lasso may cause allergic skin reaction. The directions tell users to wear goggles or face shield and rubber gloves when handling Lasso. The label also warns that Lasso is combustible – it will burn -- so it should not be stored or used near heat or flame.

The label on the packages of Sevin Sprayable instructs users to wear long-sleeved shirts and to change clothes daily when using the product. The manufacturer, Union Carbide Corporation, puts this statement on the label for the user's protection.

Premerge, Dow Chemical's popular dinoseb formulation, is a highly toxic herbicide which has been widely used for many years. Its label tells the user to wear goggles and other safety equipment when pouring the concentrated product and at other times when contact is likely. Additional safety instructions are also spelled out.

These are simply three examples of widely used pesticides which can pass through the user's skin and make him ill, says McDaniel. Observation over the years indicates that many users of these pesticides do not heed all of these cautions each time they use the products. Quite likely some people become slightly ill from exposure to these and other pesticides. The illness may be no more severe than a headache, slight dizziness, or general tiredness. But strict attention to label directions will help prevent these health problems.

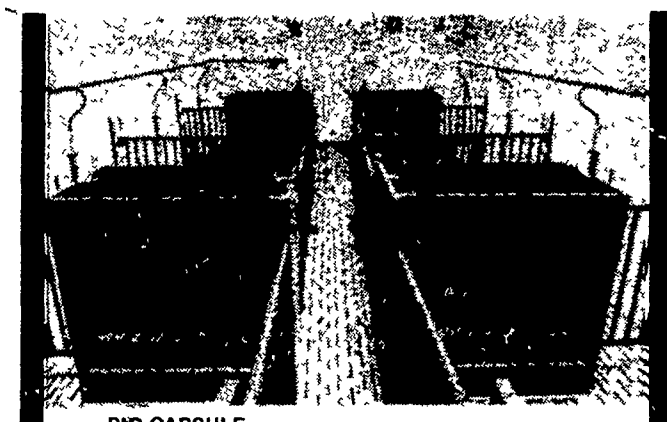
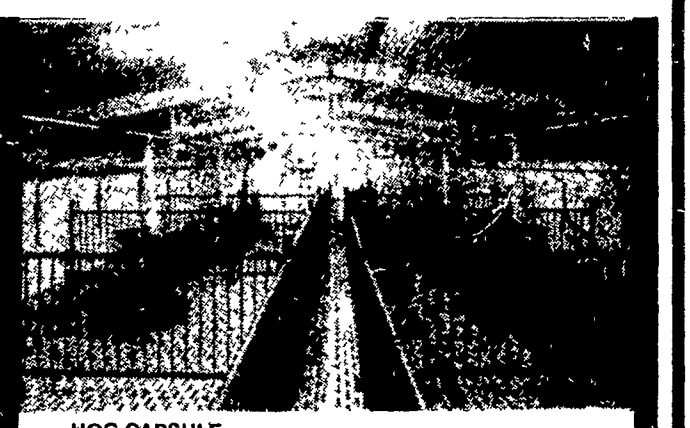
Make plans for a swine confinement building that is right for your operation.

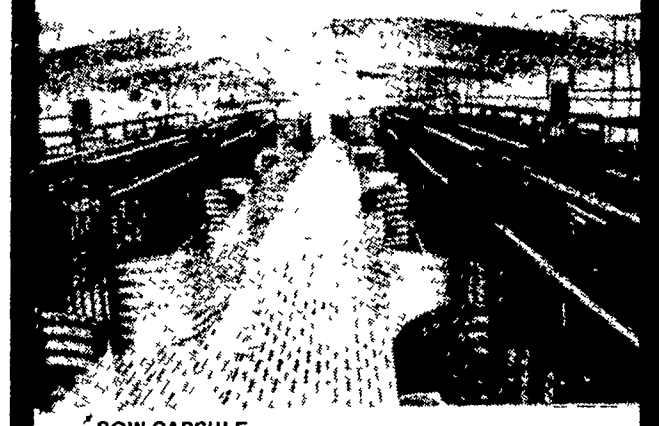
What an AG Best Capsule will do for you.
• Provide uniform air distribution. No drafts • Provide 2 environments within one environment for sows and pigs • Reduce feed wastage and cost • Reduce your labor and time • Reduce stress to a minimum • Provide comfort for the operator • Provide heavy insulation for less energy use • Provide all the tools needed for good management.
There are many Pig Capsule models for farrowing, growing and finishing. So plan on a building that is made right to do the right job for you



PIG CAPSULE
A controlled environment that can save more pigs There are models with 8 to 20 pens equipped with partitions feeders nipple waterers and slatted floors Nursery pens and growing pens and automated feed delivery systems are available



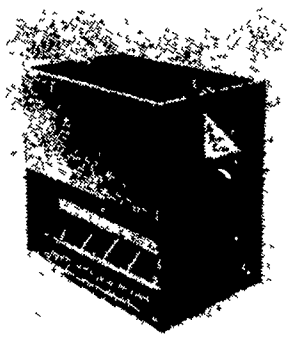
HOG CAPSULE
Clean dry and comfortable hogs can gain faster on minimum feed have less disease and are more profitable 8 or 10 pen models have vertical steel tube partitions a rotary feeder and 2 nipple waterers in each pen Automated feeding available

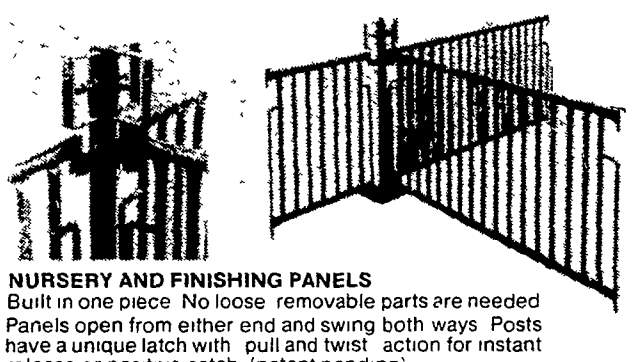


SOW CAPSULE
A healthy environment that helps wean more pigs per litter and cuts down on the labor needed to do the job There are models with 4 to 24 farrowing stalls that have built-in feeders watering cups and easily adjustable side panels

SOW-PIG CAPSULE
A good farrowing system for medium or small operations A farrowing building is combined with pig nursery pens You have choices of models from 4 farrowing stalls with 2 nursery pens to 16 stalls and 8 pens

The Ag Best nursery feeder has an expanded throat that helps eliminate packing and bridging An easy top adjustment regulates feed flow A step-back feeder design keeps manure from dropping in the trough Five partitioned feeding spaces on each side Capacity is 11 bushels Construction is 14-gauge welded steel





NURSERY AND FINISHING PANELS
Built in one piece No loose removable parts are needed Panels open from either end and swing both ways Posts have a unique latch with pull and twist action for instant release or positive catch (patent pending)

Hallowell addresses Lehigh farmers' association

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

SCHNECKSVILLE -- Addressing approximately half of the members of the Lehigh County Farmers' Association on March 24, Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hollowell stated that he still feels he is a neighboring farmer and is more comfortable in that role.

Hollowell then proceeded to tell the Lehigh farmers what he is trying to accomplish as agriculture secretary and what he plans to do in the future. Advising farmers to think of security bonds more like insurance he said he supported requirements to bond dairies. The speaker also said he is trying to preserve land and is pushing for increased agricultural exports.

Hollowell also stated that he wants to push Pennsylvania farm products. We have excellent products, he explained, and should be proud of them. Being located close to urbanized areas, the agriculture secretary noted the need for less energy to get Pennsylvania's products to market.

In concluding his brief exposé, Hollowell urged his fellow farmers to contact him whenever they have problems or suggestions, "My office door is always open, and I can be reached by telephone also, he assured his audience.

Also addressing the 160 PFA members was Leon Turner, national legislative committee chairman and membership chairman. Turner noted that Lehigh County made and surpassed their membership goal by four members and currently have 394 members in the county ranks.

Turner also briefed the members on a recent trip to Washington D.C. where he and other Pennsylvania Farmer Association members met with congressmen to personally discuss several issues concerning agriculture.

Paul Oswald, president of the Lehigh County Farmers Association, presents a gift to Penrose Hallowell.

Better understanding needed in nitrite issue

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

REHRERSBURG -- Speaking of the current controversy over nitrates and nitrites in cured meats, Allen Oser, Quality Control Hatfield Packing Company, stated "The problem is really one of education. People don't understand," he added.

Oser was addressing a swine education meeting sponsored by the Berks and Lebanon County Extension services, held March 20 at the Mid-Way Diner, just north of Rehrersburg.

"They don't realize how essential nitrates are to the industry," he continued. The issue needs public exposure and education given to the problem, he told the pork producers in attendance.

By banning nitrates and nitrites in cured meats, they will only be banning two per cent of the amount exposed to the human body, the pork men learned. Five hundred times more nitrosamines are produced in human intestinal tracts than can be found in fried bacon, the speaker related. "We should be dead now if nitrites are cancer causing or harmful to our health," Oser continued. "We have more exposure to nitrates through the environment than through cured meats" he explained.

Sighting studies on laboratory rats fed high levels of nitrates and nitrites, Oser assured the area pork producers that a person would have to eat 1500 pounds of bacon, the only cured meat product that nitrosamines can be found in), every day for the next seventy years to produce the level that caused cancer in rats. He also added that the rats used in some studies were cancer susceptable, that eight per cent of the population in question got cancer which were not fed nitrates.

"Working against the pork industry are the consumer activist groups and the Delaney Clause," Oser continued. Referring to the Delaney amendment in essence, he said that any chemical found to cause cancer can not be used as a food additive. It deals with absolutes, he explained, and there are no absolutes. When the law was written people did not have the technology of today which can find parts per billion which are very small quantities. "Floride and aspirin can also kill you if taken in large enough quantities," Oser added.

Speculating on the effects a nitrate ban could have on the pork industry, Oser first explained that presently pork is sold approximately 30 per cent fresh and 70 per cent cured. Without nitrates there would probably be an increase in fresh pork consumption to about 50 per cent, leaving the other fifty per cent of pork in question.

Pork bellies, which are used to make bacon would have to go for lard decreasing their worth tremendously. Hatfield estimates that if consumer consumption of fresh pork increased twice as much as presently consumed, the price of pork would have to increase 12 per cent for them to stay afloat. User also said that he had read somewhere that consumers could expect an increase in the price of food by about fifteen per cent because of a rippling effect through the entire food industry.

Re-emphasizing the safety of nitrates Oser again told the pork producers, "If the nitrites in cured meats would kill us, then the nitrites produced in our own bodies would have killed us already.

Also addressing the pork producers at this educational meeting were Herb Schick, secretary-treasurer of Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council; Larry Hutchinson, Penn State Extension veterinarian, and a panel of four area hog producers who discussed how they get their sows and gilts breed. These men were; Carl Cooper, Kempton; Melvin Huber, Boyertown; Leon Arnold, Lebanon; and Herb Schick, Kempton.

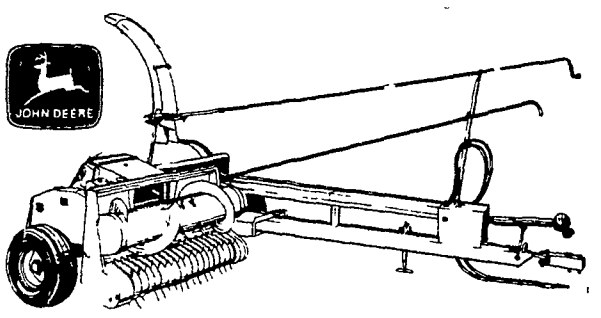
The new 3940 Powr-Mizer™ Forage Harvester . . . new cutterhead, new controls, more capacity

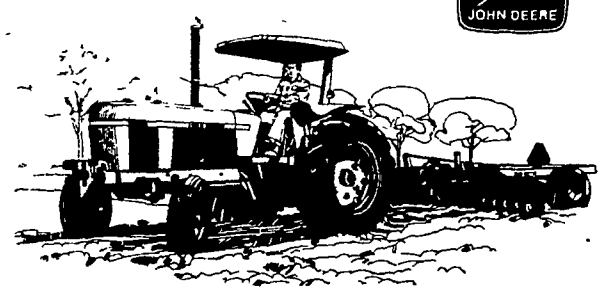


Now there's a forage harvester that squeezes extra work out of your tractor's horsepower. The new 3940 from John Deere. The 3940's power-efficient design begins with our new Dura-Drum™ cutterhead ... uneven forage doesn't stand a chance against its 36 segmented cutter knives. And if a knife gets damaged, you'll find it's easy and inexpensive to replace one of the short, segmented blades.

New easy-adjust controls help you keep running at peak performance. It only takes one wrench and less than two minutes to set the shear bar at the proper clearance. No bending. No mess. No shields to remove. It's so easy, you'll adjust it every time you sharpen the knives.

All these power-efficient features of the 3940 add up to let you harvest more forage with your present tractor. Come on in and let us show you how the 3940 can squeeze more capacity out of your 80- to 130-hp tractor.

John Deere 80-hp 2840

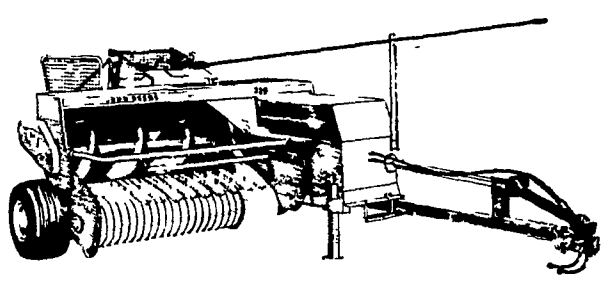


Our lowest-priced big tractor, and it's fully equipped

Every cycle in farming produces a tractor that's made for the times. The 2840 is that tractor; it's the 4020 of the late '70s. The 2840, at its rock-bottom base price, is equipped to handle just about any field or farmstead tool. With a high-torque, 6-cylinder diesel engine. A 12-speed hydraulic Hi-Lo shift transmission A draft-sensing 3-point hitch. Drawbar. Independent 540/1000 rpm PTO. Two double-action cylinder outlets. With power steering, hydraulic disk brakes, differential lock. All standard.

You can buy almost all these features on other tractors — as extra-cost options, generally. But even when you pay for them all, you won't have a 2840. Dependable. Durable. With trade-in value that holds on ... and up.

Plus the strongest warranty in the business. Confidential financing if you want it. And the durability of our John Deere dealership for your parts and service backup. The 2840: powered, equipped, and priced for the times.



See why the 80-strokes-per minute 336 will give you better-shaped bales

With the economical 336, you get the features that mean solid, square-cornered bales. Features like steady auger feeding, adjustable feeder forks for even hay distribution in the bale chamber, and the extra capacity of 80 strokes per minute. Stop by for details.

Northeastern agriculture covered at assembly

CHERRY HILL, N.J. — The Northeast Agricultural Leadership Assembly was held recently, with over 300 government officials, farmers, agribusinessmen, scientists and rural life specialists on hand to discuss farm policy and research options for the Northeast.

Massachusetts Commissioner of Food and Agriculture, Frederic Winthrop, Jr., told the delegates that the Assembly was being held to "tell the world that we really care very deeply about the future of Northeastern agriculture."

Winthrop, NALA conference chairman, noted that the Assembly was a "terribly important event in light of the many problems which are regional in scope." He cited four goals for the Assembly:

"We must establish a regional basis for coordination of improvements in agriculture and rural life."

We must work to raise government and public awareness of the farm situation in the Northeast."

We will recommend specific programs to meet the needs of Northeastern agriculture."

And, we must develop concrete suggestions which will stimulate future agricultural research."

New Jersey Governor Brendan T. Byrne welcomed the delegates and noted the many serious problems facing Northeast agriculture which were on the Assembly agenda. He expressed his hopes that the deliberations of the Assembly would be a major step in resolving these problems.

Phillip Alampi, New Jersey Secretary of Agriculture recognized the diversity of the Assembly delegates, but said that "our diverse backgrounds is our real strength. Now is the time to get together in a spirit of regional cooperation," Alampi said.

Dr. Hardy Vogtman, director of the Research Institute of Biological Husbandry in Oberwil, Switzerland, told delegates at the Northeast Agricultural Leadership Assembly that "We don't have the time to wait for another generation of farmers to become acquainted with biological methods and alternatives in farming."

Vogtman said that the complex nature of agriculture world-wide, has put farmers in a position where research only becomes accepted when an entire generation "grows up becoming familiar with it." But Vogtman added that current problems with high intensity farming and loss of essential soil nutrients have reached a point where "we don't have the time to wait for new developments."

He called for agricultural research aimed at the "whole farm system." He said that "farmers are generalists, but our agricultural research tends to look at isolated facts. Research should fill in the gaps to help farmers."

He said that many on-farm problems today are due to farmers "following advice of researchers in mechanization, specialization and intensification." But he suggested that the use of chemicals to increase yields is having a detrimental long range impact on farmers and their land.

Vogtman said chemical farming leads to a visious cycle where increased usage leads to a dependence on the chemicals. He compared this dependence with a housewife who uses valium or librium. "The intensive use of chemicals does not solve a problem," he said, "but in actuality, serves only to cover the problem up."

He said that sustainable agricultural systems, based on increased use of natural on-farm resources and biological systems, "will prove more efficient in the long run, and, in fact, would be much more compatible with soil and energy conservation needs."

He added that the sustainable agricultural systems approach is producing a much better quality of farm product, important for a proper nutritional diet.

Vogtman cited the fact that food processors are now forced to add trace minerals and other nutrients to make chemically grown products more wholesome. "With a proper system, these elements which must now be added artificially will be ingrown," he said.

The system Vogtman described is comprised of a biological systems approach with the natural resources of a farm being recycled to increase natural fertility, soil composition and development.

For example, he said, "through improved usage of ground cover crops, problems with soil damage, weed control and Nitrogen fixation can be dealt with on a natural basis.

He acknowledged the necessity of mechanization

to meet modern production needs, and noted that mechanical weed control was "as efficient as chemical herbicidal methods at the Research Institute. Mechanical and thermal (burning) weed control can also be cheaper than conventional chemical applications, and much less energy intensive," he said.

Vogtman said that the NALA conference is a good step which he hoped would "carry forward the recommendations that agricultural research is needed, especially research aimed at helping the average small family farmer. They need to know how best to manage their entire farm system, and research should be geared for them."

The challenge to strengthen agriculture and rural life in the ten Northeastern states was issued at the Northeastern Agricultural Leadership Assembly by Chairman Frederic Winthrop, Jr., Massachusetts Food and Agriculture Commissioner.

"We can make the rural Northeast a better place in which to work and live," Winthrop said. "This Assembly is just the beginning of the process."

"Our diversity is our strength," he said, noting the differing philosophies of the more than 300 farmers, government officials, agricultural experts and rural life specialists exchanging views at the three day meeting.

"The Northeast Association of State Departments of Agriculture intends to review the Assembly's recommendations, and we will fight for those that fall within our domain," he said.

Assembly delegates reviewed background papers and discussed more than 200 recommendations in the areas of government and finance, land, rural life, production, energy, marketing and appropriate technology.

Echoing the major concerns of the Assembly, Assistant USDA Secretary Dr. M. Rupert Cutler, said the Northeastern states are the leaders to date in farmland preservation efforts.

"Most land-use decisions must be made by individuals at the local level. It is up to communities to decide for themselves what their resources are and what they want to do with them.

"We should not shift prime farmlands out of agriculture and try to make up the production by over-fertilizing marginal lands or by draining and plowing up our wetlands and other fragile environmental areas," said Cutler.

"We must not force ourselves to cultivate land that takes more gas and oil to produce crops, that uses more water or that costs more to clean up the environment."

Cutler said that the agricultural economy which is the base of most rural communities must not be endangered. "It is the policy of the Agriculture Department to encourage, preserve, and strengthen the small farm as a continuing component of American agriculture," he said.

He noted that increasing energy costs and inflation were other major problem areas for farmers. "Farmers are among the biggest consumers in our country. They have been hit as hard, if not harder than any other segment of our society.

They have suffered greatly because of the inflationary price spiral on farm supplies, machinery and other services essential to producing food."

The Northeastern Agricultural Leadership Assembly was sponsored by the National Science Foundation, the Coalition of Northeastern Governors and the Northeastern Association of State Departments of Agriculture.

Kutztown FFA, YFA hold banquet

By Laurel Schaeffer
Staff Correspondent

KUTZTOWN — Celebrating their 37th annual banquet, the Kutztown FFA and YFA gathered together on March 26th at the Kutztown Grange Hall, here, for a baked ham dinner and presentations of awards.

Spotlighting the awards ceremony were three very outgoing FFA officers: President Daryl Kunkel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kunkel, R2 Kutztown; Chapter secretary Larry Shrawder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Shrawder, Kempton R1, and Chapter sentinel, Marjorie Faust, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Faust, Kempton R1.

Larry Shrawder is presently serving as Berks County FFA Chapter president and is also the president of his high school's student council. He was awarded the DeKalb Award as the most outstanding senior and also received foundation medals for agriculture mechanics and outdoor recreation.

Marjorie Faust received the scholarship award and a Keystone Farmer pin. She was also named the Chapter Star Farmer and was awarded foundation medals for home improvement, public speaking, and swine production. To add to her long list of awards for the evening, she also received a bronze medal for her four enterprise project work book.

Daryl Kunkel took a large share of the awards. He also received the leadership award, a Keystone Farmer pin and the Chapter Star Agribusinessman award. In addition, he received foundation medals for dairy production and diversified livestock. He was named the winner of the Berks-Lehigh District Production Credit Award for outstanding record keeping and received a gold medal for his six enterprise project record book submitted to the state contest.

Outstanding record book awards were also presented to FFA members. Because the books are kept by the calendar year, only three awards are given, one for the ninth, tenth and eleventh grades, since the 12th grade book is not completed until graduation. Kunkel com-

MCMP honors 50-year cooperators

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. – Three families were honored on Saturday, March 24 by the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. for reaching the milestone of 50 years of continuous family membership in the dairy cooperative. Honored for the achievement were John and Illona Hull, Westminster (Carroll County), Wilber and Georgia Dove, Woodbine (Howard County), and Donald and Ann Heine, Edgewood (Harford County). The awards were presented during the 44th Annual Luncheon, held in conjunction with the MCMP Annual Membership Meeting at Marriott's Hunt Valley Inn.

The honors program originated in 1974 and has to date honored a total of 147 dairymen. The award is given to any member who has either as an individual or a family, shipped milk to the cooperative for 50 continuous years.

Over the past 50 years these dairymen and their families have experienced many changes in the dairy industry. They have seen the size of their herds grow while many of their neighbors went out of business. They have new machines that make the work easier, although for most, that just means more timne for more cows. The changes are too numerous to list, but these people have made the best of them. Loving the good times and living with the bad.

A half century ago milk marketing was an every-man-for-himself proposition. Cans were delivered to the local railroad siding where dairies picked them up if they wanted them or left them to sour in the day's heat. There was no equitable pricing system between producers or for that matter for any given producer for his day-to-day deliveries.

In 1918 dairymen in the Baltimore milkshed saw things begin to change. Efforts begun several years earlier resulted in the founding of the Maryland State Dairymen's Association and brought at least a start to more orderly marketing of milk. Seventeen years later, the MSDA officially changed its name to Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers. The name changed but the purpose remained the same and many of the men and women who were the founding and early members of the MSDA were there to continue to guide the new cooperative in its current role as the largest Maryland-based milk marketing organization.

Today, due in large part to the efforts and loyalty of members like the Hulls, Doves and Heines, MCMP has over 1,000 members and is recognized as a leader in the production of high quality milk.

The Dove family farms about 200 acres and milk about 65 grade and registered Holstein cc - Over the past fifty years in which the Doves have maintained membership in MCMP there have been three generations involved in the dairy operation. It all began in April of 1928 when Harry W. Dove was only 17 years old at that time. In January of 1947, Wilber A. Dove began shipping under his own name and continued to do so until November of 1972 when he formed a partnership with his sons.

At present, the operation is being run by son, Wilber E. Dove, in cooperation with his father.

The Hulls farm about 150 acres and milk about 90 registered Guernsey cows. Over the past 50 years in which the Hull family has maintained membership in MCMP there have been three generations involved in the dairy operation. It all began in June of 1928 when C. Jesse Hull began shipping milk to MCMP and continued with John Hull, Sr. taking over the operation in 1940. The current operators, John "Jay" Hull, Jr. and his wife Illona, took over the farm in 1974.

Jay and Illona are also active in MCMP's Young Cooperator Program. In 1978 they were the first runners-up in the Outstanding Young Cooperators Contest.

The Heines farm about 175 acres and milk about 50 cows including both Holstein and registered Brown Swiss. Over the past 50 years in which they have maintained membership in MCMP the farm has been operated by Donald and his father, the late Fred W. Heine. Fred Heine was well known throughout the area for his involvement in the milk hauling business.

Donald and Anne Heine have four children including 1 daughter and three sons ranging in age from 21 to 11.

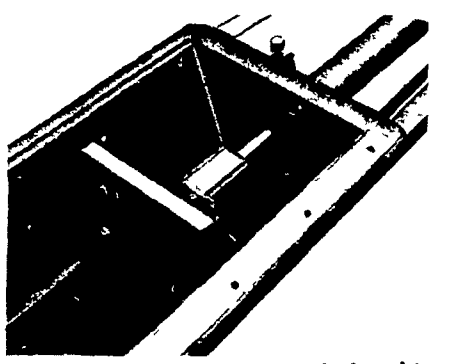
HOPPER is 8 gauge steel and 42" square. Optional longer hopper is available. The base of the hopper assures proper plunger alignment as it enters the chamber.



The large 12" x 12" plunger is designed to move large amounts of manure at six (6) strokes per minute. Angle iron guide assures perfect head alignment.

Up to 250' depending on the type of manure

Reliable Power Pack with high quality components. Compactness allows unit to be installed away from the manure pump pit.

12" SQUARE CHAMBER
■ A square chamber allows for best gate design. To open completely, with minimum resistance, a round chamber doesn't allow the gate to open completely.

HEAD SHAPE
■ The head shears long straw or hay-filled manure with no need to chop or eliminate bedding.
■ Slope-back head creates agitation with each stroke, preventing bridging
■ Works without needing to add water to manure.

PVC PIPE
■ 10" PVC Pipe, not 12"; by going from a 12" square chamber to a 10" round, assures even pressure on manure to eliminate the chances for sediment to accumulate

SERVICE
■ By installing the pump in an accessible pit, all parts are easily inspected.

NOTE
■ Design requires no Teflon seals which wear and allow back flow.
■ Design has no brass bushing to manually rotate or replace.

Milk quality production awards presented

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. – Seven dairy farm families were honored by their fellow members in Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. for producing milk of exceptional quality. The awards were presented March 24 during the 44th Annual Meeting and Banquet of MCMP at Marriott's Hunt Valley Inn, here, near Baltimore.

The awards program was created by MCMP in an effort to recognize those producers who make that extra effort to produce milk of the highest quality. The program is also designed to encourage the members to continue their efforts and to motivate others to do likewise.

The quality production awards are divided into three categories: Excellence, Gold and Silver. The most prestigious of the awards and consequently the hardest to earn is the Award of Excellence. During 1978 only seven of MCMP's 1,000 members earned this recognition.

The criteria for the selection of recipients of the Excellence Award is very stringent To be chosen a producer must meet the following requirements: (1) All standard plate bacteria counts under 10,000 for 1978; (2) No off-odor rejections; (3) No positive antibiotic test results; (4) No unsatisfactory sediments; (5) No somatic cell counts in excess of 1,500,000 ml. and ; (6) a 99 average on all farm inspections by the Health Department and the Cooperative in 1978.

The seven members who met the tough standards include: James and Wanda Amos, Street, Md.; Howard and Geneva Barkdoll, Boonsboro, Md.; Glenn and Delores Daugherty, Greencastle Pa.; Herman Muller, Westminster, Md.; Robert and Mary Smith, Westminster, Md.; Howard and Patricia Stiles, Littlestown, Pa.; and Rufus and Driscilla Yoder, Grantsville, Md.

Thirty-five producers earned Gold Awards during 1978. Dairymen who qualify must also be very particular in their dairying operation. The criteria for the Gold Award are the same as for the Excellence with the exception of the farm inspection scores. The Gold group must have an average farm inspection score of at least 92.

The Silver Award criteria though not as tough as the Gold or Excellence group is still worthy of recognition. Those producers who earned the Silver met all requirements previously listed for the Gold with the exception that all standard plate counts must have been under 50,000 and eleven of the 12 must have been 10,000 or under. Sixty-three producers earned the Silver recognition.

Auctioneering contest books country musician

BRUSH, Colo. — The author of 50 number-one selling songs and a member of the Song Writer's Hall of Fame, Bill Anderson, will be the entertainment headliner following the World Livestock Auctioneer Championship, to be held here Saturday, June 16.

Anderson and his group, "The Po' Folks," will perform following a barbecue in Brush Saturday evening. The Championship will begin at noon at Livestock Exchange, Inc.

Anderson's appearance will climax a day of competition among North America's top livestock auctioneers.

Trophies and merchandise prizes will be awarded to the winners, who will be judged by a panel of livestock market owners and managers on the criteria they look for when hiring an auctioneer.

The entry fee is $150, and contestants may be sponsored, Nevins said. Further information and entry blanks may be obtained by contacting the Digest, 4900 Oak Street, Kansas City, Mo., 64112, telephone (816) 531-2235.

The Championship will be held in conjunction with Livestock Marketing Congress '79, an annual industry conference devoted to livestock economics. The Congress will be held in Denver June 13-15.

Baltimore dairy co-op boasts record savings

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. – In a report that he called "sound and bullish", LeRoy Norfolk, treasurer of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. recently reported to the members that the cooperative realized a record net savings of $902,138 during 1978. The report was presented to MCMP members during the Annual Membership Meeting March 24 at Hunt Valley, north of Baltimore.

Norfolk told the members they "should be proud of the strong financial position" they provided their cooperative. "One of the things that is particularly encouraging", said Norfolk, "is the fact that all of MCMP's operating divisions showed a net savings from operations." This includes the marketing services, hauling divisions and equipment division.

The report also showed that the total assets of the cooperative has increased 1.2 million dollars due mainly to an increase in receivables for milk and securities of other cooperatives Norfolk also reported total milk sales in excess of $77 million, an increase of $4.8 million over 1977. "In terms of returns to producers this translates into an increase over 1977 of approximately $4,500 per farm," said Norfolk.

Although both of MCMP's service divisions, hauling and equipment, showed a net savings, they wer down from the prior year. "Responsible for the decline," said Norfolk, "were the increased cost of fuel, labor and insurance rates."

In reporting on MCMP's financial committment to Holly Milk Cooperative, Norfolk said the only unpredicted expense item was the sharp increase in interest rates on the long term loans. He also told members that the $352,000 collected in the form of special per unit retains would be revolved separately and that members would receive at least 20 per cent in cash this year.

Increased advertising voted for by Maryland Cooperative dairymen

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. – Nearly 600 members and guests of the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. met Saturday, March 24 at Marriott's Hunt Valley Inn for the 44th Annual Membership Meeting. Those attending included members being honored for 50-year membership, agri-business leaders, educators, politicians, members and staff. An increased advertising program was supported.

Three resolutions proposed by the members were discussed and voted upon. Two of the resolutions, both of which were defeated in a ballot vote, would have required amendments to the cooperative's by-laws. The first which would have raised a director's per diem by 15 dollars a day was narrowly defeated. The other proposed resolution which would have directed the cooperative to pay interest on any special membership "per unit retains", was easily defeated.

The third resolution to come before the members directed the board to work toward an amendment to the market order to increase the advertising and promotion checkoff to one per cent of the weighted average price.

The elections of eight district directors were ratified. Seven of the eight were returning incumbents with Charles H. Stiles, District 12, Boonsboro, Md. being the only newcomer. Among the incumbents were: Melvin E. Leppo, District 3, Sykesville, Md.; Herbert W. Wessel, District 3, Hampstead, Md.; Emory M. Kilgore, District 7, Airville, Pa.; Fred G. Butler, District 10, Inwood, W. Va.; John Kilby, Sr., District 6, Colora, Md; Charles T. Edwards, District 1, Forest Hill, Md.; and Richard Price, District 2, Phoenix, Md. (Price has since announced he is dispersing his herd and his position will be filled in a special district election).

Sheep management and nutrition tips given

By Joan Liesau

LANCASTER – "Four weeks prior to and after lambing is the most critical time" nutritionally speaking for a ewe, said Dr. Clair Engle, sheep Extension specialist at the Pennsylvania State University.

Four weeks before lambing, the lamb is doing the most growth and a ewe is more suseptable to pregnacy toxemia (ketosis) problems due to the additional stress on her system. "A ewe should gain 30 pounds through gestation." This offsets weight gained through lambing and keeps the ewe in desirable body condition.

Clair C. Engle

Engle spoke to over 30 Lancaster County sheep breeders at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, April 2. He suggested a forage analysis be done to determine the protein content of the hay. Engle compared three samples of hay which is typical for the county. The samples range from nine to 22 per cent protein. He emphasized that "if you have good alfalfa hay, or you raise it, think seriously of storing it and using it as your feed." Engle held up a pre-bloom sample of alfalfa which can get up to 25-26 per cent protein. "If you have this kind of hay, it is really all you need."

Engle said when your forage gets down past five per cent protein you should use a protein supplement. If you have poor hay and are trying to produce twins, and a ewe with good milk "your not doing a good job." he said. The only way to be sure is to have a forage test done. Engle added that the cost is only about $8 to $12, and you can find out the protein, calcium, nitrogen and phosphorus content of your forage.

Engle suggested that "if hay prices are high in your area, go out to other counties and look for quality hay" to get a better price.

"One thing you don't find many Pennsylvania producers doing is adding low level antibiotics to their feed." Engle stated that 60 milligrams of aeromycin per day ewe will decrease lamb death and scours.

Another subject close to home was parasites. Engle said "if you have a parasite problem and can't whip it, even after you have seeked help, you need to look into the mirror." He felt producers tend to put too much emphasis on clinical indications. Engle suggested that the producers become aware of the parasite's life cycle and learn where the weak spots are. The cycle should then be broken in the weak spots. "Try to work pasture rotation into your operation" he said. If rotation is not feasable, Engle suggested dry lotting the sheep as part of the parasite control program. "Dryness and sunlight is the worst enemy a parasite has" he added.

Engle also gave recommendations in the management of the lamb crop. He suggested that if you use the elastrator

The lamb reviver is a simple tool sheep producers can use to revive chilled lambs. A syringe can be used with a catheter (about 12 inches long) attached to the tip. The catheter tube should be ¼ inch or less in diameter. The blunt round end of the catheter has a hole in the side. This way, the lamb's eshopagus won't be punctured when it is inserted.

method (which utilizes rubber rings for docking and castrating), that the band stay on no longer then four or five days. After removing the tail, it was suggested a strong solution of iodine be applied.

Milk replacer was highly recommended for orphan lambs. Engle felt that cow milk with one teaspoon of corn oil per cup was satisfactory but emphasized milk replacer was much better. To help prevent spoilage, 1 teaspoon formalin per gallon of milk was mentioned. If you use a large quantity of milk in a milking bar, or similar milk server, the formalin helps prevent spoilage Engle stressed however, that you should not exceed the one teaspoon per gallon or it may become detrimental to the lambs.

Engle felt that one of the handiest, and least expensive items a producer could have was a lamb saver. Engle used a 60 milliliter syringe with a urethral or stomach catheter attached. The catheter was chosen because it's rubber tube has a blund end which prevents spearing the esophagus. The tube is about 12 inches long with holes coming out of the side at the base. Engle suggested that a dixie cup be filled with colostrum and then frozen. When you get a chilled lamb, the cup of colostrum can easily be warmed, put in the syringe and put into the lamb. He then suggested the chilled lamb be put in a small "brooder type" pen. The pen should have dry bedding, a canvas over the top and a heat lamp. The brooder will get up to about 80 degrees. The combination of milk in the lamb's stomach and a warm brooder will revive the lamb quickly Engle said.

Engle also encouraged Lancaster Countians to participate in wool pools and have stronger ties with the state association. The producers were also informed that Lancaster County ranks third in sheep numbers in the state. Most flocks being small farm flocks.

Decision issued to amend milk order

NEW YORK, N.Y. — If at least two-thirds approve, milk producers now operating under the Middle Atlantic federal milk marketing order would be assured of continuing to share in the order's market "pool."

P.R. Smith, a U.S. Department of Agriculture assistant secretary, said this final decision, still subject to approval by dairy farmers in the market, is based on a public hearing last October in Philadelphia. To determine producer approval, the department's Agricultural Marketing Service will poll dairy cooperatives.

Pooling, Smith said, is a method where all dairy farmers supplying the market share in the higher-valued Class I sales of the market and the lower-priced reserve milk that is used in manufactured dairy products. This is accomplished by combining the "class-use value" of all milk that handlers use and then paying all dairy farmers an average price, regardless of how their own milk was used.

The decision would reduce the pooling standards for both distributing plants and reserve processing plants and permit a federation of cooperative associations to operate a pool reserve processing plant. The decision also would increase the number of days' milk production of a producer that may be diverted to nonpool plants when it is not needed for fluid use at a distributing plant.

The decision denies a proposal that would require Middle Atlantic order handlers to pay not less than minimum order prices for milk that is received by transfer from cooperative association supply plants pooled under another federal order.

Copies of this final decision are available from Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine, 300 N. Lee St., Rm. 320, Alexandria, Va. 22313; or from the Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

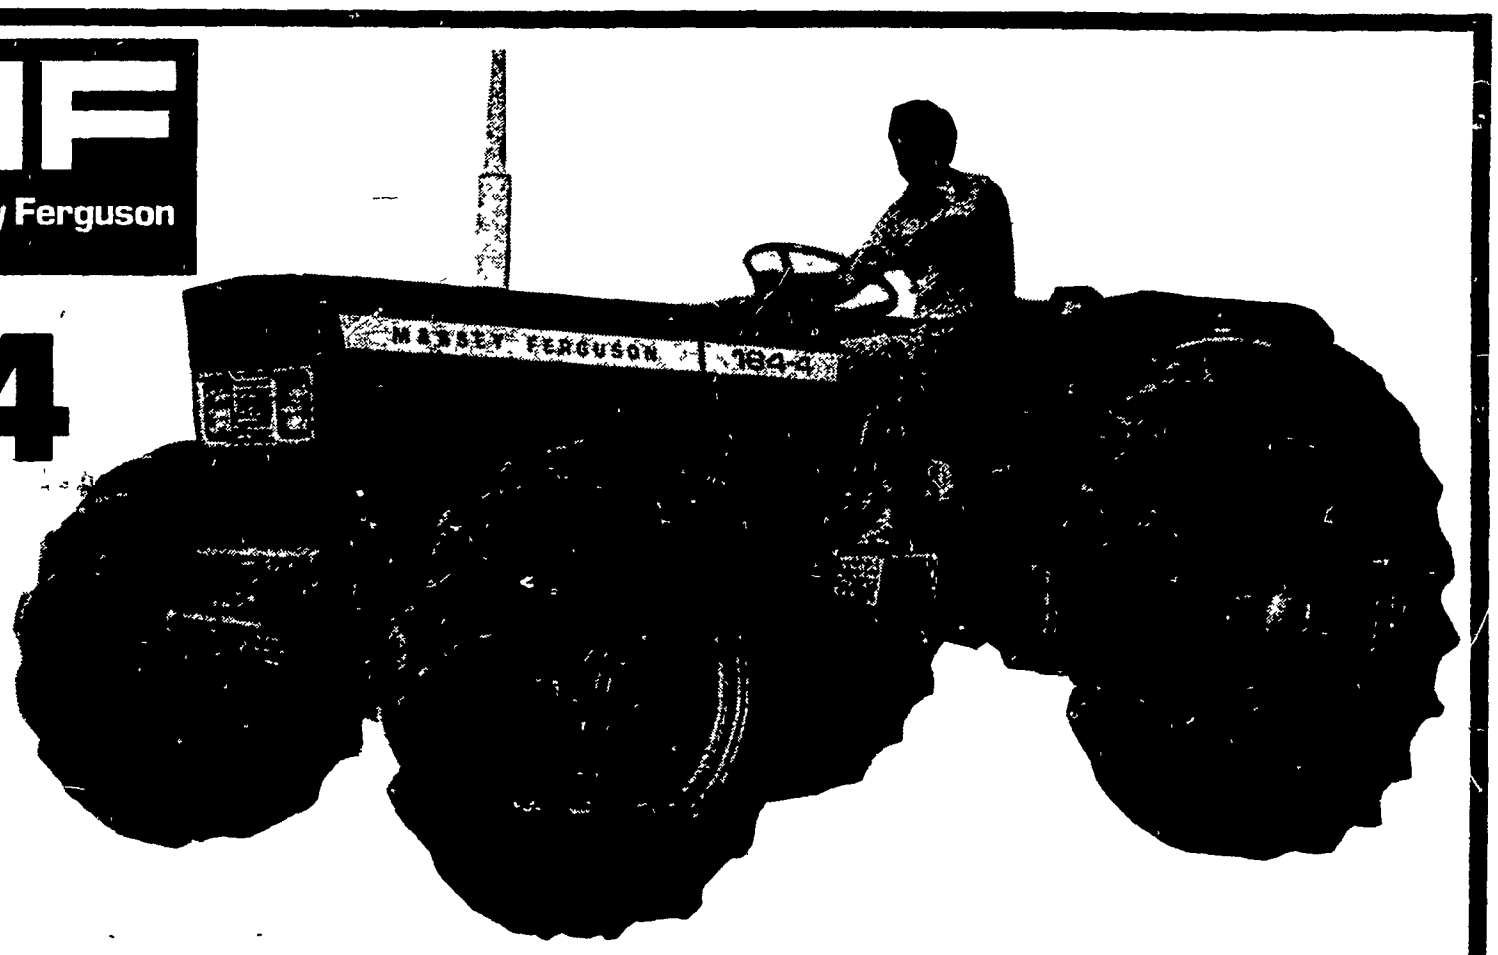
4-WHEEL DRIVE



World Famous Perkins Dependability

For the operator who wants auxiliary 4-wheel drive power, PLUS small tractor economy, now there's the MF 184-4 newest addition to the growing family of popular Massey-Ferguson tractors. Powered by a brawny 4-cylinder Perkins diesel, this broad-shouldered little giant is 62 hp* strong enough muscle to take on the toughest going The 3865 cc (236 cu in) direct-injection engine generates high torque at low rpm's for top performance. A perfect match for 3 and 4 bottom plows, disc harrows and the MF 236 Quick Attach loader All and all, the new MF 184-4 is one of the best performing tractors in its power class.

*M'g est

4-Wheel Drive Power For Extra Traction

With four drive wheels, the MF 184-4 is equipped to give you extra lugging power and traction when you need it. But better yet, it has more maneuverability than you'd expect from an auxiliary 4-wheel drive tractor Hydrostatic steering with an independent pump and circuit makes the MF 184-4 an easy handling unit, even with heavy front-end loads. Note that the heavy-duty planetary final drives don't project beyond the outside edge of the tires That's an engineering feature that can save a lot of time and trouble when operating in or around farm buildings. And for heavy trash conditions or brush, the centrally-mounted differential and final drives also allow plenty of ground clearance. But when it's time to take advantage of the 184-4's rugged 4-wheel drive power, you'll be in complete command of the situation right from the driver's seat A convenient handlever located near the gearbox engages the 4-wheel drive. And for big towing operations, here's another convenience feature you'll appreciate an adjustable height drawbar. It's just one more reason to take a second look at the MF 184-4 before you see any other tractor

Garden Spot FFA celebrates 50th anniversary

By JOAN LIESAU

LANCASTER – Lampeter - Strasburg High School, Garden Spot FFA Chapter celebrated their 50th anniversary recently at the Host Farm, Lancaster. About 150 people attended the gala event. Two former ag teachers, Wayne Rentschler, Lititz and George Myers, Willow Street, reflected on how the FFA has changed over the past 50 years.

During the awards presentations, Mr. Darwin Mowrey of the First National Bank of Strasburg, presented the Banker Award of $30 to Donald Brubaker, son of Harold and Miriam Brubaker, Strasburg R1. Donald was also named the alternate Star Red Rose Degree winner, production and swine production proficiency award winner. Donald has a feeder pig operation. He is presently working on a farrowing house which will have environmental controls. Donald was noted for his participation in chapter activities and his scholastic ability. He also raised corn test plots for DeKalb.

Jerry Myer, son of Herbert and Mary Myers, Lampeter, was selected as a County Red Rose Degree winner. Jerry was also a crop proficiency and swine production award recipient.

Gerald Garber was named star Chapter Farmer. Gerald, the son of Kenneth and Thelma Garber, Willow Street R2, raises market hogs, Guernsey heifers, several acres of squash and corn. He also helps his father with the herd milking. Gerald received the dairy production and vegetable production award for his squash project.

Clayton Shenk, son of Harold and Barbara Shenk, Willow Street, was presented the retiring officer award. Clayton served as student advisor, this past year. He is noted for his dairy farm work experience and public speaking. Clayton was the recipient of the public speaking proficiency award, also.

Jeff Hess, a first year ag student, was selected as the chapters Star Greenhand. He also won the dairy production proficiency award. Jeff was very active in the club and he showed at County shows and the Farm Show.

James Frey, son of J. Mowery and Dorothy Frey, Willow Street, was the recipient of the beef proficiency award. James showed the grand champion steer at Lampeter Fair. He also helps out on his father's large dairy farm.

All air-cooled engines are NOT created equal

It's easier to call an engine "heavy duty" than it is to build it that way. Many carburated "heavy duty" industrial engines simply don't deserve the title. They consume expensive fuel at an alarming rate. they are prone to break down or overheat and their life expectancy is measured in hundreds of hours. If any engine in the world qualifies as heavy duty, it's Deutz. Deutz engines are often chosen to power equipment with unit price tags over half a million dollars -- that's heavy duty.

When it comes to colling efficiency, the Deutz prrecision-engineered axial-flow cooling air blowers have no equal. This direct approach to cooling (without coolants, additives, cavitation) means our engines need only about 60% of the air volume liquid-cooled engines require Combustion efficiency is greatly improved by higher head temperatures and engine life is extended by cooler oil temperatures.

If you think air-cooled engines are prone to overheat, talk to Deutz users in the scorching heat of the Imperial or San Joaquin valleys. There, Deutz engines deliver more than 20,000 hours of trouble-free service before a major overhaul

There are lots of things that separate Deutz engines from water-cooled and other air-cooled engines. Things like blower design, big lube oil coolers, oil-cooled pistons, special alloy cylinder heads, a research and development team of more than 1,000 engineers. These are all important advantages. Still we say: If you can find an engine that uses less fuel than a Deutz -- buy it.

Container grown trees useful on strip mines

UNIVERSITY PARK — Tree seedlings grown in small containers in a greenhouse can be used to revegetate land strip-mined for coal, forest scientists at The Pennsylvania State University are finding.

This method of growing plants, long used with vegetables and flowers, is being applied to forest seedlings, especially conifers, according to Russell J. Hutnik and Edgar H. Palpant of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Penn State.

One of the major advantages of this system, they claim, is that the container keeps the root system intact and protected in a fertile growing medium. In contrast, conventional nursery-grown tree seedlings are planted in a bare-root condition and are subject to injury during processing for shipment.

For many years relatively large container-grown seedling trees were used in the high plain country of the West, the Penn Staters said, to establish windbreaks where moisture was limited. These container-grown seedlings proved to be more vigorous than bare-root nursery stock and survival improved greatly.

According to recent studies at Penn State, however, the container-grown seedlings are not always superior. In fact, survival and subsequent growth have sometimes been less than with standard nursery-grown seedlings.

At the same time, the basic problem is one of cost, Dr. Hutnik observed. To compete with nursery-grown seedlings, containerized seedlings must be grown for no longer than one year prior to transplanting, in contrast to the two to four years normally needed to produce certain conifers in nurseries. The older seedlings, it was noted, are better able to withstand competition from other vegetation and tolerate late frosts and droughts that often occur following spring planting.

"If the springtime has sufficient, well-distributed rainfall and no severe late frosts, and if weed and grass cover is not too dense, containerized seedlings survive as well or better than bare-root stock," Dr. Hutnik affirmed.

"This apparently explains the good results we had with our container-grown seedlings in 1978, as compared to relatively poor results in 1977," he added.

The container-grown method has several attractive features, it was pointed out. It conserves seed that is expensive or in short supply, such as seed from genetically superior trees. It improves flexibility in planning and in responding to unexpected developments, since the time from sowing of seeds to outplanting is shortened by a year or more. And it permits the planting season to be extended later than normal into the growing season, since the roots in containers are distributed only slightly.

"For these reasons, more and more containerized seedlings are likely to be planted as part of reclamation programs on newly mined land as well as to rehabilitate old strip mines lacking adequate vegetation," Dr. Hutnik predicted.

He indicated, however, that bare-root nursery stock will continue to be the chief means of refrosting strip-mined land, at least in the near future.

Meanwhile, research is underway at Penn State to develop and evaluate new or improved containers and methods of handling them. Experiments are seeking improved greenhouse environmental systems. The latter stress interaction of various types and combinations of irrigation, fertilization, supplemental night lighting, and supplemental cooling and heating.

Ag preservation workshop slated

The Board of Chester County Commissioners is sponsoring the second in a series of agricultural preservation workshops on Saturday, April 7, at the Schmucker Science Center on the campus of West Chester State College. The workshop is open to anyone interested in agricultural and open space preservation. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. The Conference is expected to last from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Invited speakers include Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell, Professor Frederick Steiner of Washington State University, and officials from neighboring Pennsylvania counties. Topics for presentation range from an overview of agriculture in Whitman County, Washington to a farmland preservation strategy for Chester County, an agricultural easements program in Lancaster County, and agricultural zoning efforts in Berks, Bucks, and York Counties.

The purpose of the workshop is to promote an exchange of views on agricultural preservation issues and strategies. For more information, or to preregister for the Conference, please contact either Stephen L. Kehs or F. Robert Bielski at the Chester County Planning Commission (215-431-6285).

The real scoop on the wind-driven tractor

This may be disappointing news to some, and no news at all to others, but the truth is that Emil Stoltzzug did not solve the energy crisis and he doesn't own a wind-driven tractor.

Yes, it was another hoax - an April Fool's Day story which was designed to tickle your imaginations and funnybones.

As many of you know, it wasn't the first time such a story appeared in this newspaper. On April 1, 1977, you may remember, Dr. Wolfgang von Steinfelder discovered that moon dust sterilized his pet rocks, and he subsequently began marketing a product which would end rock picking forever. Wouldn't that have been nice if it were true. The stones in your fields would no longer be able to reproduce and a lot of hard work would be eliminated.

Then, a year ago, Hans Hubschrauber didn't let wet fields bother him. He was spreading manure with a conventioanl spreader suspended beneath a helicopter. Yes sir, he had it made. He got the jump on every other farmer in the state. In reality, all he spread was laughter.

Emil Stoltzzug is as real as Dr. von Steinfelder and Hans Hubschrauber. Or, to put it another way, none of them exist, and neither do their inventions.

But laughter is real, and who doesn't enjoy a good laugh once in a while? Oftentimes, I believe, it's what we need more of to help move us out of depressing situations. The news is already top-heavy with reports that deflate the spirit. Inflation, the energy crunch, and most recently the disaster at Three Mile Island, are just a few examples.

Anyway, I hope you enjoyed the April Fool's Day story. I know a number of you had looked forward to this year's tall tale after having had a good chuckle in previous years.

And, by the way, the picture of the wind-driven tractor was not real either. The "engine components" were in reality a squirt oil can with a spring wrapped around it, a painted 10-ounce jelly jar, the top of a garden sprayer, and some rubber tubing. And the "box" sitting on the frame of the tractor front was once the muffler of the original tractor picture. Some of you may have guessed that last week. If you didn't, you can recognize the components if you inspect the accompanying picture closely.

I simply assembled the common household items, photographed them, and sized the resulting picture to fit the tractor.

As for the picture of Professor Hoffenpuff, we'll keep his real identity a secret, but his name should have offered a clue that the story was fabricated.

Judging by the response we got here, many enjoyed the spoof, a few did not, and some may only now be finding out what it was all about. At any rate, it was all for fun.

—Dieter

Northeastern ag

Agriculture will give priority to the recommendations of the Northeast Agricultural Leadership Assembly during their Summer meeting in Albany, New York, July 8-10, 1979, it was announced by Massachusetts Commissioner of Food and Agriculture Frederic Winthrop, Jr.

"NEASDA will consider the recommendations and make plans to work aggressively toward the implementation of those which accurately reflect the consensus of our Northeastern States," Winthrop said.

The NALA meeting concluded discussion of major issues facing agriculture here, signalling the beginning of planning and policy-shaping designed to strengthen agriculture and improve rural life.

A complete record of the NALA deliberations will be forwarded to the participating states, and final recommendations will be reviewed by the NALA executive board.

The Executive Board represents a composite of the various elements of agriculture in the Northeast, and its membership includes farmers, agricultural economists, scientists, government officials and rural life specialists from each of the ten participating states.

Winthrop said that the recommendations on policy, government and research being forwarded by NALA have been given priority on the NEASDA agenda for the summer meeting. The decision to include the recommendations on the agenda was made at a breakfast meeting attended by eight of the ten Northeastern Agriculture Secretaries and Commissioners.

pleted his list of honors by receiving an award for his 11th grade record book.

Other record book winners were: Bruce Latshaw, Alburtis R1, for the ninth grade book, and Lowell Stutzman, Kutztown R3, for the tenth grade record book. Bruce also received a bronze medal for his single enterprise record book for dairy herd and a State FFA Chorus pin. In addition, he received a foundation medal for public speaking as well.

Receiving the Star Greenhand award was Richard Savidge of Mertztown R2. David Dietrich of Lenhartsville R1 received a Keystone Farmer pin. He was also awarded a foundation medal for fruit and vegetable garden.

Other foundation award winners were: Keith Flicker, Maxatawny, agriculture sales and service, and ornamental horticulture; Randy Rabenold, Kutztown R2, beef production; Chris Bear, Kempton R2, crop Shoemaker, Mertztown R1, placement in agriculture production; Dean Bruno, Kutztown, poultry production; and Ronald Sutliff, Mohrsville, sheep production.

Scott Rabenold, Kutztown R2, received a State FFA Chorus pin. Bill Zollers, Mertztown R2, received a bronze medal for his two enterprise record book and Timothy Behm, Kutztown, received a gold medal for his single enterprise record book on dairy calves.

Recognition was also given to Kevin Hertzog, Oley R1, Jeffrey Miller, Kutztown R3 and Dale Siegfried, Breinigsville, for their having received the American Farmer Degree this year.

Honorary degrees were awarded to: Alan Machamer, assistant principle of Kutztown High School; Robert Mayer, principal of Brandywine High School; Sanford Smith, industrial arts teacher, Kutztown High School; Clifford Dietrich, father of Keystone Farmer, David; Gerald Faust, father of Keystone Farmer Marjorie; and Kenneth Kunkel, father of Keystone Farmer, Daryl.

The Kempton Lions Club was also presented with a letter of appreciation for sending Marjorie Faust and Larry Shrawder to the National FFA Convention. Kenneth Kunkel was recognized for his accomplishment as the Outstanding Young Farmer for Region VII.

Addressing the large number of members and guests was Daniel Witwer, Eastern Regional vice-president of the FFA. Witwer urged his fellow members to abide by their FFA motto, especially "living to serve". "Don't be left asking why didn't I give all that I had?" he explained.

Witwer told his audience to give all they could, whenever, wherever, however and to whomever they could.

Richard Geisman, region VII vice-president of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association also greeted the audience and reminded the YFA members that the Young Farmers Association Institute will be coming to Pennsylvania in 1981.

The "Energy-Pak" "Oxygen Controlled" Storage System includes a solid, steel reinforced concrete wall with a tough epoxy coating on the inside wall and a cone shaped concrete roof All access openings to the Silage Storage area are round and fitted with air-tight gaskets These round openings are easily clamped tight These features help to control and limit the amount of oxygen that comes in contact with the feed

In operating an "Energy-Pak", prime importance is placed on closing the silo after each filling and feeding operation Proper use of this system significantly reduces the oxygen content in the silo and results in a more ideal condition for maintaining the quality of the feed put into it

Come Back to Horse Power

"I am fully aware that there are many that are better versed in this matter than I am, and much more skillfull But nobody enjoys working with his teams more than I do And when better farm horses can be had, I will try to improve my stock

"I had a hitch of horses by Timothy Farceur, all sorrels I enjoyed them for several years They were followed by a roan hitch, sired by Ivandale Farceur, and they made me happy until it was time to bury the last one

"Since then I have learned what it means to be sad and lonely

"But I am still a lover of roan horses One day, at a distant parade or show, I may climb into the seat and pick up the reins of a grand roan hitch that practically drive themselves" Charlie Culver writing in THE EVENER, July 1977

LIFE on the farm

By Dieter Krieg, Editor

To see the birth of a day is to see the glorious unfolding of life and beauty and light.

If you're a farmer you know what I mean, for what man of the soil hasn't marveled at the clouds and sun that greet him early in the morning. A spectacular sunrise is awe inspiring.

And who hasn't paused to listen and appreciate the songs of robins and calls of owls, and crows and geese? Every farmer has witnessed these signs which proclaim a new Spring day has been born.

And the darkness of early morning, and the cool serenity you're enveloped in, aren't they refreshing too? The air is crisp and clean. There is a certain calmness about the countryside that's unparalled during any other time of day.

Sometimes the pale light of a full moon still bathes the farm when the day begins. Once again, the resulting picture is unique and breathtaking, no matter how many times you've seen it before.

Yes, to see all of these scenes unfold, is to witness the birth of a day. It can make you glad you're a farmer.

But what has given me even more joy than any of the above experiences is a moment in the house before I step outside. I tiptoe from the bedroom to the bathroom, and then to the kitchen to prepare a snack. I try to be quiet, but more often than not, something gives me away. It might be the tingling of a spoon in a bowl, or perhaps I was just blowing my nose.

From behind a closed bedroom door comes the call: "Hi Daddy."

If I don't answer, the calls keep coming: "Hi Daddy."

Talk about feeling good - the love of my children is the ultimate in pleasant experiences. And so I walk quietly into the child's room and absorb all the love that's offered.

That's the best way to start the day. After that, the songs of robins and the spectacular sky are just reflections of the joy I feel.

Milk price support legislation introduced

BATTLEBORO, Vt. — Legislation requiring the Secretary of Agriculture to set the milk price support at not less than 80 percent of parity through October, 1981, has been introduced into the 96th U.S. Congress.

"The Holstein Association favors this new legislation," said Robert H. Rumler, executive chairman of the Association. "The board of directors established a position of support on this and urges that this action be taken by Congress at the earliest possible date," he said.

The minimum support price for milk has been raised by Congress three times since 1949, the last occurring in 1977 which set the minimum at 80 percent of parity. This action expires in October, 1979.

One of the bills is in the U.S. House of Representatives, H.R. 80 (Obey, Jeffords, Baldus); a comparison bill in the U.S. Senate is S.6 (Leahy). Both bills are intended to keep parity at 80 percent.

"In reality, this is an extension of the present amendment to the Agricultural Act of 1949," Rumler said.

The Agricultural Act sets the support range from a minimum of 75 percent of parity to a maximum of 90 percent of parity. Parity is defined as the balance between the prices received by the farmer for his products and the prices he has to pay for labor and for equipment and necessities based on 1910-1914 averages.

Programs of this sort set minimum prices to be paid to farmers, Rumler said, and let the market operate above that level while attempting to provide the same minimum prices to all farmers and processors in similar groups and circumstances.

Weed control you can depend on starts with a Delavan herbicide incorporation kit.

It's the only unit with Raindrop® nozzles. Use the tough Delavan Incorporation kit on your disc or field cultivator to incorporate your herbicides in the soil, as you work the ground for planting. You'll control weeds — rain or shine!

Get the Delavan 6-nozzle or 4-nozzle kit (fits 16- to 22-foot or 9- to 15-foot disc). Precision manifold gives steady, even pressure to all nozzles. Kit includes heavy-duty hose, clamps and fittings. Available with 2 sizes of long-lasting nylon Type RA Raindrop nozzles for reduced drift spraying or nylon WR-W hollow cone nozzles. (Both nozzles available in stainless steel, also.)

Need a pumping kit? Your Delavan dealer can supply you with a roller, Turbo™ 90 or hydraulically-driven centrifugal pump, with all needed accessories. For simple plumbing attachment to your tank, several pump-tank hose connector kits are also available.

All Delavan equipment is heavy-duty for precision herbicide application. Contact your nearby dealer, or write Delavan Corp., Box 100, West Des Moines, IA 50265 for more information

WHAT'S NEW

New Model 8700 'Harvest Boss' Combine Features Digital Readout, 14-Channel Electronic Monitor

A new combine announced by White Farm Equipment Company unites electronics, power and comfort with productivity. A six-channel digital readout display and a 14 function electronic monitor – both standard equipment – lead off the new model 8700's built-in capabilities for efficiency.

The Model 8700 "Harvest Boss" combine from White Farm offers farmers a big 150-bushel, center-mount center-fill grain tank and 354-cubic-inch, 118 horsepower, six-cylinder diesel engine.

The 8700 "Harvest Boss" can handle corn, soybeans, rice, milo or small grain crops – and can switch from one to another quickly with White Farm's Kwik-Switch header system. There are 17 models of small grain platforms and corn heads available in the line.

Hydrostatic drive also is standard to make maneuvering the 8700 easy as possible in long and productive field hours. Special operator comforts include all-new cab mounted on new rubber isomounts for a smooth, quiet ride and big windows for excellent visibility, says the manufacturer.

Also included to make an operator's hours productive and efficient are such standard White features as on-the-go fan speed adjustment, cylinder speed adjustment, on-the-go concave adjustment, and in-cab return elevator check.

Two "sounding board" sensors below the cleaning shoe and below the straw walkers actually count lost grain to registered loss after separating or cleaning. Grain loss monitor is located in the cab for constant visual inspection.

The six-channel digital readout system puts a pushbottom panel at the operator's fingertips to permit instantaneous checks on the cleaning fan speed, cylinder speed, engine speed, ground speed, voltage and fuel levels.

With a 14-function monitor, operators are warned immediately of arising problems before breakdowns occur in these key areas: clean grain elevator drive, return elevator drive, straw walker drive, straw walker overload, cleaning fan drive, shoe drive, crop chopper drive, air filter restriction, engine oil pressure, coolant level, coolant temperature, voltage, fuel level, and parking brake.

Other standard items on the new 8700 combine include triple disc hydraulic brakes, 44.5-inch cylinder, and 12-volt 72-amp alternator.

For more information, contact local White Farm Equipment dealers or write Rich Collins, Merchandising Department, White Farm Equipment Company, 2625 Butterfield Road, Oak Brook, Illinois 60521.

SILO UNLOADER

A New Optional Fill-N-Feed ground control for quickly changing the Big Jim silage distributor-unloader from filling to feeding position (and back again) at the turn of a knob is announced by the Jamesway Division of Butler Manufacturing Company, Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin.

The Big Jim super silage handler is two machines in one, a silage distributor and a silo unloader for 20 feet, 24 feet and 30 feet diameter silos.

During filling, the 16-inch diameter auger distributes and compacts silage from the center of the silo out to the wall, raising automatically as needed. A 19-inch diameter hot-dip galvanized steel cylinder suspended underneath the machine causes a vertical hole to be formed in the silage from the bottom of the silo to the top.

During unloading, the trap door in the hole-forming cylinder is opened, the auger is reversed, and silage is carried to the center and dropped by gravity down the hole formed in the silage into a bottom conveyor. The conveyor carries the feed to the desired delivery point in the feeding system.

The new optional Fill-N-Feed Ground Level Change-Over operates the trap door, reverses the auger, activates or disconnects the automatic raising and lowering control switches as needed. The operator simply turns the knob on the control panel to "Fill" or "Feed", and the complete change-over is accomplished electrically. Lights in the control panel indicate what phase the machine is in.

CULTIVATOR

White Farm Equipment Company is offering the all-new 378 folding row crop cultivator, featuring rugged, clean, and modern design with hydraulic wings for transport.

For more information, contact local White Farm dealers or Richard Collins, Advertising Department, White Farm Equipment Company, 2625 Butterfield Road, Oak Brook, Illinois 60521.

Vegeterian diets can be helpful

SOUTHAMPTON - There is increased interest in vegetarianism today, especially among young people, says Dairy Council Inc., Southampton.

Because more people express an interest in this restricted form of diet, it is important for them to know which foods will supply the nourishment they need.

There are a number of types of vegetarians: vegans, strict vegetarians, who eat only foods from plant sources; lactovegetarians, who eat plant foods plus dairy products; ovovegetarians, who eat plant foods plus eggs; lactoovovegetarians, who eat both dairy products and eggs; fruitarians, who eat fruits, nuts, olive oil, and honey.

When one chooses to be a vegetarian, his diet will be healthful only according to the nutrients supplied by the daily food choices.

Vegetarians can be well-nourished if they select their diets carefully to provide a good balance of essential amino acids, adequate sources of riboflavin, calcium, iron, sufficient calories, and vitamins A, B12, and D.

Planning is the key to a nutritionally-balanced diet, says Dairy Council. One planning aid is a Four-Food Group system. In this system, foods are grouped according to their major nutrient content. These groups are milk, meat alternates (for vegetarians), fruits-vegetables, and grains.

Recommended number of daily servings for adults are milk group, two; meat alternates (eggs, cheese, legumes, nuts and meat analogs--processed plant proteins, commonly soy), two; fruits and vegetables (apricots, broccoli, cantaloupe, carrots, greens, pumpkin, rutabaga, sweet potato, winter squash, citrus fruits, peppers), four; grains (whole grains are recommended because they have larger amounts of trace elements than do refined products), four.

Vegans should remember their diet excludes milk and dairy products which, with the exception of butter, supply about 75 per cent of the calcium available in our nation's food supply. Some of the calcium-equivalent foods they should eat are calcium-fortified soy milk, almonds, sunflower seeds, enriched farina, dried beans, and cornbread.

Dairy Council warns that food and nutrition fads, myths, and superstitions flourish. One can protect himself and his family's health by getting factual information from nutritionists in national, state, or county medical and dietetic associations; federal, regional, or state Food and Drug Administration offices; college nutrition departments, and dairy councils.

Why are chicken bones dark?

NEWARK, Del. - Have you ever noticed that some chicken bones turn dark after cooking? Or wondered why the meat next to the bones has dark areas?

Poultry inspection officials at the USDA assure us that such chickens are perfectly safe to eat. The darkening is a natural condition related to the blood pigment in the bones.

According to Delaware Extension home economist Sue Schaefer, with modern technology chickens are produced and marketed in less than eight weeks. In these young birds, bones are still rich in blood supply, some of which seeps into adjacent tissue after slaughter. As a bird is cooked, the pink bones and tissue sometimes change to a brownish color, becoming even darker as the temperature increases during cooking.

While the dark appearance may be unattractive, it does not affect the wholesomeness, safety, or flavor of the chicken.

One consumer who questioned the "black bones" said he never saw this condition until he started eating chickens that came from the grocery. He suspected that "store" chickens were not always fresh--or perhaps were injected with a preservative. However, people who raise their own fowl probably keep their chickens for several months before slaughter--particularly the egg layers. And discoloration is not as likely to appear in a mature bird.

Ms. Schaefer says it is illegal to use preservatives in raw poultry products.

Under the Poultry Products Inspection Act of 1957, the USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service is responsible for the wholesomeness and safety of poultry processed in plants that sell across state lines or in foreign commerce. Inspection begins while poultry is still alive, goes on after slaughter, and continues through every step in the making of processed poultry products such as chicken pot pies, canned chicken soup, and frozen chicken or turkey dinners. Also, the labels and packaging for the products must be approved by FSQS.

In 1968, the Wholesome Poultry Products Act was passed by Congress, requiring that poultry processed and sold within the state lines be inspected under state programs with standards equal to the federal inspection standards. However, plants in states without approved inspection programs are placed under federal inspection. Plants in the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are federally inspected.

So consumers can rest assured that the poultry they buy has been well inspected, and "black bones" are no cause for alarm.

Rhododendrons can be protected

MEDIA - Some home gardners report that their rhododendrons had many brown leaves on them last Spring, says James J. McKeehen, Delaware County Extension agricultural agent. Precautions can be taken to reduce the chances of this happening this Spring.

Rhododendrons are broad-leaved evergreens which should be planted in shady or semi-shady locations, or on the north or east side of your home. The idea is to keep the Winter sun from striking frozen leaves. When this occurs, the leaves thaw and the water evaporates. This water cannot be replaced then because the roots are frozen. This results in brown and dead leaves. One way to prevent the thawing is to shade the broad-leaved evergreens with a snow fence or evergreen boughs over the top of bushes throughout the Winter months.

Well-managed clear-cutting essential for water yield

UNIVERSITY PARK - Well-managed clearcutting of a 100-acre watershed can yield up to 31 million extra gallons of water a year, compared to the same forest left uncut, experiments at The Pennsylvania State University indicate.

Such increased yields from watershed occur during the growing season—especially July, August, and September—according to Dr. James A. Lynch, scientist in forest hydrology for the Agricultural Experiment Station at University Park. The increased water yields come at a time when the demand for water is greatest and the supply lowest, Dr Lynch observed.

The clearcutting experiments took place over 11 years on 100 acres of the Leading Ridge Watershed No. 2 in Huntingdon County. Twenty-one acres were clearcut in the winter of 1966-1967, then 27 acres in early 1972, and 52 acres in the winter of 1975-1976.

Removal of trees shading the stream on the watershed produced significantly higher water temperatures than previously. Water temperatures as high as 85°F were measured. Significant warming of the water was measured during the late Spring and early Fall as well as the Summer. Previous studies showed that increased water temperatures may injure some forms of aquatic life.

Well-managed logging, to avoid exposure of bare earth, caused little disturbance of the soil and created only minor instances of turbid water, Dr. Lynch reported. As the clearcut areas regrew, the occasional turbidity decreased to near precutting levels.

"Clearcutting the forest had little, if any, apparent effect on concentrations of calcium, magnesium, potassium, sodium, and sulfate in the stream water," Dr. Lynch said. "Only nitrate-nitrogen concentrations were increased."

"Even then, the average nitrate-nitrogen concentration was well below the federal drinking water standard of 10 parts per million. The low level of nutrients in the water was due partly to the demand for plant food by natural vegetation that rapidly invaded the clearcut areas," he added.

The Penn Staters eliminated regrowth with herbicides. They found that water yields will drop back to previous levels in about 10 years unless regrowth is controlled.

At the same time, the use of herbicides following the second and third clearcuttings resulted in large increases in stream discharge. Such higher flows of water increased the rate of stream channel erosion and produced turbidity above levels recommended in new national standards for drinking water.

When herbicides were applied, substantial changes took place in the nutrient concentration of the streamflow. However, the increases in nutrients, notably nitrate-nitrogen and potassium, did not exceed drinking water standards.

"In evaluating our results, it is important to keep in mind that herbicides are not normally used as a forest management tool in Pennsylvania," Dr. Lynch stated. "Nevertheless, the results do indicate that clearcutting a hardwood will affect both the quantity and quality of water draining from that forest."

"The magnitude of these effects will be determined to a great extent by the logging operator and whether he follows recommended watershed management practices and takes care to protect the water resource," he observed.

The project was a cooperative study involving the School of Forest Resources at Penn State; the Bureau of Forestry within the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources; and the Northeastern Forest Experiment Station of the U.S. Forest Service.

Snow country dairymen discover round bales

NEW HOLLAND - Cattlemen and Sunbelt dairymen are already hitched to their round balers. A couple seasons' convinced them of the profitable cost, labor and feed quality ratios, according to John Furry of Sperry New Holland.

Now, some Northern dairymen are adding round balers, too. But for a different reason, says Furry, who is product manager for round balers at New Holland.

These milk producers are going to stay with their square balers for the hay they store in the barn and feed to their milking cows. But for them, the round baler is turning out to be the key to profitable herd expansion.

As herds increase, there are more heifers to raise. Round bales fed on pasture or drylot are the low-cost, low-labor way to handle dry cows and heifers. Shifting these non-milking animals to round bales lets the herd grow larger without an increase in manpower The near-zero feeding labor is the key.

Often the round baler can save the cost of another big silo, too. When the dry and growing stock shift to round bales in drylot it takes the pressure off the silo. There's more silo capacity left over for the milking herd.

Furry observes it's no wonder dairymen are seeing profit advantages in having both round and square balers available. If the round baler can substitute for an extra silo, it means a big cash saving. Labor savings are the number one reason why farmers - dairy as well as beef - use round bales.

Delaware forms 4-H Foundation

NEWARK, Del. -- Delaware 4-H and youth programs conducted by the state Cooperative Extension Service now have the opportunity for an important new source of private funding through establishment of The Delaware 4-H Foundation, Inc. Formed by a group of former 4-H members and longtime 4-H supporters, the Foundation was formally organized March 19, 1979.

The new organization makes it possible for the Delaware 4-H program to receive real property, contributions or gifts from individuals, groups or corporations for use in support of its many youth-related activities, says State Leader James O. Baker, in reporting on the new, non-profit corporation.

Immediately following incorporation, a bank account was opened in the name of the Foundation for the purpose of receiving contributions. Although no appeal for funds has been made, approximately $2,500 already has been received from the following sources:

— A memorial fund established in memory of Steve Cooper (deceased Sussex county 4-H member).

— Contributions in lieu of flowers directed to the Foundation by Jim Insinga, local 4-H leader, New Castle county, in memory of his father, the late Vincent Insinga.

— A contribution from the Y's Owls 4-H Club of Wilmington.

— Individual "seed" contributions from eight members of the county and state Extension staff

— Contributions for general use or specific program support from a number of community groups and businesses.

The Board Directors of the new Foundation includes the following individuals: J. Caleb Boggs (president); Floyd Blessing (vice president); Bettie Butler (treasurer); Eleanor Shaw Flanagan (secretary); Wayne Cooper; John Hastings; William Henderson; Marvin Klair; and Gary Simpson. All have had a rich 4-H background or have had a close working relationship with Delaware's 4-H program for many years.

Milk sample preservative developed

UNIVERSITY PARK - Dairy scientists at The Pennsylvania State University have developed a new preservative to keep raw milk testable for measuring butterfat level and protein content--in addition to white blood cell count denoting bacterial infection. The new product, effective up to two weeks, may replace the present chemical used to preserve milk for such sampling, as reported recently during meetings of the American Dairy Science Association at Michigan State University.

The new Penn State milk sampling preservative has been found equal to or superior to chemicals now used by dairy herd improvement associations (DHIA) throughout the U.S. These agencies process about 3,500,000 raw milk samples each month.

"If preserved milk samples must be kept longer than one week at room temperature prior to testing, then either potassium dichromate, the preservative now used, or the new Penn State product is the most suitable," declared Rodger H. Jonas, graduate assistant in food science at University Park. Jonas developed the new milk preservative as part of his master of science research, under a project of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station.

Jonas indicated an alternative to potassium dichromate may be required in the future due to possible tighter controls on chemical substances by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Experiments have found no serious hazards associated with the use of the Penn State preservative.

Centralized facilities for determing butterfat and protein levels in raw milk, as well as somatic cell counts, are expanding rapidly in the nation. The DHIA laboratory at Penn State, for example, now handles 220,000 butterfat tests monthly, 50,000 somatic cell counts, and 10,000 protein determinations.

The new product meets a major requirement for an effective milk preservative--it prevents coagulation of the milk sample without losing "testability," Jonas affirmed. In addition, the new preservative dissolves readily in the milk sample and has no harmful effect on the testing equipment. The Penn State DHIA lab uses automated equipment in its milk testing operations.

The Penn State preservative was compared with most other known milk sampling preservatives. The various products were compared using milk from four breeds of dairy cows--Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey, and Ayrshire--and mixed herd milk.

Since refrigeration has always been considered too costly and impractical, the need for improved chemical preservatives is ever present, it was pointed out. To be effective, such a preservative must control bacterial growth for one to two weeks without damaging test results or the testing equipment at reasonably low concentrations. And the preservative must provide stable readings, be relatively inexpensive, and handle easily.

Chester County DHIA Monthly Report

FEBRUARY 1979

Dairymen would like to have a Minute, especially a Minute such as the 5-year old Holstein in the David Windle herd. In her recently completed lactation, she compiled a total of 25,360 pounds of milk and 1072 pounds of butterfat, which places her at the top of the Chester County DHIA list on both counts.

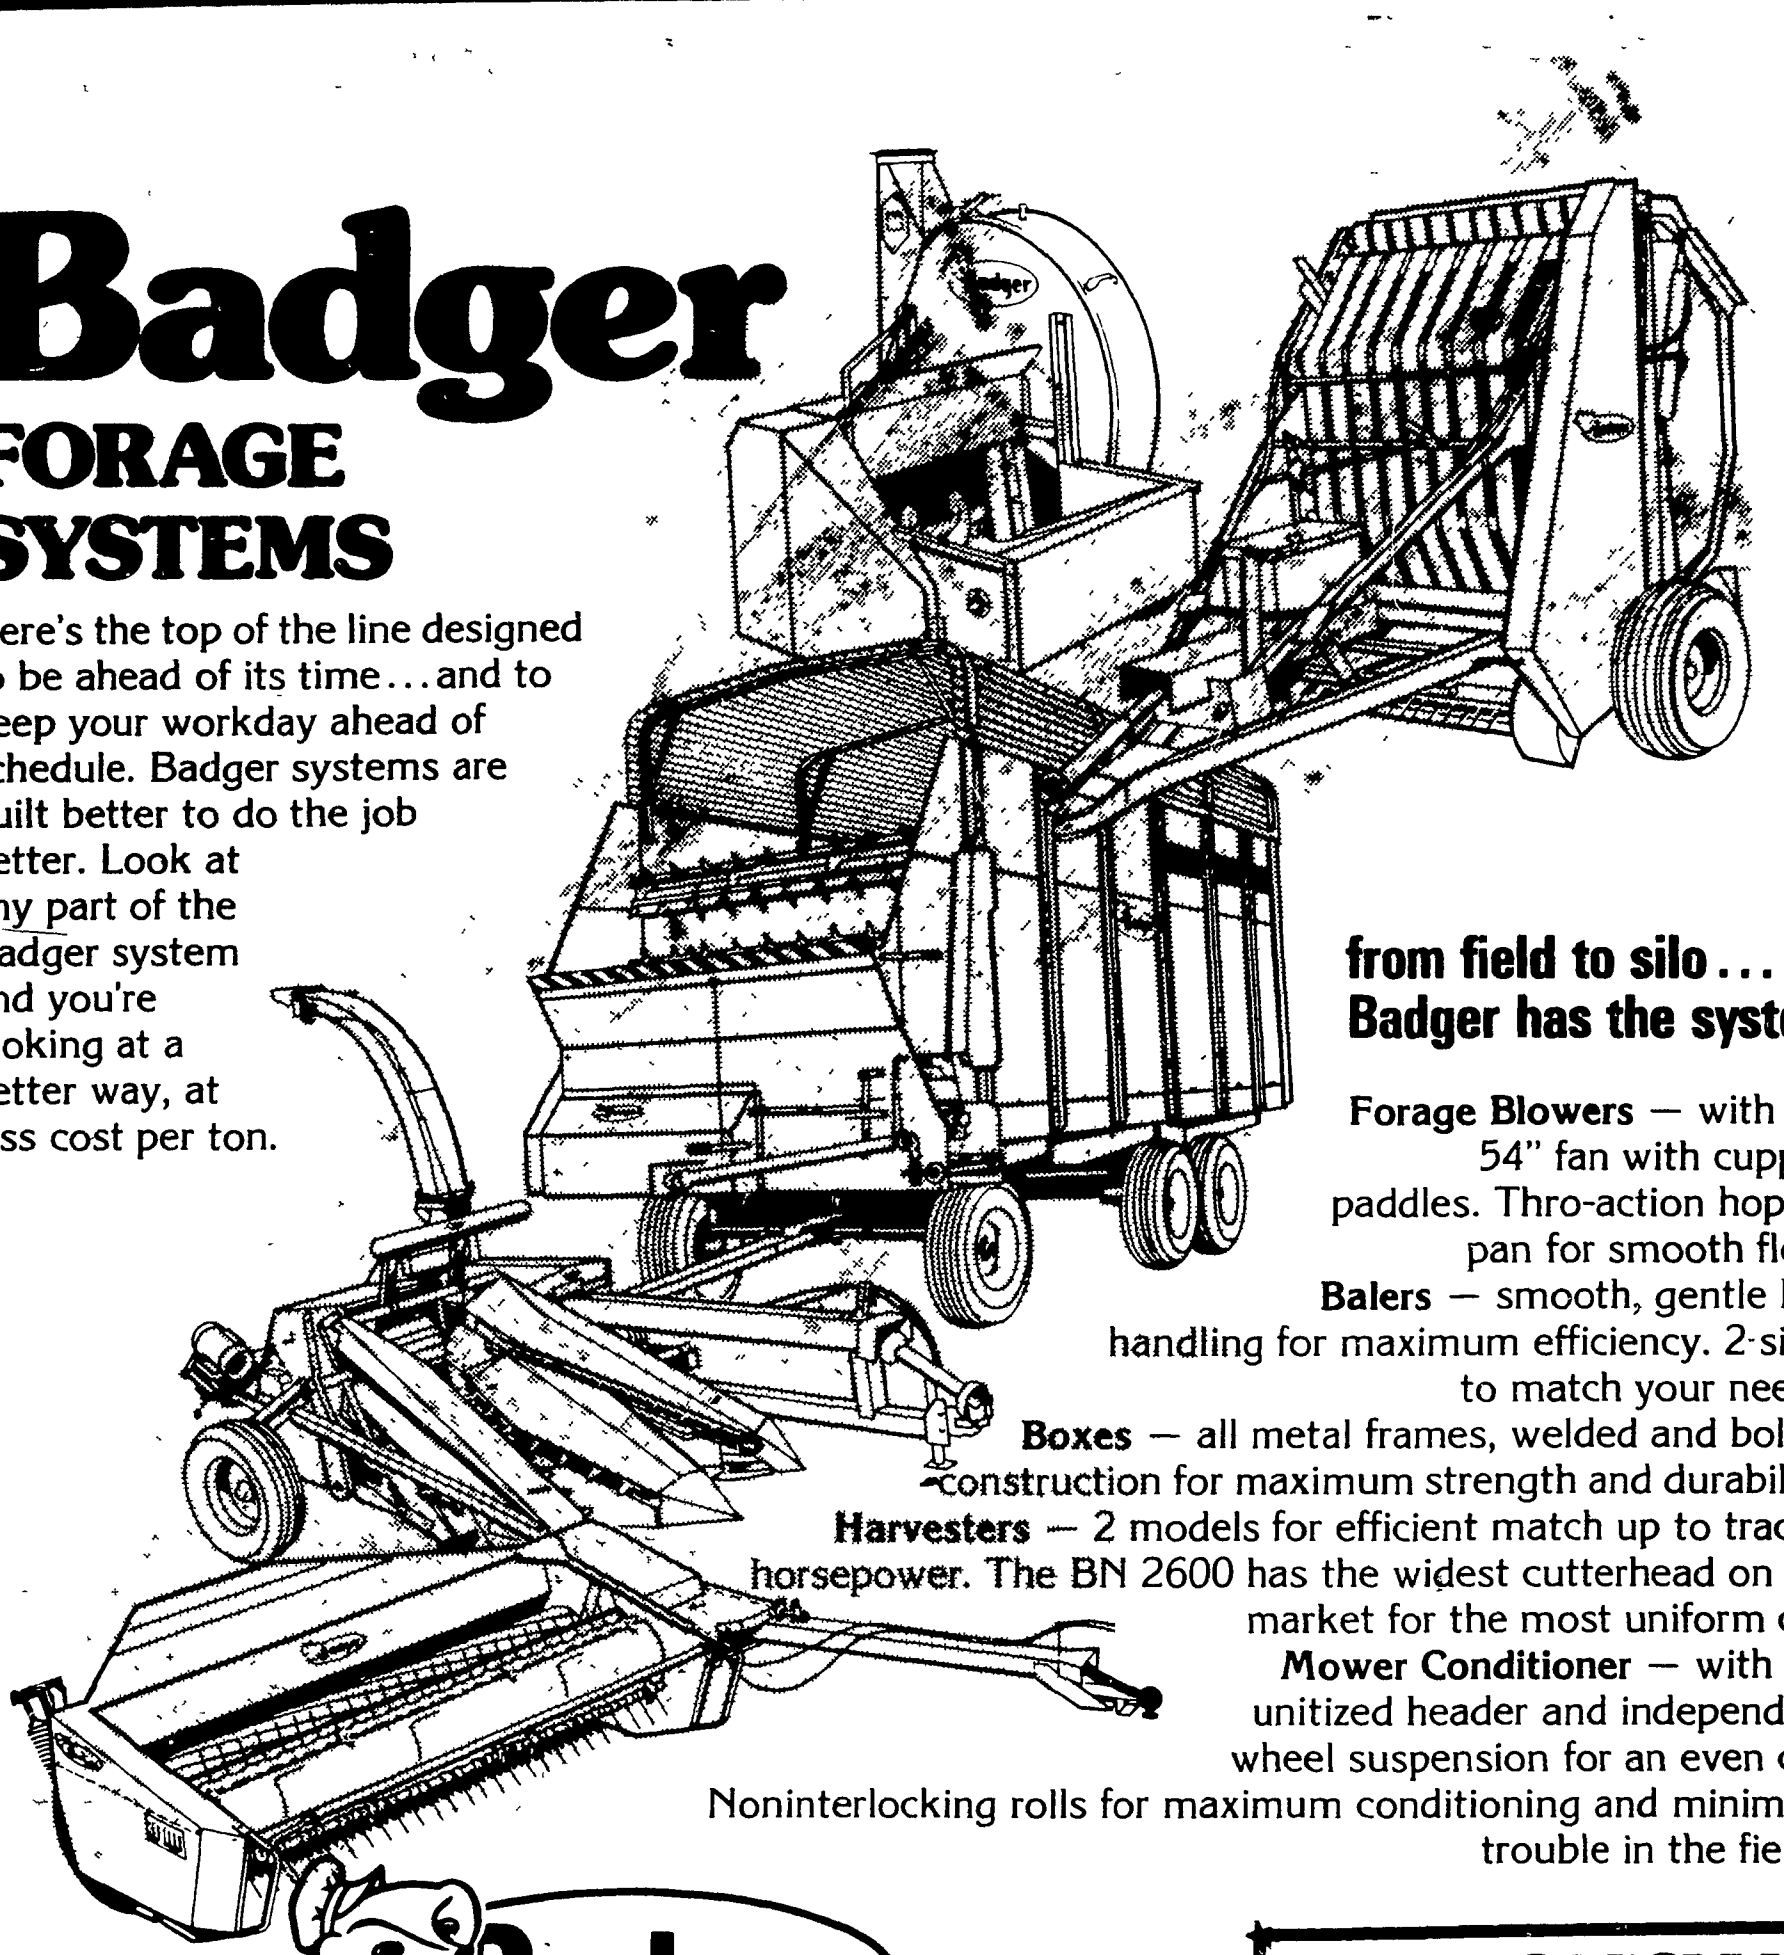
FORAGE SYSTEMS

Here's the top of the line designed to be ahead of its time... and to keep your workday ahead of schedule. Badger systems are built better to do the job better. Look at any part of the Badger system and you're looking at a better way, at less cost per ton.



from field to silo... Badger has the system

Forage Blowers — with big 54" fan with cupped paddles. Thro-action hopper pan for smooth flow.

Balers — smooth, gentle hay handling for maximum efficiency. 2-sizes to match your needs.

Boxes — all metal frames, welded and bolted construction for maximum strength and durability.

Harvesters — 2 models for efficient match up to tractor horsepower. The BN 2600 has the widest cutterhead on the market for the most uniform cut.

Mower Conditioner — with the unitized header and independent wheel suspension for an even cut. Noninterlocking rolls for maximum conditioning and minimum trouble in the fields.

ACA kicks off farm relations effort

NEW ORLEANS, La. — A wide cross-section of the leadership of U.S. agriculture joined together last week to support a nationwide effort to communicate the importance of agriculture to the American public.

Sponsored nationally by the Agriculture Council of America (ACA), the "Agriculture: It's your heartbeat, America" campaign will be coordinated by all types of implement, seed, feed and fertilizer dealers; by lending institutions; and by farm and commodity groups. The program was developed in co-operation with the International Harvester Company which has invited all 2,000, of its U.S. dealers to join in active support.

"The purpose of the 'Heartbeat' program is to unite people communicate the positive story of what agriculture, our biggest and most important industry, contributes to America," explained ACA's new chairman Chris Jouflas, a sheep rancher from Grand Junction, Colo. "It's a message every person in this country can and should be proud of."

Commenting on IH's role in the project, Hugh Flanders, Vice President for Marketing of Agricultural Equipment, "We feel strongly that this is a program that others in the farm equipment industry as well as every other major segment of agriculture will want to support actively, and we hope very much that they will."

Details of the new program were presented at ACA's Sixth Annual Membership Meeting, conducted in New Orleans, March 28-30th. The session was attended by some 200 top spokesmen for agriculture including individual farmers and ranchers, and representatives for general farm and commodity groups, and companies that serve the farmer.

In conjunction with this kick-off, Dale Hendricks, former ACA Chairman and Iowa dairy farmer presented Agriculture Secretary Bergland with the program's first kit in Washington, D.C. Secretary Bergland noted that "the fact that the 'Heartbeat' project will give individuals all over the country an opportunity to express their views personally to key decision-makers in Washington is very important and much needed."

A major feature of the program is a special survey called the "Economic EKG for Agriculture USA." Designed to get grassroots thinking from farmers and farm businessmen, the "EKG" is the first survey of this kind ever conducted. Its purpose, according to ACA, is to pinpoint new ideas and new direction for the 1980's.

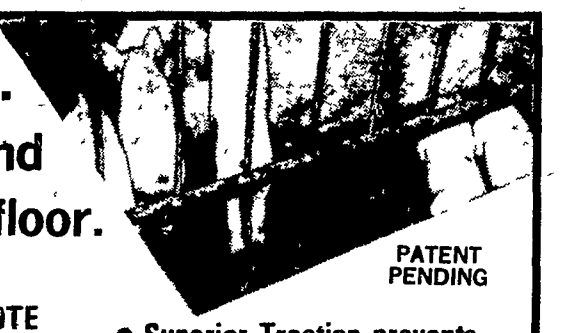
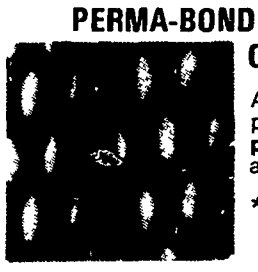
Tenderfoot...
TM
the Tough, Tested and Proven "pig-saver" floor.



PATENT PENDING

PERMA-BOND* KOMFY-KOTE CONSTRUCTION



A tough acid-resistant plastisol compound permanently bonded to a rugged steel mesh

An exclusive bonding process developed by Tenderfoot

- Superior Traction prevents injuries and abrasions.
- Cushioned comfort reduces stress.
- Self-cleaning. No holes or crevices to harbor bacteria.

HOW LONG WILL THEY LAST?

First produced in 1975, Tenderfoot was tested in farrowing pens for 1½ years before being marketed These original floors have been in constant use ever since WITH NO APPRECIABLE WEAR! Today's Tenderfoot floors have 6 advantages over the original pieces

1. 3 times more coating.
2. Tougher vinyl coating.
3. Extra-strength steel.
4. Treated to resist bacteria & fungi growth.
5. Improved Perma-Bond processing.
6. Strict quality control.

Constant research, development and quality control continues at the Tenderfoot factory and at the nearby 650-sow operation where the original 1975 Tenderfoot floors are still going strong

How long will a Tenderfoot last? No one knows The very first ones produced have withstood heavy use since 1975 with no appreciable wear. The floors produced today are 6 ways better than the first ones On the basis of these facts it seems safe to say that any concern over the durability of Tenderfoot flooring is unnecessary.

Distribution will be made through ACA members in local communities all across the country.

ACA, which is a non-profit and non-partisan organization headquartered in Washington, D.C. plans to complete nationwide tabulation and analysis of the survey later this year. The results will be presented early next year to top decision-makers in Washington including the President, Secretary of Agriculture and key Congressional leaders.

In addition to the survey, the program offers a wide range of materials, including fact cards, bumper stickers and posters all emphasizing the "Heartbeat" theme. The "Heartbeat" message is dramatized visually by a symbol depicting an electrocardiogram with a farm image.

"We are proud to present a united approach in communicating the tremendous success story that modern agriculture has to tell," Jouflas said. "We firmly believe that we can speak a powerful message with a positive voice."

ACA was founded in 1973 and conducts a wide range of program designed to increase public understanding, appreciation and awareness of what agriculture means to America.

Summer activity seminar set

WEST CHESTER — The Chester County Extension Service of the Pennsylvania State University will offer a working "Planning Summer Leisure Activities" on Wednesday, April 11, from 9:30-11 a.m. at the Extension Office, 235 W. Market St., West Chester. Register is required by April 9.

The questions to be discussed are: What to consider when planning leisure activities? - Where to go? - What is the Cost? - and What to do?

Candidate selection for Federal Farm Credit Board begins

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The process of picking candidates from the Second (Baltimore) Farm Credit District for the Federal Farm Credit Board has begun, the Farm Credit Administration announced.

Farm Credit System borrowers in the district will pick nominees for consideration for appointment by President Carter, subject to confirmation by the U.S. Senate, to a six-year term on the board.

The appointee will succeed Galen B. Brubaker, dairy farmer from Rocky Mount, Va. Brubaker has been a member of the board since 1974 and was its chairman during 1978. His term expires March 31, 1980, and he is not eligible for reappointment.

The Federal Farm Credit Board is the top policy making body for the Farm Credit System and for FCA, the Federal agency which supervises the System. Twelve of its 13 members are Presidential appointees, one from each of the Nation's 12 Farm Credit Districts. They serve six-year terms, two of which expire each year. The 13th board member is appointed by, and serves at the pleasure of, the Secretary of Agriculture.

The Second Farm Credit District, with headquarters in Baltimore, includes the states of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia; Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia. Each of the three Farm Credit System borrowing groups in the Second District--Federal Land Bank Associations, Production Credit Associations, and farmer cooperative stockholders in the Baltimore Bank for Cooperatives--will pick one nominee.

The process begins with the mailing of preliminary material--election calendars, instructions, and voting lists--to associations and cooperatives, according to Paul C. Redmer, FCA election officer. Nomination ballots will be mailed April 9.

FLBAs and PCAs, by majority votes of their boards of directors, may cast the number of stockholder votes shown on their voting lists for nominees they choose. Each cooperative may cast one vote for a nominee. Nomination ballots must be returned to FCA by June 8.

FCA will mail lists of the two nominees who received the most votes from each borrowing group, along with final ballots, to members of each group on August 6. Voting on these final ballots will be limited to listed candidates. These ballots must be returned to FCA by October 5. Names of those receiving the highest number of votes on these ballots will be submitted to the President.

Tractor safety course offered to youth

NORRISTOWN — The Montgomery County Extension Service will offer a tractor safety certification course for area youth. Under the Fair Labor Standards Act, all 14 and 15 year olds who plan to be employed off the home farm and will be operating a tractor of over 20 PTO horse power, must have evidence of satisfactory completion of such a course before they can be employed.

The course will be held from 7 - 9 p.m. starting April 10 continuing on Monday nights thru Mid May.

A driving test is scheduled for Saturday, May 12. Classes will be held at the Western Montgomery Vo-Tech School in Limerick. Some previous experience is desirable.

Although the course is designed for youth, anyone interested in learning about basic tractor safety is welcomed to attend. To reserve a spot in the class, call Nancy Kadwill at the 4-H office of the Cooperative Extension Service, 215-277-0574. There is a charge of $2.50 for the student manual, payable at the first course.

Farm Storage Buildings

NEW

In Fall of 1977 Umbaugh introduced a new line of standard machinery storage buildings. The innovations in design, materials and construction methods have made these the best machinery storage buildings available.

These buildings have no frills. When a farmer buys an Umbaugh building, his money is invested in durable materials and sound engineering practices.

Farmers who shop around usually buy from Umbaugh. We invite comparisons of price and quality.

Solanco FFA has top dairy products judges

By Susan Kauffman
Staff Correspondent

QUARRYVILLE — Solanco FFA members captured both the team and individual honors at the recent York-Lancaster County FFA dairy products judging contest held at Penn Dairies, Lancaster.

In this competition which has been sponsored and coordinated for many years by Penn Dairies, last year's second placed team finished first this year.

Members of the winning Solanco Team include Tina Bucher, Betty Trimble, Dave Holzhauer, Kim Landis and Steve Herr.

Thirty-seven students from eight schools in the two counties tested their skills in judging fluid milk for flavor and sediment as well as determining types of cheeses and scoring cottage cheese.

Each team was composed of five members. The Ephrata team, which won first place last year, finished second this year with the total of 436 points compared to Solanco's first place of 335 points. Third place team, New Holland, scored 440

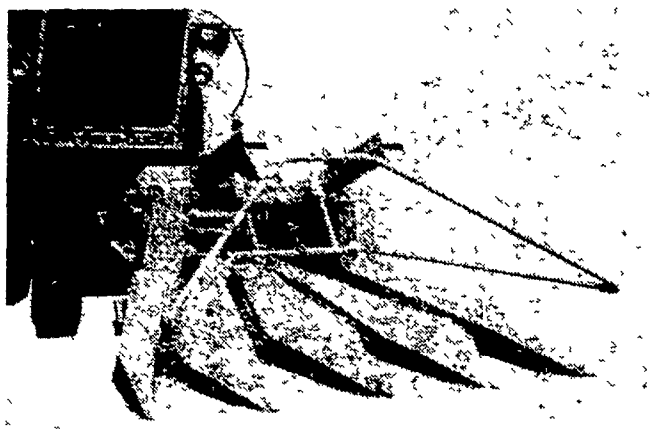
DIRECT-FEED 4-ROW SILAGE HEAD

This new 4-row (30") direct-feed corn silage head from Hesston, is designed for use with Field Queen self-propelled forage harvesters, also manufactured by Hesston Corporation.

The new design allows all four rows of crop to feed directly to the center of the header and into the feed rolls without the power-robbing cross augers common to cornpicker-type 4-row heads.

Rotary disc cut-offs, deliver smooth, vibration-free cutting to increase header life and provide increased power efficiency. Disc speed is 210-280 rpm.



Cutting efficiency of the disc cut-offs helps maintain a constant crop flow to the feed rolls. Minimum cutting height, on level ground is 3 to 4 inches. Simple pressure adjustment between discs is all that is required to maintain clean cutting action.

Other features of this new row-crop header include a special kicker wheel at the upper end of the islands and all-metal chain grippers for positive crop control into the feed rolls. All islands have hinged access doors for ease of maintenance. Gathering arms are adjustable to suit all crop conditions.

The new 4-row head brings to 12 the number of headers available for use with Hesston Field Queen forage harvesters. Other headers include: 2-row (38") and 3-row (30" and 38") row crop heads, 7' windrow pickup, 8' stover attachment, 12' direct-cut hay head and 2-row (38"), 3-row (30" and 38") and 4-row (30" and 38") snapper heads.

QUARRYJVILLE — Dave Holzhauer, a Solanco junior, presented the first place conservation speech at a recent public speaking and parliamentary proceedure contest at Garden Spot High School.

The title of his speech, which outlined several ways to encourage farmers to limit developing and selling off lots was "My Land Is Not For Sale."

Five conservation speeches were presented with two similar in content to the first place topic, one on endangered species and one giving differing viewpoints concerning hunting and hunters and their role in conservation.

Lancaster County farmers visited Washington

LANCASTER — Members of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association went to Washington recently to meet with legislators and government officials. Five issue were of major interest during meetings and discussions. They were: inflation, marketing and bargaining legislation, a proposal to repeal the Delaney Amendment, a repeal of carryover provisions on tax reform, and the reorganization of the United States Department of Agriculture. The farmers, who are affiliated with the Pennsylvania Farmers Association and the American Farm Bureau Federation favor a balanced federal budget, repeal of the Delaney Amendment, and more equitable tax structures. They vigorously oppose the reorganization of USDA, fearing that it would lead to the eventual dismantling of USDA as a cabinet-level agency.

On marketing and bargaining legislation, the farmers said they wanted to improve their net incomes by providing interested producers with the necessary legal muscle for effective bargaining, rather than outright guarantees for 100 per cent parity to achieve higher prices in the market place. "We want fair market prices for our products - it would stabilize agricultural economics," said one of the visitors to the capital. The question of parity was not seriously discussed.

In a position paper made available through the American Farm Bureau Federation, AFBF policy regarding federal marketing and bargaining legislation is as follows:

"Marketing and bargaining legislation is essential to assist farmers and ranchers in building their own effective marketing and bargaining programs to improve their net incomes.

"We support the enactment of a comprehensive federal marketing and bargaining act. The legislation should be made available to producers in all states if they desire to organize marketing associations and operate within the provisins of the act. It should establish procedures for defining bargaining units, accrediting associations to bargain as exclusive agents for all producer-members of bargaining units, good faith bargaining between accredited associations and handlers, establishing minimum requirements and rights in the operation of accredited associations, resolving bargaining impasses by mediation and arbitration by a joint settlement committee utilizing the principle of final offer selection.

"Farm Bureau believes that enactment of federal marketing and bargaining legislation will provide interested producers with the necessary legal 'muscle' for effective bargaining to achieve higher prices in the market places."

The Lancaster County farmers' delegation was a contingent of the PFA-sponsored legislative tour to the nation's capital. PFA President Eugene Thompson was one of the keynote speakers during meetings with congressmen. In his address Thompsn told the congressmen that it's up to them , "... to bring about legislative reform to halt the onslaught of inflation."

Thompson told the congressmen that PFA has adopted policy calling for a halt to inflation for the past 25 years. "Our farmer members still believe that government-fed inflation is a bigger problem than any other economic or social problem facing the citizens of this great nation," Thompson said, "It robs the poor; it kills initiative to work; it stifles business and it is bankrupting farming."

A solution, Thompson said, is balancing the federal budget and limiting government spending. Addressing legislators, he said, "It's not a crime to expect-no, demand-that our government live within its means. But it is criminal to steal from the people through careless use of their monies, entrusted to you as their representatives, if programs fostering inflationary spending are promoted."

Thompson also urged congressmen to support marketing and bargaining legislation and proposals to repeal the Delaney Amendment regulating food additives. Addressing the controversy concerning nitrite in cured bacon, Thompson said, "The irony is that cured meats are the source of only about two percent of the nitrites in the average person's body."

PFA is also affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Federation.

PFA is a general farm organization with about 21,000 farm family members. About 200 farmers participated in therannual two-day visit to Washington.

The Lancaster County Farmers Association and PFA will hold a state legislative tour later this Spring. The date will be announced.

Patches wins speaking contest

MYERSTOWN — An FFA'er from Northern Lebanon High School, Dean Patches, won the extemporaneous public speaking contest, held here last month at Eastern Lebanon County High School. The contest was open to all FFA'ers in Lebanon County. Judges were Homer Bixler, coordinator of diversified occupations at Lebanon Vo-Tech School; Kenneth Good, superintendent of schools for ELCO; and Dennis Grumbine, vice president of Evergreen Tractor Company and a former state FFA president.

Placing second in the contest was Scott Ritchie, also from the Northebco FFA Chapter. Third was Annville-Cleona's Mike Fair.

Others placing in the contest were Robert Kreider of Annville-Cleona, Roy Shirk of Cedar Crest, Sue Heilinger of ELCO, Dean Moyer of Cedar Crest, and William Hoffman of ELCO.

The extemporaneous public speaking contest allowed contestants to choose from two out of three topics, for which they developed a theme based on three categories. Students had 30 minutes to prepare their presentations.

FmHA guaranteed loan program expanded

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The 9 and 9-1/2 per cent interest rates on most FmHA loan programs became effective beginning March 28. The interest rate for most loans was 8-1/2 per cent.

Insured real estate loans will be made at 9 per cent.

These loans include farm ownership, emergency and economic emergency real estate loans, individual soil and water, individual recreation, grazing association, irrigation and drainage and Indian land acquisition loans.

Interest on regular insured operating loans will be 9 1/2 per cent. The new interest rate will apply also to natural disaster emergency and economic emergency operating loans used to pay for livestock, equipment, feed, seed, fertilizer and to make minor improvements to buildings and real estate.

Interest on loans to "limited-resource" farmers will remain at 3 per cent for initial farm ownership loans and at 5 per cent for operating loans.

FmHA's natural disaster emergency loans for production losses will continue to be made at the 5 per cent rate. Home mortgage interest, set at 9 per cent in early February, will remain the same.

Further increases in interest rates are not expected this year, said a FmHA spokesman.

Fulton Grange takes stand on liquor

OAKRYN — Fulton Grange No. 66 met in regular session March 26, at the hall in Oakryn with the Master Harry G. Baker, presiding. They went on record opposing the granting of a liquor license to clubs and restaurants in Drumore and Eden Townships which will be voted on in their Primary Elections May 15. Unregistered citizens may register to vote before April 16.

The Grange went on record supporting the Buy American Act of 1979, Senate Bill 533, in Congress. This bill would require government contracts be placed with American firms. They also adopted a resolution opposing any more atomic plants being built in this area.

Final plans were announced for the Grange's annual family-style turkey supper which will be held at the Grange Hall, Saturday, April 7 from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Adult suppers will be $4 and children $2. Clifford Holloway Jr. asked for volunteers to meet planes at the airports to bring delegates to the National Grange convention in Lancaster in November.

Third and fourth degrees were conferred upon five candidates for Fulton Grange and three for Fremont Grange. New members joining Fulton Grange were Mrs. Samuel Rhoads, Debbie Rhoads, J. Fred Groff, Scott Stauffer and Mrs. Charles Craig III.

The community service committee will take a survey at the next meeting, April 9, of community needs. Youth Night will be observed with the youth committee in charge of the program. Sherry Albert will be the speaker. She will cite needs of the deaf and tell of facilities to assist them. She will demonstrate sign language. There will be a cake walk to benefit a project of the deaf. Mrs. Lloyd Welk will sing a solo.

Remodeling tips reviewed

NORRISTOWN - Is the high price of new housing causing you to consider renovating your present home to get the space and convenience you need? You're not alone, according to Velma C. Musser, Extension home economist. Cooperative Extension service. Last year Americans spent over 10 billion dollars on home improvements.

Advantages of staying where you are and renovating:

- Expensive to sell, buy a new home and move,
- Takes time and energy,
- Less disruptive to stay in present neighborhood (if school-age children),
- You can keep your present home's limitations,
- You can work at your own pace.

Disadvantages are:

- Taxes and utilities will increase,
- Completion often takes longer and costs more than anticipated,
- Interest rates are high on home improvement loans,
- Burdens and inconveniences of living in the midst of remodeling,
- Sometimes you may create more problems than you solved,
- Can overimprove from a resale point of view.

The last point is especially a problem if you remain in your home only a short while after remodeling. You can't expect to singly tack on the costs of home improvements to the price you ask for your home when you sell.

Some improvements such as new roofs, heaters and new windows are important and necessary but are viewed as maintenance by prospective buyers. After all, you expect a home to have all of these items. You can't expect a recapture monies spent for a new roof or other for maintenance expenditures.

While new kitchens and baths are good selling points, you typically can recover only about 50 per cent of their costs if you sell.

Now, additional space such as a family room, provided it conforms to the architecture of the house, can increase a home's value. However, most people prefer above ground living space rather than basement conversions.

Outdoor improvements–excessive landscaping, swimming pools–are the most risky.

If the advantages of remodeling outnumber the disadvantages, then consider these points.

- Don't overimprove your house and price it out of the neighborhood.
- Make only improvements suitable to house and neighborhood.
- Be sure house has good structural qualities before considering renovations.
- Consult an architect or draftsman to draw plans and elevations to help you better visualize your planned additions.
- Check zoning regulations and building requirements in your local community.
- Hire reputable contractors and builders to do the work. Check with lumber and hardware store personnel for their suggestions about contractors. Then verify the work they have done with their other customers.

Dauphin Co. leaders honored

The Dauphin County 4-H leaders banquet was held on March 30, at St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Harrisburg. Honored for her 15 years as a leader of the Eager Beaver 4-H Club was Mr. Ruth Wagner (right) of Hershey R1. Renee Mims (left) Urban 4-H Extension Agent, presented Mrs. Wagner with a 4-H pin. The banquet was sponsored in part by National Central Bank, represented by Darvin Boyd.

IH will offer emergency parts service

COLUMBUS, Ohio – For the fourth consecutive year, International Harvester agricultural equipment dealers will be providing emergency parts and service for farmers through a special company-dealer program called "Stand by 7".

From April 14, 1979 through May 20, 1979, during the busy planting season, participating IH dealers will be available on a seven days a week basis to provide customers with parts and service needed to keep their equipment operating. The program is also conducted during the critical harvest season in the fall.

If the dealer doesn't have the needed part in stock he simply calls a special Stand by 7 telephone number which features three alternative stock sources. The part will be located regionally, nationally, or from the manufacturing plant producing such parts.

"The program reflects our opinion that IH and its dealers have a mutual obligation to our customer," said H.C. Klostergaard, Manager, Parts and Service Marketing, for the Northeast Agricultural Equipment Region based in Columbus, Ohio. "When the farmer's time is valued at hundreds of dollars an hour during the planting and harvesting season, the benefits of such support come clearly into focus," he said.

AFBF protests marketing funds cut

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Farm Bureau, the nation's largest farm organization has urged Congress to restore agriculture marketing research funds that the administration proposes to eliminate from the 1980 fiscal year budget.

In statements to subcommittees of both the Senate and House appropriations committees, the American Farm Bureau Federation called the proposed fund cuts "highly irresponsible."

The Farm Bureau statement notes that the proposed fund cuts would eliminate all wool and mohair research, 33 per cent of fruit, vegetable and animal product processing research, 20 per cent of the cotton and other fiber research programs and 80 per cent of the utilization research to find new markets for farm crops.

"At a time when food costs are escalating and the cost spread between the farm gate and the consumer is more than 70 per cent of the total food bill," the statement said, "it makes absolutely no sense to drastically cut and virtually close down the only federal research effort that has made significant contributions reducing losses, increasing efficiency and finding new ways of utilizing surplus agricultural crops."

The statement also was critical of administrative costs in the Agricultural Research Service programs, saying that ARS takes about one-third of each program budget for administrative overhead and recommending that these costs be cut in half.

"We question whether we may be reaching the point where we will be spending more tax money on administrators, reviewers, supervisors and other administrative personnel than on scientists," the statement concluded.

Milk support raised

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The federal milk price support price was raised from $9.64 to approximately $10.44 per hundredweight on April 1, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland announced. The action, following a meeting of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) board of directors, is required by law.

Present market prices are either at or above the current support level and thus the projected increase will have little immediate effect on consumer prices. However, in coming months the increase will prevent retail prices from falling when more milk becomes available.

Current legislation requires an adjustment in milk price support to reflect any change in the parity index (index of prices paid by farmers, interest, taxes and wage rates) in the first six months of the marketing year.

The support price was set on Oct. 1, 1978, at $9.64 per hundredweight for milk of 3.5 percent milkfat. In the first 5 months of the marketing year, the index rose 6.7 per cent. A further increase in the index is expected in March, enough to result in the increase of approximately 80 cents in the support price for milk.

The estimated $10.44 rate is expected to be 78 per cent of parity on April 1.

By DIETER KRIEG

NEW BLOOMFIELD — At first glance, or even after the second and third look, it's difficult to imagine that Blackcap Bessie of Bilbobern has been around for more than a quarter of a century. But she has, and she looks and acts like she's ready for quite a few more years.

Blackcap Bessie is an Angus cow. She will be 26 tomorrow, April 8. Her proud owners are John Adams; his wife, Rena; and their two daughters, Julie and Jennifer. Their home is in rural Perry County.

Blackcap Bessie defies belief because anyone who has been around cattle knows that teen-aged cows are pretty sluggish and worn-out. They're also few in number. And when it comes to cows in their twenties, like Blackcap Bessie, they're really pretty hard to find.

Blackcap Bessie is an unusual specimen not only because she is so old, but also because she is very much on her feet. She does not look or behave like a cow that has been around since shortly after President Dwight D. Eisenhower moved into the White House for his first term in office.

Those are the facts, however, according to her present owner Adams, and records left by men who had claim on her in earlier days. Furthermore, according to the American Angus Association in St. Josephs, Mo., Blackcap Bessie is one of the oldest members of her breed. She might even be the oldest. But she is not the oldest Angus cow of all time. That distinction belongs to a bovine which has been grazing the eternal pasture since 1859. She died that year at the age of 36 and was known to many as "Old Granny."

Angus cow

Surprisingly, Blackcap Bessie is still productive. She gave birth to her 23rd calf on February 15, and according to her owner, she has been calving regularly every year. Adams has had her since 1973. He purchased her from Bob Coleman, Longmeadow Farms, Dauphin County.

Remembering that he paid $300 for her, Adams said: "I figured if I could get a couple of calves out of her, I couldn't go wrong. I didn't know anything about Angus breeding, but I liked her and became interested."

"She had a history as a good show cow," added Mrs. Adams.

Blackcap Bessie was bred at the Fuerst Stock Farms in New York State and was born at Bilbobern Farms in Pennsylvania. She came to Dauphin County in the late 50's when Donald Stabler of Straywinds Farms paid $5000 for her. Coleman purchased the Straywinds herd in 1966.

According to the stories that have been written and told about Blackcap Bessie, none of her owners ever talked unkindly about her. Initially she earned a favorite place because of her outstanding pedigree and regular production. As the years passed on, she became even more special because of her age. She was a pet.

And while her owners were undoubtedly fond of her, there is reason to believe that the affection was mutual.

Adams remembers that Blackcap Bessie was homesick when she first came. She broke out of her confining quarters on the second day and was half-way gone to her former farm across the hills when Adams finally caught up to her on horseback. Despite the fact that the granny Angus cow was 20 years of age at the time, it took Adams three-quarters of an hour to bring her home. Blackcap Bessie had plenty of life in her then, and she still does today.

Adams remembers that he purchased the cow five years ago because she herself and her background intrigued him. Also, her previous owner had no barn to keep in over the Winter and didn't think that was right. Ironically, Adams says she thrives on snow and cold weather, and speculates it may be a clue to her remarkable longevity. He does have a cozy barn for her, however. She shares her pen with her youngest offspring.

Speaking of offspring, Blackcap Bessie is a descendant of some of the more noted cows and bulls found in the pages of A History of the Angus Breed, published by the American Angus Association. She is sired by Homeplace Eileenmere 999-35, developed by J. Garrett Tolan, who is regarded as one of the master Angus cattle breeders of all time. That same bull sired a number of national and internatinal champions. Blackcap Bessie's dam came from the Glencarnock herd in Maine, a fountain for many foundation cows in many leading herds.

Adams claims he hasn't had any problems with his old cow, other than that she didn't produce milk for her calf two years ago. "I don't know what was wrong," he commented. Her 8-week old calf is doing fine. "He kicks up his heels every morning," said Mrs. Adams.

Adams and his family can only speculate on what factors may be involved in Blackcap Bessie's long life. Good breeding and good feeding are a part of the formula, they offer. The fact that she was rarely confined may have something to do with it. "Good alfalfa hay, pure spring water, good Perry County air, and open housing," said Mrs. Adams.

According to some accounts, the old Angus cow is going blind. But that hasn't been definitely determined. "She can see pretty good," says daughter, Julie. "She shows no signs of aging."

"I'll say," added Mrs. Adams. "She chases after me every time I get in there."

By any measure of bovine aging, Blackcap Bessie is extraordinary. Dr. Erskine Cash from Penn State University claims that the average beef cow lives for only seven or eight years before she is culled for one reason or another. He says Blackcap Bessie is the oldest cow he's aware of. The Angus Association people cited one in Missouri as being 25 years old. Said Donna Holmes of the Angus office: "It's a very unusual case."

And so, Blackcap Bessie and her owners will celebrate a birthday tomorrow. There may not be a cake for the occasion, and old Blackcap Bessie won't know what's going on, but it's a special observance nonetheless. Blackcap Bessie is a very spry 26 years of age. That's very, very old for a cow. But for Bessie that may not even be middle-age.

Many happy returns.

Pequea Valley FFA banquet held

PARADISE — Members of the Pequea Valley FFA Chapter gathered here in the ballroom of the Dutch Town and Country Restaurant last week to hold their annual banquet. It was an occasion marked by the distribution of awards to six members, the nomination of an honorary member, and the showing of a film on tractor pulling.

Heading the list of award recipients was Richard Neff, who is president of the Chapter and served as toastmaster during the dinner meeting. A senior, he was introduced as the school's lone Keystone Farmer Degree winner for 1978. It is the highest FFA degree attainable on the state level. In addition, Neff received an FFA Foundation Award for livestock production.

Daryl Reiter, a freshman at Pequea Valley High School, picked up three prizes. He was named Star Greenhand Farmer, won the chain calf, and received an FFA Foundation Award in agricultural mechanics.

Named Chapter Star Farmer was Tony Weaver, who excells with his hog projects. The FFA Foundation Award in swine production was presented to him.

Other FFA Foundation Award winners were Doug Brubaker in agricultural sales and-or service; Larry Groff in dairy production, and Mark Frey in agricultural production placement.

The chain gilt award was given to Brian McCauley.

John King, principal of Pequea Valley High School, was the recipient of the Chapter's honorary member plaque.

Following the dinner and presentation of awards, FFA members, parents and guests watched a movie about tractor pulls which was filmed at the Rough and Tumble Musem grounds near Kinzer.

WHAT'S NEW

FUNK INTRODUCES NEW CORN HYBRIDS

Funk Seeds International has introduced six new corn hybrids, including one for the Northern Corn Belt.

The six hybrids will be available in introductory quantities this Spring. Funk describes their offerings for this region as follows.

The earliest of the new entries is G-4141A, a widely adapted 95-day hybrid with resistance to Northern Corn Leaf Blight and Stewart's wilt. The hybrid is an excellent yielder and has superior root, stalk and grain quality. G-4141A dries down rapidly. Funk tests have shown that G-4141A performs best under adequate moisture conditions.

Ornamental nursery training program offered

UNIVERSITY PARK - The identification, propagation, nursery production and management, landscape use and design, and maintenance of trees, shrubs, and perennial and annual flowers are included in the Ornamental Nursery Management Winter Course of Penn State's College of Agriculture.

The program is designed to train personnel for foremen/managerial positions in production nursery work or as garden center operators. Electives in greenhouse management are available to those whose interests are in that area of horticulture.

The winter courses consist of two eight-week terms a year in each of two years (total of 32 weeks) in classroom, laboratory, shop, and nursery on the main campus of The Pennsylvania State University. The five-month Summer period between the second and third terms is utilized for on-the-job training.

High school graduates are eligible for enrollment. A designated maximum number of students to be accepted dictates that school records, work experience, and maturity to be considered in offering admission to applicants.

The courses are non-credit - they cannot be transferred to credit programs.

A brochure describing the program, costs, courses, etc., and an application blank can be secured from Winter Courses, The Pennsylvania State University, Room 306 Ag. Administration Building, University Park, Pa. 16802.

Pre-retirement course offered

WEST CHESTER – The Chester County Cooperative Extension Service of The Pennsylvania State University is conducting a series of workshops designed to help you look beyond the middle years and focus on getting ready for and enjoying your retirement. The programs will be held at the Extension office 235 W. Market St., West Chester from 9:30-11 a.m.

On April 9, the topic will be presented by Phillip Weyland on Social Security-its benefits; its basis for building a retirement. Mr. Weyland, Field Representative, of the Social Security Administration, will discuss Medicare as well as answer questions on the total program benefits.

On April 16, the workshop will be on Financial Management with Mrs. Greta Vairo, of The Penn State Extension discussing the importance of examining your present assets and liabilities and judging how they will fit into a plan for your retirement. In this age of inflation a sound financial plan for now and the future is a measure of security one must consider as a goal.

MILKING HERD DISPERSAL
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 18

11:00 A.M.

SELLING 79 HIGH GRADE HOLSTEIN COWS

T.B. & BANGS ACCREDITED
INTERSTATE PAPERS WILL BE AVAILABLE

Property of Richard F. Price, Stockton Dairy Farm, Stockton Road, Phoenix, Maryland Phone: 301-771-4425

Dick Price started his herd in 1953 with the purchase of 30 top heifers from Ontario (17 of the 30 being purebreds) and another group from Wisconsin.

The herd has been on continuous test for a number of years. The present rolling herd average is 15491-572.

On test day March 29th the cows in milk averaged 49.7, with a large percentage past the middle of their lactation; including 23 first calf heifers -- 20 of them having milked over 50#.

65 of the 79 head are due July thru Nov. as follows: July-14, August-12, Sept.-13, Oct.-14, Nov.-12. An excellent opportunity to buy cows to add to your base.

The herd has been built on Sire Power and Curtiss breeding and the cows are in calf to selected high P.D. bulls.

Complete catalogue available sale day with ages, production records, calving and breeding records.

Herd has been under supervision of Dr. James Rutledge and will be pregnancy checked prior to sale.

A healthy, young herd, well grown with good, sound udders. Buy with confidence.

BIO-MITTENT LIGHTING

- Saves Feed
- Saves Electricity

The Story Behind Bio-Mittent Lighting

The Bio-Mittent Lighting Program is a new concept for lighting pullets and layers. It is the result of four years of testing and modifications by Purina researchers to bring poultrymen a program that will save feed and reduce the use of electricity.

The program is based on early research that showed when lights were programmed to go on and off on a specific schedule the rate of production remained equal to production obtained when light was constant. Purina Research introduced an "industry first" with a detailed program for making full use of this lighting principle.

For maximum benefits, environmentally controlled, blackout or light-tight housing is required. Bio-Mittent Lighting can be used in open sided housing during the part of the day when lights are normally used; however, the advantage is savings in electricity and not feed reduction.

Bio-Mittent Lighting Offers These Advantages

1.Lowers Feed Costs

Tests show a reduction of 0.2 pounds of feed per dozen eggs in layers and 0.5 pound less feed per pullet to 20 weeks of age. This amounts to 5% to 7% increased feed efficiency without any loss of production. (At 6¢ per pound net savings in feed costs can be about 18¢ to 20¢ per layer per cycle).

2. Reduces Electric Bill.

Research and field tests show electricity costs can be cut nearly ¼ compared to a constant light program. (At 5¢ to 6¢ per bird, added income could be 25¢ for the life cycle of the pullet and hen.)

3. Improves Shell Strength.

The improvement is small but consistently 1 to 1½% thicker or stronger shells are produced than shells with eggs from hens on constant light.

FOR BEST RESULTS, THE BIO-MITTENT LIGHTING PROGRAM IS RECOMMENDED FOR USE ONLY WITH PURINA BIO-4 POULTRY RATIONS.
